HOOVER URGES ALL TO VOTE AS A DUTY TO THE NATION; 'DECISION WILL BE RIGHT'

COUNTRY HEARS BY RADIO

Nominee Predicts Vote Will Be the Greatest of Any Election.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO WOMEN

Welcome to New Voters for Building of "Better and Better Social Order."

MAKES PLEA TO THE SOUTH

Calls Sectionalism Contrary to National Ideals—Monster Greeting at Palo Alto.

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 5.—Returning to his home to vote and receiving a series of ovations in the last stages of his journey, which culminated in the plaudits of thousands here, Herbert Hoover tonight sat in his study and over the radio delivered his final words in the campaign. These were an exhortation to every voter, irrespective of party, to vote tomorrow—and to vote as his conscience dictated. Eschewing political issues, the Republican nominee emphasized the paramount duty of every citizen to cast his ballot.

In the study at his candidate spoke to the millions who heard him over a nation-wide hook-up were Mrs. Hoover, T. E. C. Gregory, one of Mr. Hoover's closest friends, and Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, President of Stanford University.

Predicts a Record Vote.

The ballot Mr. Hoover described as "the most sacred individual act in that great system of self-government which we have inherited."

He predicted the greatest vote in the history of national elections and paid a tribute to woman voters, whose participation in elections had produced, he said, "a keener realization" of the importance of public questions and at the same time had been an important contribution to higher national ideals.

The prospect that tomorrow 40,000,000 American men and women would vote he called the "greatest spectacle and the greatest inspiration in self-government ever witnessed in world history."

"This enormously enlarged interest," he emphasized, "is evidence of the great depth of conviction and even anxiety of our people over this momentous decision. And whatever that decision is, it will be right. I believe in the will of the majority. It represents the common will and conscience of our people."

Mr. Hoover welcomed the "millions of first voters" and said theirs was the "common task of building a better and better social order."

Plainly referring to "the Solid South," he declared that it was contrary to American ideals that any party should represent any section of the common country.

"This election," he continued, "more than any that has gone before, gives hope for the breaking down of sectional lines. There ought no longer to be any North, South, East or West in our national thought."

In urging every citizen to vote tomorrow he asked all to vote seriously and "earnestly as conscience and mind direct."

His final word was an expression of gratitude for the support given him by millions of men and women throughout the country.

Speaks Briefly at Sacramento.

From the time the Hoover special crossed into California early this morning, the route, which was via American Canyon, Roseville, Sacramento, Lodi and Stockton, provided one ovation after another.

At Sacramento, where the crowd numbered thousands, Mr. Hoover made one of his three speeches of the day. Despite requests to accept his original decision not to speak, and finally, at the urging of Governor C. C. Young and others who accompanied him, he consented to say a few words.

"I deeply appreciate your welcome," he said, "It is good to get back to California. It is good to be with one's oldest friends. It is good to get to one's own home, to see one's old friends, and above all I value the confidence which you have reposed in me to represent my own State.

"I shall not undertake a political address, as my position on the principles and issues of this campaign is well known to you. You have arrived at your own conclusions upon them. You have yet to perform the greatest peace-time obligation that an American citizen owes to his country—that is to go to the polls and vote independently, as each of your own individual conscience dictates."

ETNA HURLS LAVA FROM NEW CRATER

EARTHQUAKES ADD TO FEARS

Clouds of Ashes Shut Out Sun's Light While Blazing Cinders Are Flung Into Sky.

By ARNALDO CORTESI.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 5.—After a quiet night during which the advance of the lava stream on the Village of Santalfio, Sicily, ceased completely, giving rise to the hope that all danger had ceased, the eruption of Mount Etna entered a more violent phase today. A new crater opened, sending a fresh stream of lava coursing down the sides of the volcano, threatening other and more important inhabited centres.

Numerically a suburb of Mascali, a town with about 10,000 inhabitants, is in a direct line with the march of the new torrent of lava. Appearing to be seriously threatned, it has been evacuated by the inhabitants, who have moved with their effects to the neighboring villages.

The new river of lava issued from a crater which suddenly opened this morning near one which began its activities last Saturday. The lava invaded the valley of Pietra Pacile, moving directly toward Mascali. The inhabitants, headed by their priests, formed processions and marched up the sides of the mountain, implering God in His mercy to spare their homes.

Hundreds of motor trucks, accompanied by numerous volunteer helpers, arrived to help in the evacuation of the village. The work was carried out quickly and completely eliminating

GAMBLERS HUNTED IN ROTHSTEIN ATTACK; ONE IS QUESTIONED

Victim Threatened After His Refusal to Pay $303,000 Loss at Cards, Police Hear.

CALLED TO HOTEL AND SHOT

WOUNDED MAN NEAR DEATH

Sinking After Rally Earlier in Day, but Shields His Assailants—"Won't Talk," He Asserts.

Arnold Rothstein, who is near death in Polyclinic Hospital from a bullet wound in the abdomen received late Sunday night, was shot because he refused to pay $303,000 lost two weeks ago in a record-making game of "high spade," the police said yesterday, adding that he had "welched" because he thought he had been cheated.

Barely alive despite two blood transfusions, Broadway's greatest chance-taker was taking yet another chance. Confident that he would pull through and in his own way deal with his assailant, he refused to aid the detectives. Cautioned that his condition was desperate, he faintly shook his head.

Rothstein was shot in a suite in the Park Central Hotel. A peacemaker in the feud between Rothstein and his "creditors" had called him to the suite. It was a meeting at which Rothstein was to get his final opportunity to settle his debts. Apparently the police reasoned, he again refused. Then a hot-headed creditor shot him, firing one bullet into Rothstein's groin.

Man Is Questioned Two Hours.

Early last evening a man was taken to Police Headquarters and questioned for more than two hours, after which he left in company of detectives of Inspector Coughlin's staff and of the West Forty-seventh Street police station. This man, it was learned, was a California gambler, said to have been one of the eight card players in the game in which Rothstein lost $303,000. Of that amount, it is understood, the wounded gambler owed the man under questioning $219,000.

The man questioned told the detectives that George McManus, a widely known figure in sporting circles, lost $51,000 in the game and that Rothstein had not only "welched" on his debts, but that he had promised to make good as soon as he could get the money together.

The detectives refused to make known the name of the gambler and would not verify the report that he was Nathan Raymond, known in the gambling fraternity as "Nigger Nate."

He left Police Headquarters about 9 o'clock, being driven uptown by Detectives Frank Walsh, Joseph Daly and John Cordes of Inspector Coughlin's staff.

Condition Reported Worse.

A bulletin on Rothstein's condition issued at 9:30 P. M. at Polyclinic indicated that he was steadily getting worse. It read:

"Condition serious. Pulse and temperature slightly increased. Otherwise holding his own."

A short time after the bulletin was made known it developed that Dr. George D. Stewart, of Park Avenue, one of the city's leading surgeons, had been called in. He went into consultation with three of the hospital physicians.

A partner of the wounded gambler who asked that his name be not used, reaches the hospital soon after the consultation of physicians had started. "If Rothstein lives," he said, "there will be no statement made on this affair, as we wish to follow his own wishes. If he dies, a statement will be issued and it will be a warm one."

Several other men well-known on Broadway were being sought for questioning. One of them was Mc-

Coolidge Starts for Northampton to Vote; Will Return to Washington Late Today

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—President and Mrs. Coolidge left tonight on a special train over the Pennsylvania Railroad for Northampton, Mass., where they will cast their votes tomorrow. The train of seven cars has been called the "Voters' Special," as it carries members of the White House staff who also will vote in Massachusetts.

Accompanying the President are Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Clark, the former the private secretary to the President, who likewise votes in Northampton. Others are Colonel Osmun Latrobe and Captain Wilson Brown, White House aides, and Colonel James F. Coupal, White House physician.

The Pennsylvania Railroad installed radios in the President's private car and in the club car, so that the latest news about the election trend will be received by the party during the return trip.

The President is expected back in Washington about 8 o'clock tomorrow night. He will get the later election returns over special wires in the Executive Offices.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge will vote at the polling place in the City Hall, where the President cast his first vote in Northampton, of which city he was elected Councilman. This was his first elective office, and since that time he has been steadily in office. It is expected that he will return to his home town when he leaves the White House and live for a time in the small double house for which he pays $32.50 a month.

After casting their votes, the President and Mrs. Coolidge will visit the latter's mother, who is ill in a hospital, and will leave there about 10 A. M., so as to be back in Washington for the election results.

Nearly all the Cabinet officers will be in their home cities tomorrow to vote. Secretaries Kellogg and Wilbur are the only Cabinet members who will remain here. They have sent their votes by mail to Minnesota and California, respectively.

Stocks Soar in Active Pre-Election Trading; Oils Lead Rally on Talk of 'Big Market' Ahead

Shaking off the nervousness which had characterized trading for several days, the stock market advanced yesterday, the day before the election. Leading issues closed with net gains of from 2 to 7 points. The turnover was 3,842,100 shares. The heaviest buying was in the oil shares. This group led the market in volume and in the aggressiveness of its advance. Predictions of an early increase in the price of midcontinent crude oil, together with encouraging income reports by several oil companies, brought a flood of buying orders, and Wall Street became convinced that the "big oil market," long predicted, was under way.

Barnsdall A was the particular feature of the oils, opening with one transaction of 50,000 shares at 48½, or 4½ points above the closing price of Saturday. Other oil stocks were turned over in huge volume and at advancing prices throughout the day, both on the Stock Exchange and the Curb Market. Barnsdall A lost part of its gain and closed at 48¾, up 2¾ points on the day.

Wide gains also were made in other parts of the list. Radio closed with a gain of 7 points, Kennecott Copper 5¼, Montgomery Ward, 4½. Woolworth 5¾, American Bank Note 8¼, Atchison 8¾, Kroger Grocery 3¾, Kolster Radio 2¾, Wright Aero 10¾, National Tea 24, Coty 4¾ and Simmons 4¾.

Wall Street had expected that the day before election would be unusually quiet. It was known that many large operators were out of the market until Wednesday. However, the market developed strength at the opening yesterday and remained strong throughout the day. The advance was accelerated by a decline in the call money rate from 7 to 6 per cent. Funds were available in the outside market as low as 5½ per cent.

The rise in stocks was given various political interpretations. The partisans of Mr. Hoover held that the market was discounting his election. Supporters of Governor Smith contended that Wall Street was showing its confidence in the market despite the uncertainty surrounding the Presidential campaign.

The election was the one topic of conversation in stock market circles. Brokerage houses in their daily circulars were mostly of the opinion that the market is to have a sharp bulge after today, but they still advised their customers to be cautious in making new commitments.

NEW DEAL PROPOSED ON MEXICAN DEBTS

American Bankers Returning With Report to Lay Before Committee and Bondholders.

PLAN THEN UP TO MEXICO

Its Railway Bonds Concerned in Proposed Agreement to Supersede That of 1925.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 5.—The following official statement was issued by the Ministry of Finance this afternoon:

"During the last three weeks preliminary conferences have been held between the Minister of Finance, aided by a special Government commission, and representatives of the International Bankers Committee in Mexico in order to formulate general principles on which a new agreement between the Mexican Government and the holders of bonds of the direct debt of Mexico can be based.

"The discussions also touched upon the problem of the indebtedness of the National Railways of Mexico, of which the Government is the owner of a majority of shares, and an exchange of views has been held in order to improve the condition of the system.

"The conferences were held in an atmosphere of mutual understanding of the difficulties which will have to be overcome, and appreciation of the necessity that any agreement which may be signed must be just for the bondholders and subject to Mexico's capacity to pay, while taking into consideration the necessity that Mexico shall regain her credit abroad.

"The Mexican Government has considered the problem of the foreign debt as an integral part of a general problem in which are included obligations of another character, and thus expresses itself:

"The representatives of the International Bankers Committee are returning to New York to report to their headquarters there and to the European sections. When their report has been studied the necessary steps will be taken for the adoption of a definite agreement on Mexico's foreign indebtedness, an agreement which will be subject to ratification by the Mexican Congress and approbation by the bondholders as represented by the International Committee of Bankers on Mexico.

The delegates of the International committee were Arthur M. Anderson, J. H. Sterrett and Graham Ashmead. All the conferences were presided over by Luis Montes de Oca, Mexican Minister of Finance and Public Credit.

Lamont Tells of Preliminary Steps.

Preliminary steps have been taken to reach a new agreement between the Mexican Government and the foreign holders of its bonds, to cover payments on the country's external debt, it was announced yesterday by Thomas W. Lamont, Chairman, of the International Committee of Bankers on Mexico.

Representatives of the bankers, headed by Arthur M. Anderson of J. P. Morgan & Co., are returning from Mexico City, where conferences were held on the subject, and their report is expected to lead to discussions on which will be based a readjustment plan to be submitted to the Mexican Government and to the holders of its external debt.

The latest compact on Mexico's external debt, amounting to about $500,000,000, was a modified agreement negotiated by the bankers committee and the Mexican Finance Minister late in 1925, which superseded a compact signed several years earlier. Under the modified agreement Mexico made remittances to the bankers in 1926, and distributions were made to the bondholders. Payments also were made in 1927, and full service on the debt was to have gone into effect this year.

The Mexican Government announced, however, that it was unable to meet the schedules contemplated for this year, and the bank-

GREY URGES BALDWIN SCRAP ENTIRE ACCORD

He Terms French Naval Pact, With Its Army Tag, a Blunder Estranging America.

WOULD CURB ADMIRALTY

Ex-Foreign Minister Asserts Britain Can Never Secure Her Position Against Us by Arms.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Viscount Grey of Fallodon, speaking at a Liberal Party luncheon today on the consequences of the abortive Anglo-French naval compromise, urged Premier Baldwin to make clear to the world that his pledge not to engage in naval rivalry with the United States held good at the Admiralty as well as on the platform.

"The Government should make it quite clear that we do not take the United States into calculation in our naval building," the wartime Foreign Secretary said. "I cannot help suspecting that there is a feeling among British naval experts and American naval experts that there is real rivalry about the fleets.

"What we want to be sure of is that the Government has instructed the Admiralty that in drawing up its program of British naval requirements it should not take the United States fleet into account. Previous British governments have never done it."

Only Function of the Admiralty.

Lord Grey said it was for the Government, not the Admiralty, to decide what contingencies ought to be guarded against. It was for the Admiralty to say merely what naval force was required for a contingency the Government foresaw.

"We shall never secure our position against the United States by armaments," he declared. "The principle on which the Canadian boundary is secure is the only method on which Anglo-American security can be maintained. If you stick to that principle in practice, as the Canadian Government sticks to it in its own sphere, there will never be any risk of the British commonwealth of nations being interfered with by the United States."

Lord Grey held that a new statement by the Government was necessary to remedy the blunder of the compromise. The military as well as the naval part of the British and French bargain must be declared null and void, he said.

The London Times tomorrow will devote its leading editorial to Lord Grey's speech, predicting a full Parliamentary discussion of the ill-fated compromise, which it says was stifled at birth.

Although it failed, The London Times holds, the efforts for naval disarmament must continue. It is among the major issues of British policy in the paper's view, and England can await the resumption of the naval discussions with the United States with greater confidence because of Premier Baldwin's declaration "We do not intend to build in competition with America."

Was It New Policy? He Asks.

LONDON, Nov. 5 (AP).—Characterizing the Anglo-French naval accord as a great blunder, Lord Grey, in his speech today, declared that the Government itself must recognize this.

"Was it a wrong and new departure in policy or an isolated blunder?" he asked. "It was very desirable, he added, that the British foreign policy should have continuity and therefore it was anxious to treat this as an isolated blunder unrelated to policy, the consequences of which had been to a large extent due to misunderstanding, misconception and misrepresentation.

"We are going to pay the price," he continued, "in a temporary political estrangement between the British people and the United States. That is very undesirable in the interests of the British and of the world. I believe that so long as there is no rivalry in armaments and no challenge from Britain to America, our coalition remains perfectly secure.

CITY SET TO HANDLE RECORD VOTE TODAY; 9,500 TO GUARD POLLS

8,000 Patrolmen Will Be Assigned to Preserve Order at the Balloting Places.

BOARD ENDS PREPARATIONS

Extra Machines Will Be Held for Emergency—Registration Inquiry Goes On.

State and local officials reported yesterday that preparations had been completed for an expeditious recording of the vote of more than 2,000,000 men and women who are to participate in the elections in this city today. Police Commissioner Warren has assigned about 8,000 patrolmen to preserve order at the polls, while 1,500 special aides, more than half of them lawyers, will assist Special Deputy Attorney General George Z. Medalie in preventing possible attempts at fraudulent voting.

Final arrangements of the Board of Elections for the handling of the vote by the 16,622 inspectors and clerks at the polling places in the five boroughs were completed at a meeting of the board yesterday. It was announced later by one of the officials that "everything has been cleared away and we are ready for things to go over with a bang."

This official also said that the keys for the voting machines, to be used exclusively in Manhattan and Brooklyn, the ballots to be used in the Bronx, Queens and Richmond, and the votes of absentee citizens already had been placed in the custody of the police for installation in the polling places this morning before the polls opened.

Medalie Issues Warning.

Mr. Medalie announced in the late afternoon that word had come to him that a leader in one of the boroughs had sent word to his election district workers to ignore the special attorneys general he had assigned to polling places in that borough on the ground that they were without authority.

"We shall put a stop to any such move instantly," said Mr. Medalie, who refused to reveal the identity of the leader. "My aides have powers conferred on them under State law as peace officers, and anybody who attempts to interfere with them will find himself in difficulty with the law.

"Commissioner Warren is cooperating with us to the fullest extent. He has ordered the policemen assigned to the polling places throughout the city to give every possible aid to my men to prevent frauds at the polls or possible interference with the casting of the vote by politicians or others. Some politicians in the past have had the temerity to go into the polling booths with voters to guide them. This shall not be tolerated and arrests will follow any such moves."

Edward S. Dore, President of the Tammany Hall Law Committee, last night took issue with Mr. Medalie.

"This is not the law," Mr. Dore said, "it is an erroneous statement and Mr. Medalie knows better. The election law expressly provides that a voter who desires instruction after he has entered the voting booth and before the curtain is closed, may ask for such instruction. The election officials are obliged by law to give him such instructions in the voting booth, such instructions being given by inspectors of opposite political faith.

"It also provides that disabled or blind or otherwise incapacitated persons may not only receive instructions but actual assistance in voting."

The Special Deputy Attorney General said that two or more of his men would be stationed in polling places

SMITH STANDS ON RECORD IN FINAL PLEA TO NATION; PLEDGES AID TO FARMERS

Mrs. Smith Wants Victory As Gift on Her Birthday Today

This is the birthday of Mrs. Alfred E. Smith. If there is anything in omens it is likely to have great significance in today's results, for ten years ago she asked as a birthday present the Governorship for her husband. Today she wants as a birthday present the Presidency for her husband.

"That was a nice birthday in 1918," said Mrs. Smith. "That was the first time that he ran for Governor, and tomorrow in 1928, is the first time he has run for President. The election is the only thing I want from the Governor. And I'm going to get it, too."

Presents arrived all day yesterday from her friends both in New York and Albany. The Governor's practice has always been to wait until the morning of his wife's birthday to make his gift.

In Intimate Speech He Cites Appointments and Reforms.

ASSERTS HANDS ARE UNTIED

"No Commitments to Any One but the People"—He Thanks Women of the State.

ASKS SUPPORT OF MID-WEST

Democrats Offer Only Hope for Agriculture, He Says—Feels "All Right" on Election.

Dropping the issues of the campaign upon which he has pounded for seven weeks, Governor Smith terminated last night his fight for the Presidency by offering his record in his own State of New York as his last appeal for the support of the nation's electorate.

In striking contrast with the crowds that have jammed the huge halls where he had spoken previously, only a few friends and newspaper men were present in a broadcasting auditorium in Carnegie Hall when the Governor talked, but his words were carried to millions of people over a network of ninety radio stations.

He set out, as he described it, to talk as though he were sitting with each voter in his own home. He sought to tell simply what sort of man he was, and for reference he gave the people of his native State and his record among them: his appointments to office, the governmental reforms he had effected and the business efficiency and humanity of his Administrations.

Hands Are Free, He Final Word.

His final word to the electorate was that his hands were untied and free.

"I have made no promises to any man or to any group of men," he said. "Nobody was authorized to make any promises for me, and in fact none has been made. I can enter upon the duties of the greatest office in the world without commitment to anybody except the American people."

The Governor's speech last night closed a day of activity and concluded his vigorous campaign of twenty formal speeches. He spoke at 12:30 P. M. from the National Broadcasting studio in an earlier radio talk directed to the farmers of the Middle West. He was interviewed by newspaper men and said that he felt "all right" about the outcome of the election, and he dispatched to Senator Joseph T. Robinson, his running mate, candidate for the Vice Presidency, a telegram of appreciation for his work, confidence in the results today and conviction that "the people do not err."

Today, close to the full number of 48,000,000 people who, it is estimated, are eligible to vote, will go to the polls and render their verdict upon a campaign which observers have termed the provocation of the greatest and most emotional interest in American history. The largest vote on record is expected to be polled. New York City polls, opening at 6 A. M. and closing at 6 P. M., are expected to be thronged by voters whose registered number exceeds by 500,000 the high mark of four years ago.

Sounds Note of Contentment.

The note of contentment with what the people might decide was struck in the Governor's telegram to Senator Robinson.

"At the close of the campaign," he wired, "let me express my deep gratitude and appreciation of your splendid work. It has been a notable achievement. I knew when you were nominated that I would receive from you every cooperation and the kind of loyal, intelligent effort that brings victory. Together we have laid before the people the fundamental issues of this campaign. The people do not err. In the last analysis their decision will be right, and we go together to victory tomorrow. Regards to Mrs. Robinson from Mrs. Smith, all the family and myself."

To newspaper men the Governor, looking a little tired but still gay, said: "I feel all right about it. It has been a long hard job. The traveling and speechmaking are not easy; feel a little bit relieved to have the job done. I feel satisfied with the campaign I have made."

He had not planned where he would be tonight, he said. Some one remarked that according to one Republican prediction his opposition put in their column 400 electoral votes.

Makes No Predictions.

"I am making no predictions," he said of his own ideas as to States and electoral ballots. "I am going to say nothing at all about that. I have not studied it. That has not been

EMPLOYES TO OWN GRAYBAR ELECTRIC

Western to Sell All Stock in Its Merchandising Concern to 2,500 Workers.

DOING $75,000,000 BUSINESS

A Leader in Radio Sales Field—New Move a Step in Isolation of Telephone Assets.

The Western Electric Company at the close of 1928 will sell the Graybar Electric Company, with annual sales amounting to $75,000,000, to the 2,500 officers and other employes of the Graybar company, it was announced yesterday by Edgar S. Bloom, President of Western Electric. The Graybar concern, one of the largest electrical supply companies in the world, will pass to the new owners through outright or instalment purchases of stock.

"There is no case in financial records where a company of the importance of the Graybar Electric Company has changed ownership in such a manner. Its officers and employes, who will have the option of two instalment plans and one outright purchase plan, are organizing a new company, to be called the Graybar Management Corporation, which will acquire Graybar Electric from the Western Electric Company.

In financial circles this move was regarded as a drastic measure on the part of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company to confine its activities purely to the telephone business, toward which its development has tended in the last few years. A. T. & T. owns more than 98 per cent. of the common stock of the Western Electric Company, Inc., which is the manufacturing, supply and warehousing organization of the Bell system.

Mr. Bloom in his announcement pointed out that the Graybar Company was organized in 1925 to take over the Western Electric Company's merchandising business in electrical supplies. Western Electric, however, retained full ownership of the 150,000 shares of $100 par value of Graybar stock.

The Graybar company was formed, Mr. Bloom said, "in order that the Western Electric organization might devote itself primarily to serving the Bell system, as the continued expansion of the system, to keep pace with the demands of the American public for additional telephone service and facilities, placed a growing responsibility upon the Western Electric organization to meet the constantly increasing requirements for telephone apparatus and supplies."

Exactly three years to a day after the Graybar Electric Company began operations as a subsidiary of West-

Patrolman Killed Seizing Stolen Auto in Chase; Driver Held as Slayer After Wild Brooklyn Ride

In a wild ride in a stolen car in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon James Mason, 32 years old, a negro, of 427 Herkimer Street, allegedly caused the death of Traffic Patrolman Henry C. Behnstedt, who had been married only a month, injured Daniel Miller, 70 years old, a street cleaner, of 511 Decatur Street, and damaged a taxicab and a private car in two collisions.

Mason, who is wanted on serious charges in Washington, D. C., according to the police, will have a hearing today on charges of homicide, grand larceny and violation of the traffic regulations. Behnstedt's bride, Mrs. Sadie Hoppe Behnstedt, was prostrated last night at her home at 12-35 Boulevard, Broad Channel, Queens.

The prisoner, who said he had been drinking, drove off a sedan owned by Edward Williams, a stevedore, of 167 Albany Avenue, who had parked it on Eastern Parkway near Rockaway Avenue. He attracted the attention of Patrolman Behnstedt at Utica Avenue and Eastern Parkway when he failed to stop after violating a traffic rule.

Behnstedt commandeered a private car and pursued, firing his revolver at the fugitive. Andrew Wilson of 759 Albany Avenue, who was in the machine with Mason, jumped out and fled. Behnstedt caught Mason near Sutter Avenue and Ambey Street, jumped on the running board and ordered him to drive to the Brownsville Station. The police were informed later that Mason then swerved the car sharply, crashing sidewise into a parked taxicab and crushing Behnstedt to death between the two machines.

Just a few moments before, it is alleged, Mason knocked down the street cleaner. Continuing his flight down Blake Avenue and Kings Highway, Mason drove the car into collision by Alfred E. Hanson of 82 Alton Avenue on Eastern Parkway near Herkimer Street. Mason drove on to his home, where he was taken into custody, after the condition of the car, he was driving had excited the suspicions of Patrolman Jacob Weiss and Sergeant William Kent.

NEW JERSEY FEARS DISORDER AT POLLS

But Party Leaders Doubt That There Will Be Serious Trouble Over Hudson 'Blacklist.'

'FEDERAL GUARD' IS UPSET

Sargent's Aide Asserts Deputies Will Not Be Armed — Judges to Aid Prescribed Voters.

New Jersey goes to the polls today with tension in the political atmosphere in Hudson County as a result of reports of possible disorder which came yesterday in the wake of a bitter controversy over registration waged for several weeks.

Election officials and representatives of both major parties minimized the rumors of impending trouble at the polling places in Hudson County, but several party spokesmen admitted there was some possibility of turbulence. Some others admitted it was probable that there would be sporadic outbursts, but said they expected the election generally to be orderly.

The usual large police details for Presidential elections have been assigned by the municipalities in the county, but as far as could be learned yesterday no extraordinary precautions had been taken as a result of the reports of impending violence.

Federal Guard Story Denied.

United States Attorney Philip Forman renewed during the day his assertion that armed Federal Deputy Marshals would be available for duty in Hudson and Essex Counties, but last night a telegram from William B. Mitchell, Acting Attorney General in Washington, tending to contradict this, was made public last night in Jersey City. The telegram was in reply to a message sent to Attorney General Sargent by Representative Mary T. Norton of Jersey City, in which she spoke of newspaper accounts of Mr. Forman's assertions that armed guards would be on hand, and protested against it as "Federal intrusion." The reply as made public follows:

"As regards your wire you have been misinformed. No Federal guards have been sent from Washington and no Federal Deputy Marshals have been authorized or appointed. The United States Attorney and the United States Marshal for New Jersey have been instructed and fully understand that Federal officers shall not carry arms at the polls and that their activities are strictly limited to arresting those violating Section 19 of the Criminal Code, which forbids interference with civil rights."

This section, it was explained, deals with conspiracy to violate the election laws in contests for Federal offices.

Mr. Forman earlier in the day had informed John Ferguson, County Superintendent of Elections, a Republican, that an "ample" number of Federal Deputy Marshals would be mobilized in Jersey City on Election Day and that if Mr. Ferguson desired more he should notify Mr. Forman in Newark. Mr. Forman announced several days ago that these deputies would carry pistols as part of their regular equipment. He said they would also be available for duty in Essex County, embracing Newark, and that Department of Justice Agents would be present to investigate complaints of "conspiracy." Agents of this department have been in Jersey City for several days.

Federal Men to Await Calls.

When Mr. Ferguson was informed of the telegram from Washington, he said that his understanding was that the deputy marshals were not to be stationed at the polls, but were to be held in readiness in a temporary headquarters at the Postoffice Building in Jersey City to answer calls for their services. He said he knew nothing about their right to carry arms.

When United States Attorney Forman was told last night in Trenton of the telegram from Washington he said:

"I do not want to get into any controversy about how Federal deputy marshals are to be used. It is entirely up to United States Marshal Frederick S. Schneider of New Brunswick. He is the man who has the power to say how the deputies are to be employed and whether they can bear arms or not. I can say this, however, that if complaints are made that the Federal election laws are being violated these deputies have the power to arrest."

The controversy in Essex County simmered down some time ago and a peaceful election is expected there, but in Hudson County the issuance of a "blacklist" has aroused a storm of protests. About 17,750 names have been taken from the registry books. The Democrats have charged that this list was the result of a "plot" to prevent Governor Smith and other members of the Democratic slate from carrying the State.

Judge Leo Sullivan, Chairman of the Hudson County Democratic Committee, said that of the 28,410 "blacklisted" names about 4,000 were stricken from it when persons filed affidavits with the Bureau of Elections supporting their claims to their right to vote. About 2,000 more names were dropped because of typographical errors in publishing the list. In addition to these, 2,978 persons obtained court orders which will entitle them to vote.

In addition to the "blacklist" a challenge list of 12,000 has been prepared by Mr. Ferguson. But any person on this challege list will receive a ballot unless a majority of the bi-partisan District Election Board of four members denies it.

Ferguson Confident of Order.

"I feel sure that the election will be conducted in an orderly manner," said Mr. Ferguson, "and that none of the men connected with this bureau will be responsible for any serious friction or trouble during the day. I have instructed the men and women under my orders to be courteous, patient and tactful with the voters.

"I do not believe in and will not tolerate any strong-arm methods. My deputies, I am sure, will justly earn through their work at the polls the commendation of every citizen of Hudson County who believes in honesty and a clean election."

Mr. Ferguson will have 1,012 deputies with police powers at the polls. They have been instructed to watch particularly the tallying. They will stand so as to be able to read the ballots and the tally sheets as the count is being made.

Marshal Schneider said the deputy marshals would not carry arms and that they would be gathered in Hudson and Essex Counties and other places to be ready if their services were needed. He said the deputies would take action only if warrants were issued by Mr. Forman or representatives of the Attorney General's office.

The Democratic Party has made preparations to supply legal aid and advice by assigning attorneys and party workers for duty in various cities in the county.

The three Common Pleas Judges of Hudson County, Daniel T. O'Regan, Robert V. Kinkead and Charles M. Egan, will be in court to hear applications from persons seeking court orders to take them off the "blacklist." Judge Leo Sullivan of Passaic and Judge Albert Holland of Morris County will aid them in this work. Judge Sullivan sitting in Bayonne and Judge Holland in Union City.

The Hudson County Judges granted orders yesterday to about 1,000 more persons who had been named on the "blacklist" and who were seeking to establish their right to vote. This brought the total to 2,978.

J. Emil Walscheid, County Counsel and a leading Democrat, said that preparations had been made to go before the Common Pleas Judges in actions to dismiss members of the election boards for any illegal act.

CHICAGO GUNMAN SHOT IN FINANCIAL CENTRE

Former Bootlegger Says He Fired Fearing Death After Refusing Money Demand.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—La Salle Street saw a gang shooting today when Leo Mongoven, gangster and suspected of being a robber, was shot and seriously wounded at noon in the heart of the financial district. His assailant, Abe Cooper, a former bootlegger, charged that Mongoven and two of his associates in the gang of George Morgan had beaten him recently in an attempt to extort $5,000 from him.

Cooper fired four shots at Mongoven, two of them taking effect. The latter was seated in an automobile in front of the Rookery Building and directly across the street from the Continental and Commercial Bank. As Cooper fled, revolver in hand, he ran into the arms of two traffic policemen and was captured.

With Mongoven were Pete Gusenberg and Frank Foster, notorious gangsters. Cooper told the police that he makes his living speculating in stocks and bonds. The police said they were satisfied, however, that he is engaged in some illegal "racket" and that the attempted extortion was in relation to some underworld deal. Cooper said the trio met him in the Rookery and demanded $5,000 to aid them in their trial on a charge of jewel robbery in Chicago on which they were arrested last week. When he refused they pressed revolvers against his body and ordered him to enter their car, waiting at the curb, long enough to take him for a ride," Cooper said. "When we got out to their car I pulled out my gun and started shooting. I'm glad I got the guy. He would have gotten me."

Foster was arrested and a search is being made for Gusenberg.

GANGSTER ADMITS MURDER.

Birger Follower in Illinois Pleads Guilty to Killing Prices.

MARION, Ill., Nov. 5 (AP).—Leslie Simpson, former member of the Birger gang, today pleaded guilty in Circuit Court to the murder of State Highway Patrolman Lory Price and his wife, Mrs. Ethel Price, in January, 1927.

State's Attorney Arlie Boswell petitioned the Court to sentence Simpson to life imprisonment rather than death on the plea that he would act as a State witness against other defendants.

BOTH PARTY CHIEFS SEE JERSEY VICTORY

MOTT CERTAIN OF SWEEP

Republican Chairman Asserts That Hoover Majority Will Be at Least 250,000.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 5.—Harry Heher and E. Bertram Mott, Chairmen of the Democratic and Republican State Committees, respectively, issued statements today expressing confidence in the outcome of tomorrow's election. Mr. Heher predicted that Governor Smith would carry New Jersey by 100,000 and Mr. Mott declared that Herbert Hoover would receive at least 250,000 majority.

"Victory is assured for the Democratic Party in New Jersey," said Mr. Heher. "Governor Smith's vigorous campaign has borne fruit. During the past two weeks there has been an unmistakable trend to the Democratic Party in the nation and State. Governor Smith has inspired widespread confidence. His fine background of service in his own State and the vigor of his personality have attracted the forces of liberalism everywhere.

"In this State the traditional appeal of the specious plea that only through the Republican Party can prosperity be maintained has not been effective. The unemployment problem concretely demonstrates the fallacy of this contention. Then, too, Governor Smith's guarantee that he would advocate no revision of the tariff law that will take a five-cent piece from the pay envelope of the working man or tend to disturb business has reassured the American working men and business men who are attracted to his standard.

Praises Smith's Leadership.

"Effective leadership is the need of America today. Governor Smith has demonstrated, during the period of his service in the Executive Department of New York, that he has all the qualities of leadership. He has broad vision and the ability to surround himself with and take the advice of experts in every field of governmental action. His election will undoubtedly advance the interest of the country. New Jersey, long an admirer of the distinguished Governor of New York, will give him a substantial majority, not less than 100,000.

"The re-election of Senator Edwards and the election of Commissioner Dill to the Governorship seems to be conceded by all experienced observers of political trends in this State.

"The unfairness of the Republican leaders will contribute materially to the Democratic victory in the State. In desperation born of the conviction that defeat will be their portion they have boldly used the Legislature to create machinery to disfranchise thousands of voters in the northern part of the State. Vesting in partisan officers, known as Superintendents of Election in the first-class counties of the State, power to strike names from the registry lists is a patent effort to thwart the will of the people. In the first-class counties they are disfranchising Democratic voters.

"In Atlantic, Camden and other counties of the State there has been illegal registration on an extensive scale. In Atlantic County, for instance, the registered vote is 76 per cent. of the population. Can it be doubted that a plan has been conceived and is in process of execution to stifle popular expression at the polls? The indignation stirred by this and other attempts, through unfair means, to achieve partisan advantage will be reflected in a substantial way in the vote cast on Tuesday."

Mott Confident of Sweep.

"I am very confident that New Jersey will cast the electoral vote for Herbert Hoover and elect Hamilton F. Kean United States Senator and Morgan F. Larson Governor of the State," said E. Bertram Mott, Chairman of the Republican State Committee. "At least ten Republican Congressmen will be elected. Both branches of the Legislature will be continued Republican.

"Herbert Hoover will receive at least 250,000 majority in the State and I see absolutely no reason, from encouraging reports received, why our candidates for United States Senator and Governor will not run close to Mr. Hoover.

"We have endeavored to make a clean campaign. I believe that the people of New Jersey, as well as people throughout the country, are ready and anxious to continue the wonderful prosperity which we have enjoyed since 1916 by election of the full Republican ticket. I am convinced that the people of this country realize that any change of the Administration at this time will very materially affect the prosperity of this country. Mr. Hoover has won the hearts of the American people by his frankness, straightforwardness, sincerity of purpose and progressive ideals, and the citizenry of the country believe and trust him as they have Calvin Coolidge.

"Herbert Hoover will truly represent all the people, irrespective of race, color, creed or politics. We should all work together to enable him to carry out the wonderful program which he has outlined for the American people."

GANGSTERS IN CARS SLAY PHILADELPHIAN

Seven Bullets Fired Into Victim After Three Machines Were Jockeyed Into Place.

FOURTEEN SHOTS FIRED

Three-Year-Old Child in Car Escapes Untouched in Rain of Lead.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—Jockeying three automobiles into position behind another car in South Philadelphia this afternoon, gangsters put seven bullets into their victim's body, sent seven others into the body of the machine or through the windshield and windows, and escaped. This latest gang murder ushered in the twelfth week of the Special Grand Jury's investigation into Philadelphia underworld activities and police graft.

The victim was Edward Rafferty, 29 years old, who was wounded in "a shooting" two years ago and was arrested and questioned in connection with a more recent slaying. In the back seat of his automobile as he drove along Reed Street, near Twenty-first Street, about 4 o'clock, was his three-year-old niece. Although the slayers fired nearly thirty shots, the child was not hurt.

At least a dozen gangsters are believed to have sent the rain of lead at Rafferty's car. His brother, James, who had been working on an automobile near the scene of the shooting, reached the car to find the driver slumped over in the seat. Taken to St. Agnes's Hospital, Rafferty died a few minutes later.

"It sounded like machine gun fire," the brother told Lieutenant Peter Sheller of the Murder Squad. "I saw three automobiles, traveling at high speed, swerve over close to Ed's machine as they came up beside it and the shots were fired at this time."

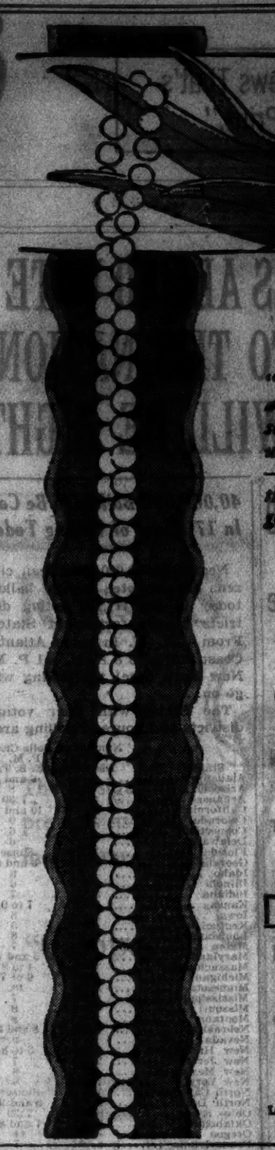
Lieutenant Sheller found a repeating shotgun and a box of shells under the back seat of the dead man's car, indicating, he said, that Rafferty had sought to prepare himself for such an attack.

A man known as "Hop" Reilly was arrested tonight, but no charge was preferred, said Lieutenant Sheller said. "We just want to ask him some questions." Reilly and Rafferty are said to have quarreled recently.

Lieutenant Sheller voiced the conviction that Rafferty had been slain as a gang reprisal, but he said that there was no information tending to implicate the victim definitely with any "racket."

Rafferty was questioned six months ago in connection with the killing of Thomas Haggerty, who, in turn, had been wanted by police as an alleged participant in a bank holdup last year in which a guard was slain.

The Special Grand Jury sat for only a short time today. The sole witness was Charles Brown, who is serving a sentence in Moyamensing Prison for bootlegging. District Attorney John Monaghan characterized Brown as "a very significant witness."



"—the rainbow formed a halo about the Gods. The moon served as a Lantern—the ruby was the fire to heat the desires—but over the heart she wore the most wondrous of all gems—a Pearl."

GAMBLERS HUNTED IN ROTHSTEIN ATTACK

Manus, said by detectives to be a part owner of one of the city's largest floating gambling games. An overcoat bearing McManus's name was found in the hotel rooms where Rothstein was shot. The detectives pictured McManus as the mediator between Rothstein and a group of Pacific Coast gamblers who had been pressing Rothstein for payment.

Police Hunt Others.

Two other card-playing, dice-shaking visitors are objects of police search. They are Myer Boston and a person known to his friends as the "St. Louis Kid." They are reported to have played with Rothstein in a game in which $500,000 in cash or in paper was in circulation.

The detectives said that no suspicion had been directed against the out-of-town gamblers, but that their evidence might prove vital in the hunt for the actual assailant. Another one of the figures of the gambling world being sought is "Billy" McCabe, a rough-and-ready character of the race tracks.

McCabe's place in the affair puzzled the police yesterday. As they understood it, he was "declared in" on a recent hug winning from Rothstein by a group of players. They had failed to collect their gains and McCabe was called in and promised a percentage on all he could collect. Detectives were anxious to find out from McCabe whether he had made any overtures to Rothstein.

They learned, they said, that McCabe had been approached by the group of gamblers to whom Rothstein was indebted to the extent of $308,000. Six big-time players, they said, had been consistently gambling with Rothstein since last September. The games up until two weeks ago were staged in a string of houses and flats rented by a man named Reilly or O'Reilly, who was known as an operator of "floating" gambling places. These are flats or hotel rooms used in turn to elude raiders.

The gambling at the start was with dice. Then poker was taken up and finally the men turned to stud poker. To gamblers of the calibre of Rothstein and his creditors, however, something even faster was required, and early last month "high spade" was the favorite. This is played by cutting a deck, the winner being the holder of the highest spade.

According to the detectives, Rothstein's usual good luck had deserted him. He had disastrous evenings at the green-topped tables and he consistently picked the wrong horses at the tracks. According to the detectives, Rothstein in one night dropped $340,000 at "high spade."

Say Rothstein Failed to Pay.

When the game broke up and payment time arrived Rothstein, the detectives were informed, said that he would be unable to meet his obligations.

"I'll probably have to sell an apartment house to meet these," he is reported to have said, "but I have this and that will wipe out some of it."

"This," according to the detectives, was $37,000 in cash when the gambler laid it upon the table, directing his creditors to split it in accordance with their winnings. Rothstein usually carried large sums of money in his pockets and was reported at one time to have $100,000 in one-thousand-dollar notes in his pockets.

"That is all I have," Rothstein was reported to have explained, "and you'll have to wait for the rest of it."

"That'll be O. K.," said one of the men. "You are good for it." Rothstein, in fact, had the reputation of being a prompt payer, and the detectives said that when he promised the winners were quick to accept the pledge. The gambler gave notes for the remainder of his debt, the police said.

Several days later, however, the winners began efforts to collect. They dogged Rothstein in his usual haunts and besought him to settle up. The gambler is reported to have turned them away by saying that he was short of money, having overinvested in real estate. He is said to own several apartment houses, a residential hotel on the upper west side and several valuable plots, including one in West Fifty-seventh Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues.

Eventually the winners began to get impatient, and one of them, detectives said, began to shadow Rothstein.

The next phase of the case was when Rothstein announced his suspicion that the game in which he had participated had been crooked. This charge from a veteran of gambling at first caused amusement along Broadway, but when Rothstein maintained his charge it was accepted, more or less, that he had been duped.

Up and down the Rialto the Rothstein charge was circulated. It reached the men who had been trying to collect. They denied it and accused Rothstein as a "welcher." But Rothstein refused to pay.

Threats Against Him Reported.

Then threats against Rothstein began to be heard, according to the detectives' informants. Some reported that a Chicago ring had threatened to collect for the winners with pistols. Others said that Rothstein was "marked" and that only the opportunity to kill him was awaited. One report was that Rothstein's death had been set for last Saturday night, twenty-four hours before he was shot. The police were unable to trace any of these reported threats.

"I'm not going to give them a cent," the police quoted Rothstein as saying in reply to the threats, "and that goes for the gamblers and the gorillas. I can be found any night at Lindy's, if they are looking for me."

It was at Lindy's, a restaurant in Broadway just below Fiftieth Street, that he was found, sipping coffee. Rothstein, who had hired several bodyguards several months ago when he reported an effort had been made to kidnap him, had dispensed with his protectors some weeks ago.

Although he was portrayed as having almost as many enemies as he had friends, and the latter as numbered in the thousands, Rothstein refused to have guards trailing him about. Thus on Saturday night he had entered Lindy's alone and sat down with some friends for coffee. At almost any hour after nightfall he could be found there, it was said. If he left he usually left word where his friends could find him.

Rothstein had been sipping his coffee for some time when a telephone call came through for him at 10:45 P. M., according to the police. He spoke briefly and then called for his hat and coat.

"McManus wants me over at the Park Central," he said, as he went out.

At 11:07 P. M. Rothstein was found staggering in the service entrance of the hotel at Seventh Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street. A bellboy noticed him and called Lawrence Fallon, the house detective. Fallon found Rothstein, whose identity was then undisclosed, barely able to support himself against the wall.

"Get a doctor," said Rothstein.

Fallon said he would get a policeman to call an ambulance. Instead, when he found no patrolman near the hotel, he summoned an ambulance. His call brought Dr. McGovern from Metropolitan Hospital.

Rothstein Ordered to Hospital.

The ambulance surgeon looked at Rothstein's wound. It was in the lower right side of the abdomen and Dr. McGovern recognized it as exceedingly dangerous. Rothstein, meanwhile, was urging that it be dressed on the spot and that he be sent home in a taxicab. He lives in West Seventy-second Street. The ambulance surgeon demurred, saying he must be rushed without delay to the nearest hospital.

"You take me to the Polyclinic Hospital then," said Rothstein sharply, "and get my own doctor for me."

The wounded man was placed in the ambulance, but before it could start, Patrolman William Davis, dispatched to investigate the call for an ambulance from the Park Central, arrived, riding on the running board of a taxicab driven by Al Bender of 158 East 117th Street, and carrying a revolver in his hand.

Bender had observed the patrolman hurrying afoot toward the hotel and had halted him. The taxicab driver said that as he had passed the hotel on the Seventh Avenue side he had seen a revolver hit the pavement near the car tracks. He had stopped his car and picked it up. It was a Colt "Detective Special," a weapon of high penetrative power with a barrel not more than two inches in length.

Patrolman Davis went on to the hospital with the gambler. Patrolman Rush, who had joined the group about the ambulance at the hotel, remained behind with Bender. The taxicab driver took Rush to the spot where he had picked up the weapon. The gun had been "broken" and all save the discharged cartridge had been ejected. A few feet from where the revolver had been found Rush picked up the five unexploded shells.

Rothstein in the meanwhile had arrived at Polyclinic. He was fully conscious and did not seem in the slightest way fearful over his wound. The wounded man was placed on the operating table almost immediately after admission. A probe was made for the bullet, but it was not recovered until late yesterday.

The examination showed that the bullet had ruptured the bladder and cut its way through the intestines. The nature of the wound caused physicians to hold out virtually no hope for Rothstein's recovery, although they said that his apparently rugged vitality might enable him to pull through. Rothstein never drank nor smoked and, although he was usually up most of the night, he always regulated his life so that he would obtain enough sleep.

After the effects of the anesthetic given him for the operation had passed away Rothstein fell into a deep sleep. Meanwhile, Detective Captain Edmund Meade and Detectives Patrick Flood and John Green had reached the hospital. With a stenographer from Police Headquarters they waited for Rothstein to awaken. Flood had known the gambler for a long time.

Early this morning Captain Meade made the first effort to get from Rothstein some information about his assailant and the place where he had been shot. The gambler, his condition critical and with physicians insisting that he be left alone, gazed steadfastly at Meade and the detectives but refused to talk.

Detective Flood moved close to the bed and recognition glinted in Rothstein's brown eyes.

"Hello, Paddy," he said, weakly.

"Who shot you?" asked Flood.

"Got nothing to say," said Rothstein. "Nothing, nothing. Won't talk about it."

At the insistence of the doctors the detectives abandoned their efforts. Detectives waited outside the room all day and last night waiting for Rothstein to reconsider. Last night extreme weakness developed and Rothstein's mind was clouded for varying periods.

Shortly after he was admitted to the hospital, his wife arrived. The gambler was estranged from Mrs. Rothstein, who lives at 912 Park Avenue. Owing to his critical state she was unable to remain by his bedside longer than minutes. Two men were with her when she was driven up in front of the hospital.

Say Her Companion Had Pistol.

Several photographers waiting to take a picture of her were blocked by her companions. The photographers later reported to the police that one of the men had threatened them with a revolver. Word of Rothstein's shooting spread like wildfire through the midtown section and within twenty minutes after he had been taken to Polyclinic some thirty of his friends had congregated in the lobby of the hospital.

Some of the friends predicted that the shooting would cause revenge attacks. Reports spread through the section that friends were planning to retaliate without delay.

When daylight came Rothstein appeared to be stronger and his attorney, Maurice Cantor, of 45 West Fifty-seventh Street, was permitted to confer with him. Cantor remained with Rothstein for an hour and then left. He was followed by scores of friends who went to the floor to which the gambler was assigned. It was not known whether any of them talked to Rothstein, but it was assumed that none did, since the police by that time had been definitely barred from talking to him.

One of the first of Rothstein's friends to appear was Edward Lindenbaum of 965 Intervale Avenue, the Bronx, the proprietor of "Lindy's." He had known Rothstein for twenty years. He told Dr. Abraham A. Jaller, Superintendent of the hospital, that if any blood transfusion were required he wished to volunteer.

Blood transfusion was decided upon later and a professional donor was selected.

The operation was performed by Dr. Edwin J. Kellogg of the hospital staff, who had probed earlier in vain for the bullet. At 6 o'clock Superintendent Jaller issued a bulletin. It read:

"The patient is resting quietly after the transfusion. His pulse is of good quality but rapid, and he is putting up a good fight."

Subsequently another effort was made to take out the bullet. This was successful, and the lead slug, nickel-jacketed, was found to have been fired from the Colt revolver picked up by Bender. The police had been tracking the whereabouts of the revolver immediately before it had jangled near the car tracks in sight of the taxi driver.

Before questioning Bender, the detectives held to the theory that the revolver had been tossed from a window of the Park Central. This led them into the hotel and they began a search. Others went to "Lindy's" to see whether they could pick up information as to which room Rothstein had been bound for when he left the restaurant. Others talked to Bender, as they examined the weapon.

They pointed out that there was no mark on the weapon such as might be sustained in a fall from a height. Bender then recollected that it had seemed to him as if the pistol had been thrown from a sedan which had been ahead of him in the traffic. The sedan was just picking up speed and Bender finally became almost certain that some one in the machine ahead had thrown out the revolver.

The detectives in the hotel, reinforced by the arrival of Inspector Coughlin and members of his staff at headquarters, learned that Rothstein had gone to Room 349 when he called on Sunday night. A room clerk told them, the detectives said, that on Friday a man had telephoned to the hotel and asked that a reservation of a two-room suite be made in the name of "George Richards."

Used Room for Three Days.

A few hours later the man appeared and in signing the register put down Newark as his home. He told the management that his stay was indefinite, but that he probably would remain in occupancy until Sunday. He used the rooms Friday and Saturday, paying each day in advance. On Sunday morning he made his usual payment. In checking over the hotel record the detectives said they learned that Rothstein himself had kept a two-room suite at the hotel for some time, paying $14 a day.

Detectives who went to the room on the third floor found two flasks of whisky, one containing a few drops and the other half full; some poker chips and a quantity of racing sheets. A number of glasses were resting in various places in the room, some of which had been used and others apparently not. The police refused to disclose whether they had been able to determine the number of men at the meeting.

Over the back of a chair in a corner a detective found the topcoat bearing McManus's name. This appeared on a label sewn in the inside pocket. The name of a tailor in West Fifty-seventh Street also appeared, and the detectives found that the coat had been made some time ago for McManus. McManus, who is a brother of Thomas J. (Hump) McManus, also said to be the operator of floating gambling places, was described by the police as a friend both of Rothstein and of the men to whom he owed money.

They pointed out that Rothstein, wary in the ways of his own, would not have ventured to a room upon the call of any one he did not trust. It developed that Thomas McManus at one time had been a detective assigned to headquarters. He was a first-grade detective from 1911 to 1914 and then left the department. He returned in 1915 and in 1917 left again.

Finds Shooting was in Hotel.

After looking over the room, Inspector Coughlin announced definitely that Rothstein had been shot there, and that the weapon, carried by one of the scattering group that had attended, had been dropped in the street from a "get-away" car.

The weapon was turned over to Lieutenant Harry Butts, pistol expert of the Police Department. The revolver, with its stubby barrel, bore the number 309946. It was made in Hartford, Conn., by the Colt Arms Company. Inquiry at the factory brought the information that Chief Inspector William J. Lahey had ordered that all information be withheld from non-police inquirers.

The revolver had been turned out at the plant within the last six months. Detectives at headquarters refused to say whether any progress had been made in tracing its history since it was shipped to a dealer. The "Detective Special" type of weapon was first used by the detectives of the Chicago force. Later the Government used it to arm part of the postoffice personnel. It is small enough to be concealed in the palm of a hand, and one of its points is that it can be fired conveniently from the pocket of a coat.

Raymond a West Coast Sportsman.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5 (AP).—Nathan Raymond, questioned tonight by New York police in connection with the Rothstein shooting, also is known as "Nigger Nate" Raymond, wealthy sportsman of San Francisco and other coast cities. Raymond was barred from all baseball parks in the Pacific Coast League in 1919 and 1920 for alleged complicity in a baseball bribe scandal.

About four months ago he married Claire Omley, film actress, in an airplane wedding over Northern Mexico. Witnesses were Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, and Gene Normile, Tiajuana concessionaire.

Raymond was said by acquaintnces to have left San Francisco two months ago.

ROOSEVELT URGES 4-YEAR STATE TERM

In Last of Five Election Eve Addresses He Promises Effort to Obtain Amendment.

HE DECRIES SPLIT TICKETS

Address at Poughkeepsie Stresses Desirability of Giving Governor Entire Support.

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Closing his campaign for the Governorship of New York State today with five meetings in this vicinity, Franklin D. Roosevelt urged his hearers to vote either the entire Democratic State ticket or the complete Republican ticket. The general tenor of his address was that the State Government should be organized as a business corporation, with all its officers in accord on the same general policy. He concluded with a speech here tonight.

Declaring that the present State campaign had shown the necessity of holding State and Presidential elections in different years, Mr. Roosevelt told an audience of more than 1,500 gathered to hear his final campaign speech that, if elected, he would propose an amendment to the Constitution establishing the four-year term for Governor with the election held in a non-Presidential year.

After recalling that the four-year term amendment was defeated in 1926, he said it was rejected by the electorate because it made the State election simultaneous with the Presidential election. In the present campaign, he said, his Republican opponent, Albert Ottinger, had spoken a great deal in support of Herbert Hoover for President and admitted frankly that he had advocated the election of Governor Smith in many of his speeches.

Decrying the practice of running for State office on national issues, he said that party tactics in the New York State campaign this year had shown the need for a separation of State and national issues.

He expressed the hope that "those Republicans who are voting for the Democratic candidate for Governor will find it in their hearts to vote for Governor Smith too." He also adjured his hearers, as he had done in the course of his seventy-mile trip during the day, to vote a straight ticket.

Professor Caroline Ware of Vassar College opened the meeting with a short address in which she said that there was "underground talk in Dutchess County that Governor Smith should be barred from the Presidency because of his religion." If the United States had not been devoted to the principle of religious freedom, she said, neither Herbert Hoover nor Governor Smith would be in this country today, for their ancestors would have been barred as Quakers and Catholics. She said Mr. Hoover had not shown the quality of leadership while Governor Smith had.

Poughkeepsie Welcomes Him.

On his way to Columbus Institute here for the largest meeting of the day, the nominee stopped briefly in the village of Hyde Park to address his neighbors in the same informal fashion he employed throughout the day. A reception committee from Poughkeepsie met him on the way and escorted him to the hall with a red fire parade.

The Poughkeepsie Post of the American Legion led the parade with its drum corps and about 500 marchers with Smith and Roosevelt banners followed. After Mr. Roosevelt's car came a band whose leader dexteriously manipulated a baton with flames spurting from each end.

At frequent intervals fireworks were set off as the procession passed through the crowds lining Main Street, and loud explosions of firecrackers punctuated the band music. Apparently the Democrats in the strongly Republican City had decided their demonstration should lack neither noise nor numbers.

Beacon Speech Informal.

Leaving his home at Hyde Park this morning the candidate drove to Beacon where he was met by a band and an automobile procession that escorted him to Bank Square where 2,000 persons were waiting. Introduced by Ferdinand Hoyt, chairman of the reception committee, the nominee told his listeners that he hoped he would receive the same support from Beacon as was given him in 1910 when he made a successful campaign for the State Senate.

His address was informal and neighborly rather than political, since he said he considered his campaign closed with the Madison Square Garden meeting on Saturday night.

Albert Conway, candidate for Attorney General, stressed the necessity of electing an Attorney General whose policies harmonized with those of the Governor.

Crosses River to Newburgh.

Crossing the river to Newburgh the party was met at the ferry by another long line of cars and a band. More than 2,000 persons gathered at City Hall Square where the candidates again spoke informally to an audience that was estimated to be fully three-quarters Republican. Mr. Roosevelt visited his aunt, Mrs. Frederick Delano Hitch, who gave the Delano Hitch Reservation to the city of Newburgh ten years ago for a park.

At Kingston the most enthusiastic reception of the day welcomed the candidates. Preceded by a band playing "East Side, West Side," their party wound through the streets of the city to the accompaniment of continued applause by persons lining the sidewalks. In the heart of the city a crowd of 1,500 persons had gathered.

Here Mr. Roosevelt made his plea to the voters to elect the entire ticket, saying that the Governor of New York State should not be elected without the other candidates on his ticket.

BOTH CLAIM CONNECTICUT.

Republicans See Large Margin, Democrats a Small One.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 5.—Connecticut is claimed for Hoover and the State Republican ticket by 75,000 plurality, in a statement by J. Henry Roraback, Chairman of the Republican State Committee. He asserted that the election of Frederick C. Walcott to succeed George P. McLean, and of all five Republican representatives is assured.

Mr. Roraback said that half a million votes will probably be cast in Connecticut for the first time and that the majority of the voters regard the tariff as the leading issue.

Thomas J. Spellacy, Democratic National Committeeman, said that Connecticut will go Democratic by a small margin, that most of the new voters are Democrats and that the small Republican plurality of 22,000 in the election of a Senator six years ago would be wiped out by the increase in Democratic voters.

An unusually hard fight has been made in the Third District to defeat John Q. Tilson, Republican Floor Leader of the House. His opponent, Dr. Nicholas Mosely, Dean of Albertus Magnus College and son-in-law of Dr. Arthur T. Hadley, President Emeritus of Yale, has made a whirlwind campaign.

SEES WOMEN FOR HOOVER.

Mrs. Slade Declares They Will Clinch His Election.

The vote of the women of the country will clinch the election of Herbert Hoover, Mrs. F. Louis Slade, Chairman of the Women's National Committee for Hoover, declared yesterday.

"Women will march to the polls today in great numbers and Mr. Hoover should profit most by the increased registration," Mrs. Slade said. "Women are aroused as never before, for they have a candidate typically to their liking, a man who made them his partners during the war, who has employed them constantly since he became Secretary of Commerce and who will continue to make use of their services when he is lodged in the White House.

"For months this committee has been cooperating with other groups in the Republican Party and has been hammering away on the independent vote and on women who never before have gone to the polls. Now we are learning that the work has not been in vain and that the women are turning out, millions strong, to vote for Hoover. Particularly is this true of the South. The solid Democratic South is a thing of the past and the women's vote will make it so."

ABSENT VOTES INCREASE.

7,000 in Chicago Get Ballots as Against 2,400 in 1926.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 5.—The anxiety of Chicagoans to vote in tomorrow's election was shown today with the announcement that all previous records were shattered this year when more than 7,000 ballots were mailed to absentees, as against 2,400 in 1926. They were coming in in great numbers today.

Colonel Dickerson Williams, who is in Los Angeles; Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, who is in New York, and Lorado Taft, the sculptor, are among those who are voting elsewhere.

Silk Strikers to Picket Polls.

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 5.—The polls will be picketed by striking members of the Associated Silk Workers tomorrow, it was announced this afternoon by Louis Stein, the Chairman of the Strike Committee, who said the action would be "a protest against the consistent disregard of the rights of labor by elected representatives of both major parties." The picketing will be non-partisan and non-political, Stein said.

ers, as a result, have had studies of the situation made, in order to determine the facts. Mexico this year has made no remittances on new account to the bankers, though back payments have been cleared up under the agreement.

Aside from the arrangement for a sliding scale of payments, which were to have reached their maximum this year, the chief feature of the 1925 agreement was a segregation of the Government's direct obligations and those of the National Railways.

News of the progress being made toward a new agreement was followed by a sharp buying of Mexican bonds traded in on the New York Stock Exchange, and these issues closed with net gains of from ¼ to ⅝ of a point for the day.

FORECASTS SUFFOLK'S VOTE

Republican County Chairman Predicts 25,000 Plurality for Hoover.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Nov. 5.—Suffolk County will give Herbert Hoover a plurality of at least 25,000 votes, according to W. Kingsland Macy, Chairman of the County Republican Committee, who has received reports from the 130 election districts in the county. Mr. Macy also predicts that Attorney General Ottinger and the Republican State ticket will carry the county by about 20,000, which is also his figure for Robert Low Bacon and George L. Thompson, who are seeking re-election to Congress and the State Senate respectively, and for the nominees for county offices.

While they admit that Suffolk is overwhelmingly Republican, James A. Early, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Democratic County Committee, and Almon G. Rasquin, Chairman of the latter, say Governor Smith will receive a much larger vote in the county than he did in any of his five campaigns for Governor and that Franklin D. Roosevelt appears to be equally as strong.

Mr. Rasquin tonight issued a statement denouncing the action of Attorney General Ottinger in appointing all Republican lawyers as special assistant deputy attorney generals to handle election matters and assist voters. He said:

"The action of Attorney General Ottinger in appointing a dozen or more Republican lawyers of this county to the position of special deputy attorney general is astounding. If they are considered a part of the election machinery, why did not Ottinger appoint some Democratic lawyers? Following the disclosures of the violations of the law by Republicans during registration, which we have taken up with the District Attorney, this brazen attempt to intimidate voters will be resented by all fair-minded Republicans and will gain hundreds of votes for Franklin D. Roosevelt on election day."

LAUDS SMITH HUMAN TOUCH

Farley Says Governor Surpasses All Previous Candidates in This.

No Presidential candidate of either party in the past has begun to approach Alfred E. Smith in the "human touch he has been able to give to great national problems," according to James A. Farley, Secretary of the Democratic State Committee, who made a final plea over the radio last night for the Democratic candidates in State and nation.

"All of the great Presidential candidates of the past whom I have named have appealed powerfully to the imagination of their followers because of their ability to coin phrases easy to understand," Secretary Farley said. "The appeal of Alfred E. Smith goes deeper than that. It is not only in phrases that he makes his appeal. His phrases serve to express ideas that penetrate beyond the minds and into the hearts of the great mass of ordinary, plain everyday working people."

Regarding the Democratic nominee for Governor, he said: "Franklin D. Roosevelt has the capacity for doing big things. He is the kind of man who will do honest things. And what he promises he will fulfill. He has promised to carry out the policies of Governor Smith. He will do it. He believes in those policies, he believes in Governor Smith and he stands four-square on the Democratic platform."

Mr. Farley took Attorney General Albert Ottinger, Mr. Roosevelt's Republican rival, to task for his failure to speak out on the prohibition issue. He was being "sold" to the up-State drys as a dry and to the New York City wets as a wet, Mr. Farley said.

MACK CONFIDENT ON SMITH.

He Predicts a "Democratic Landslide" With 272 Electoral Votes.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP).—Norman E. Mack, Democratic National Committeeman of New York for 28 years, in a statement issued today predicted the election of Governor Smith by 272 electoral votes.

Basing his prediction on "confidential, unbiased and reliable reports," he said he had received, Mr. Mack said:

"In my opinion the figures now stand at Smith 272, Hoover 202 and doubtful 57."

In his doubtful list he included Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Nevada, New Jersey, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Utah.

"Tuesday evening," he said, "will bring the tidings of a Democratic landslide and the return to the American people of personal liberty and States' rights. It will be the voice of the people akin to a referendum on the wet and dry issue. There is absolutely no doubt in my mind as to the outcome of this election."

MRS. J. A. SCHWAB FOR SMITH

Mother of Steel Magnate Plans to Cast Ballot at 7 A. M.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 5 (AP).—Mrs. John A. Schwab, aged mother of Charles M. Schwab, has announced that she hopes to be the first woman in her district to cast a ballot for the Democratic nominee tomorrow.

Mrs. Schwab tonight said she had ordered her chauffeur to be ready not later than 6:45 a. m. tomorrow so that she might reach her voting place at Loretto when the polls open at 7 o'clock.

OTTINGER EXPLAINS WATER-POWER PLAN

FOR NON-PARTISAN ACTION

Candidate Promises to Remove the Question From Politics—Radio Introduction by Tompkins.

Special to The New York Times.

NYACK, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Attorney General Ottinger, Republican nominee for Governor, discussed his position on water power in greater detail than heretofore in the campaign in speeches here tonight. Mr. Ottinger reiterated his proposal for the appointment of a non-partisan committee of experts to recommend a plan for immediate development and denied that there was any intention on his part or that of anybody else to give away a drop of water belonging to the State.

Mr. Ottinger declared that this could not be done under existing law and took a fling at Governor Smith by asserting that the latter, as an Assemblyman, voted a lease of the water power on the Long Sault Rapids on the St. Lawrence, which was upset by the courts, and by recalling that the Governor was now opposing water power leases which gave more protection to the State than the one he voted for.

"I believe in the proper and immediate development of the water power of this State under the best method that can be devised by a non-partisan committee of experts to be appointed by me after election," Mr. Ottinger said.

Denies Intention to Give Away Water

"We will take that question out of politics forever and debunk the issue. Let no man tell you that there is an intention upon the part of anybody to give away a drop of water. You cannot do it under the existing law. Once it was attempted to be done in the Legislature when the Long Sault grant was given and the courts promptly threw it out.

"Prominent Democrats who are now denouncing the water-power leases voted for the passage of the Long Sault, including the then Assemblyman Alfred E. Smith. They were prepared to enter leases in water power matters which absolutely protected the State and gave the State a right at any time to take back the property, including improvements, besides which, water-power leases were to return to the people every bit of property which they owned at the end of the lease, which amounted to $200,000,000 in value, or would in fifty years; besides which they were to pay us, when we consider the rates to the localities of the State, the equivalent of $5,000,000 a year for the use of power, and they were limited to 8 per cent. earnings, and priority in the use of water power was given to the municipalities and to the people."

Says 3 Companies Were Involved.

After declaring that the total development of water power in the State would displace 40,000,000 tons of coal a year, Mr. Ottinger continued: "The lease I refer to would have gone through were it not for the fact that three companies, not one company, harassed by threat of litigation inspired by politics, said that they would withdraw because there wasn't enough money in them for them to go through a legal battle. They were limited to 8 per cent. profit a year and they would have to fight for the privilege in the courts.

"They try to make you believe it was only the Aluminum Company. Why? Because a great Republican, Andrew Mellon, is connected with it. But it was also the General Electric Company, with Owen D. Young, it was also the du Pont Company with the du Ponts and Mr. Raskob, and they all three withdrew upon the same basis. The letter written by Representatives of one of them said that they couldn't afford to undertake the development in view of this smallness of the return, because of the threat of litigation instigated and inspired by politics.

"That is how the State's government was run; that is how the interest, your interests, were taken care of, and the great natural resources which God has given us are neglected."

Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins introduced Mr. Ottinger over the radio.

ETNA HURLS LAVA FROM NEW CRATER

By ARNALDO COTESI.

nated the danger of such panics as increased the terror of former eruptions.

The spectacle of Etna in eruption has lost none of its imposing majesty. From the latest crater a continuous stream of blazing cinders is hurled into the air skywards, giving the top of the mighty mountain the appearance of a catherine-wheel, while the glow of the volcano's fiery mouth lights up the whole sky. Two wide rivers of lava, glowing white like streams of molten steel covering vast areas and burning forests, complete the picture.

Earthquake shocks and loud subterranean rumblings often reaching the intensity of artillery firing add terror to the scene. At night the spectacle is even more imposing and it can easily be seen from Catania and Taormina.

Today the inferno-like character of the scene was heightened by a thick mist which, added to the ashes hanging in the air, completely excluded the light of the sun.

Saturday's crater having ceased its activity with the same suddenness with which it began, the danger to Santalfio seems for the moment completely over. The inhabitants in fact returned to their homes today, the stream of lava having remained stationary all the night. A few isolated houses to the north of Santalfio were destroyed, but the remainder of the village was untouched.

The new stream of lava, though still a considerable distance from human habitations with great rapidity, and disaster is feared unless the flow from the crater ceases within the next twenty-four hours.

EXTOLS WOMEN IN POLITICS.

Miss Leighton Says They Will Conserve Government.

"The part which women will play in the election tomorrow and in the future government of this nation will be more than considerable," said Miss Etta V. Leighton, Civic Secretary of the National Security League, speaking last night over WNYC. Her talk was under the auspices of the Board of Education and was amplified for an audience at the Washington Irving High School.

"Men have watched the destruction of our forms of government by slow degrees without doing anything about it, but women will serve to build up the structure because they are economizers by nature," said Miss Leighton. "Women will bring a moral element and a thirst for knowledge into politics and government. They must study the Constitution and apply it. Women do not know the meaning of the word 'impossible'!"

PREDICTS VERMONT RECORD

John Barrett Expects State to Lead Nation in Voting Ratio.

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., Nov. 5 (AP).—The prediction that Vermont will cast a larger percentage of its registered vote than any other State in the Union was made today by John Barrett, former Director General of the Pan-American Union at Washington, who returned to Vermont to vote tomorrow.

Mr. Barrett, who has been adviser on radio broadcasting for the Republican National Committee, said he based his forecast on the fact that both parties are making unprecedented efforts to get out the vote, and also because of a non-partisan appeal which he mailed last week throughout the State, urging voters of both parties to win this honor for Vermont. He said this appeal had been read yesterday in 70 per cent. of the churches in Vermont, both Protestant and Catholic.

Mrs. Eichelberger of Reno Says Dry Law Blocks True Temperance.

RENO, Nev., Nov. 5 (AP).—Mrs. Bessie R. Eichelberger, former Secretary of the Nevada Women's Christian Temperance Union, who led in the fight for ratification of the prohibition law by this State, announced in Reno today that she would cast her ballot for Governor Smith.

Mrs. Eichelberger, in making her announcement, said she did so "with sincere wishes for a sober and sane nation," and that she was in favor of Governor Smith's proposals to change the prohibition law.

She declared that conditions which she said she "could not in honesty overlook" had convinced her "that prohibition had stopped the progress of true temperance."

LIEUT DU PONT FLIES HOME.

Reaches Wilmington From Texas as Father Starts Search.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 5 (AP).—A. Felix du Pont Jr., who graduated from the flying school at Kelly Field, Texas, on Oct. 26 and was commissioned as a Second Lieutenant in the army, arrived at the flying field of H. Belin du Pont here tonight. He was accompanied by Roy Langhan, a mechanic. They came in a new pursuit type plane purchased in Wichita, Kan.

They flew first to St. Louis, from there to Dayton and then to this city. When the plane failed to arrive at the expected time, another plane bearing A. Felix du Pont Sr., father of the young flier, went up to locate him.

It circled over the city and vicinity, and just as it was becoming dusk the white and gold plane of young du Pont was sighted. The young aviator said he had been delayed by a heavy mist near Wilmington.

TWO COLLEGES NEAR FUSION

Pennsylvania Court Signs Charter in Albright-Schuylkill Merger.

READING, Pa., Nov. 9 (AP).—This afternoon Schuylkill College technically became Albright College when the Berks County Court signed the charter for the Greater Albright College. Until today the Evangelical Church was operating two co-educational colleges in the East, Schuylkill in Reading and the Albright in Myerstown.

For several years negotiations have been under way to bring the two colleges into a consolidation, which would create a representative college in the Eastern area of the Church. With the merger of the Evangelical Church and the United Evangelical Church in 1922 the first steps began and progressed slowly at first and then more markedly in the last year, until today the union of the educational leaders of this body is a reality.

Bet Odds on Smith in Wisconsin.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 5.—Governor Smith remained a 10-to-9 favorite to carry Wisconsin as the betting on the election became more brisk here today. Considerable Smith money was offered at even that the Democratic nominee would carry the State, but Hoover backers refused to take it without odds. Offers of 3 to 1 that Hoover would be elected had few takers.

Tammany Arranges to Get Returns.

Officials of Tammany Hall announced last night that the organization had arranged to have its members and guests receive election returns this evening in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue. Telegraphic and radio broadcast will furnish the returns to the Tammany Hall guests there.

Wanted Executive Salesmen

We have been asked by one of our clients to find several men, for what we regard as truly exceptional openings.

The company, which is one of the largest in the tire field, has long been an extensive advertiser, and manufactures a product unexcelled in quality. It sells direct to dealers, to whom it is favorably known throughout the country. To be considered, men must be proven successes as salesmen and must have had some executive sales experience. They must have a keen merchandising sense. Field experience is absolutely essential —preferably in the automotive field. And men must be willing to travel. Salary and bonus compensation.

We believe that these openings represent unusual opportunities: hence the men who are chosen must have exceptional and complete qualifications. HIGHEST MORTALITY LAID TO BAD LIQUOR

Dr. Gettler Says Tests Showed 800 Deaths Due to Poison Alcohol Here Last Year.

ESTIMATES TOTAL AT 2,000

Declares There Are More Speakeasies Now Than Saloons Before Prohibition.

Poison alcohol is the greatest cause of death in this city, Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, City Toxicologist, said last night in an address before the Phi Lambda Upsilon Society of Columbia University.

Dr. Gettler, who is attached to the staff of Bellevue Hospital, has made examinations of the vital organs of more than 7,000 deceased persons during the nearly eight years that he has occupied his present post. Last year the result of his examinations showed that more than 800 persons died through drinking bad liquor, he said.

The toxicologist said that while the 800 represented the number of deaths that came to the notice of the police and hospital authorities the total of deaths from bad liquor was probably nearer 2,000. The other cases, he said, occurred in private hospitals or under the care of physicians, who, in order to prevent any stigma being attached to the families of deceased persons, certified that there were other causes of death.

Comparing the number of deaths from causes other than bad liquor Dr. Gettler said that last year there were 1,121 suicides, 636 gas cases and 1,308 highway accidents that terminated fatally. He estimated that between 25 and 30 per cent. of automobile drivers killed in accidents were proved to have been intoxicated at the time of the accident.

He said that there were more speakeasies in this city today than there were saloons before prohibition. He pointed out that whereas the saloon formerly was under police regulation the present day speakeasy was not and consequently liquor of the most poisonous nature could be sold.

World War Veterans to Hear Ely.

Major Gen. Hanson R. Ely, Commanding General at Governor's Island, will be the principal speaker tonight at the annual dinner of the New York Chapter, Military Order of the World War, at the Hotel Astor.

SAYS WE BROUGHT ON OUR FOREIGN WARS

Army Speaker Blames People's Unreadiness and Indifference for Each Conflict.

America's "invitational" weakness in her armed forces has been the basic cause of her foreign wars, Colonel Samuel G. Vestal, Chief of the Historical Section of the Army War College, told members of the Government Club at their monthly meeting at the Astor yesterday afternoon. He declared that had "Washington's words of wisdom on preparedness" been followed we would never have gone to war with Great Britain, Mexico, Spain or Germany.

"The American people must assume the full responsibility of their citizenship and study questions of world-wide importance if they would avoid entanglement in international wars," he continued. "The American people themselves through their control of their Government have brought on each foreign war in which the United States has become involved. It behooves our citizens to inform themselves upon international questions and conditions, if they would have their country avoid foreign wars."

Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard, Commandant of the Coast Guard, discussed "The United States Coast Guard and Its Work." He said that in the last five years the Coast Guard had saved 15,270 lives, aided vessels in 12,370 instances and saved $148,950,000 in ships and cargoes.

Prince Alexis Obolensky, Major of the Chevalier Guards, spoke on "A Page From the Russian Revolution as I Lived It." He said he believed the next generation, if not the present one, would succeed in restoring Russia from Soviet rule.

FRANCE AND ITALY AT WORK ON TREATY

Adjustment of Differences Is Expected From Negotiations at Rome.

AFRICA A MAIN ISSUE

Italy Would Also Like a Mandate and Paris Is Unlikely to Oppose Her—Britain Kept Informed.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—It is confirmed that Paris and Rome are working on the preparation of a treaty to settle pending issues between France and Italy, notably in the Mediterranean and especially in Northern Africa. The negotiations have been carried on by Ambassador de Beaumarchais and Premier Mussolini at Rome and the hope is expressed here that they will soon be successful.

Naturally, the terms of this arrangement are being kept secret during the conversations, with which, incidentally, England is being kept in close touch. However, since one of the greatest causes of friction between Rome and Paris has been the situation of Italian colonists in Tunis under the French flag it is assumed that the proposed treaty will deal with that question. It will probably be found that the French will stand pat on the principle that all persons born under the French flag are in principle French by nationality, which Rome has contested, and, in return, it is not unlikely that Signor Mussolini will obtain a further advantage on the frontier of Tripoli. It will be recalled that two years ago England made certain concessions to Italy in Jubaland.

Another issue which has been frequently put forward by Italy is her desire to have a mandate over some territory now held by England or France under the auspices of the League of Nations. Naturally, France can make no definite promise regarding territories of which she alone does not control the disposition, but it is understood that the French may agree that if the occasion arises Paris will view with sympathy the Italian desire to have any mandate which may become available.

The new treaty, it is said, will have a general preamble setting forth the desire of the two Latin neighbors to live in peace with each other.

British Labor After 600 Seats.

LONDON, Nov. 5 (By The Canadian Press).—Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor Party announced tonight that the party had decided to fight for every seat where it had local party organizations prepared to run a candidate at the forthcoming general elections. He estimated that the party would have 600 candidates in the field.

SAYS POPE WILL ISSUE ENCYCLICAL ON NATIONS

A Roman Newspaper Forecasts Document for December—May Concern France.

ROME, Nov. 5 (AP.).—The Giornale di Italia asserts that the Pope will issue an important encyclical next month, setting forth the Holy See's position regarding its relations with governments and "the Christian constitution of the States."

Commenting on the encyclical, the paper says:

"It will not probably be a polemical document, although of a doctrinal character, for which copious amounts of material have already been compiled.

"In the choice of this material two eminent scholars, one a Jesuit and one a Dominican, have collaborated."

The newspaper adds that the text of such documents is written personally by Pius XI with the assistance of his secretary.

In circles well informed as to what is going on in the Vatican, it is thought this may be the long predicted encyclical on nationalism, aimed particularly at the Monarchist l'Action Française Party in France.

MUSSOLINI EXTOLS MOVIES.

Links Them With Printing and Photography as Epoch-Making.

FRASCATI, Italy, Nov. 5 (AP.).—Three great discoveries, each marking an epoch in hte history of humanity, were referred to by Premier Mussolini today when he opened the International Institute of Educative Cinematography at the Villa Falconieri here. They were the discovery of movable printing type in the middle of the Fifteenth Century, that of photography and that of the motion picture.

"Three fundamental steps in the progress of the human spirit; three formidable instruments for the conquest and diffusion of culture," the Premier called these discoveries. "Cinematography, which is still in the first period of its development, has this great advantage over newspapers and books—it talks to the eyes; it speaks a language comprehensible to all the peoples of the earth," he added.

The Premier rejoiced that the League of Nations had accepted Italy's offer to found the institute and hoped that its labors would be fruitful.

King Victor Emmanuel attended the ceremonies.

General Booth Passes Quiet Night.

KING GEORGE OPENS PARLIAMENT TODAY

"Beefeater" Guard Will Escort Monarch and Queen in Gilded Coach to Westminster.

LIVELY SESSION EXPECTED

Battle Over Free Trade Will Rage in Anticipation of Election Campaign Next Spring.

LONDON, Nov. 5 (AP).—The last session of the present British Parliament opens tomorrow at Westminster with King George and Queen Mary present in state on their throne chairs in the House of Lords.

The ordinary Londoner's share in the show is a glimpse of their majesties rolling through the troop-lined streets from Buckingham Palace to Westminster in the great state coach of glittering glass and gold with marching Beefeaters from the Tower of London to guard them.

From tomorrow until next Spring when a national election campaign will be in full swing here, as it is at present in the United States, British political parties, Conservative, Liberal and Labor, will jockey for position of advantage before the country's voters.

The legislative program for the Winter months will be dealt with briefly in the King's Address From the Throne tomorrow, but few measures of great international interest are expected to occupy the Commons during the session. Important debates on international questions, however, are certain to centre public interest on Commons soon after the session begins.

The Anglo-French naval agreement will draw the fire of its critics in the House, but this question will not be raised until the return of Sir Austen Chamberlain, the Foreign Secretary, whose health has been restored as a result of his tour in the West Indies, California and Canada. Sir Austen is expected in London about the middle of November.

The battle over protection and free trade will provide numerous encounters during the session. The Baldwin Government is charged with planning to extend its "safeguarding" policy to iron and steel. Liberal leaders particularly will challenge the Government on this issue, demanding a clearcut statement of the Government's intentions.

The Baldwin Government returns to Westminster with its huge majority intact. Liberals and Laborites plan to make the final session of the present Parliament as critical as possible for the Conservatives under the present ministry.

PRISON SENTENCES IN JULIAN OIL CASE

S. C. Lewis and Jack Bennett Get Seven Years Each in Federal Prison.

ALSO FINED $11,000 EACH

Another Defendant Fined $1,000—A Fourth Defendant to Be Sentenced on Wednesday.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5 (AP).—Sentences of seven years each to the Federal Prison at McNeil Island, Puget Sound, and fines of $16,000 each were meted out in Federal District Court here today to S. C. Lewis, former head of the Julian Petroleum Corporation, and Jack Bennett, alias Jacob Berman, following conviction of fraudulent over-issues of stock in that concern. C. C. Stepp, co-defendant with Lewis and Bennett, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000.

Charges against the men grew out of their asserted misuse of the mails in the sale of nearly $1,000,000 in gold bonds of the Lewis Oil Company.

Lewis and Bennett were each sentenced to serve five years in Federal Prison and fined $1,000 each on six counts of the indictment charging misuse of the mails. They were sentenced to serve two years and fined $10,000 on the count of conspiracy.

John R. Aiken, the fourth defendant in the case, who entered a plea of guilty at the start of the trial, is to be sentenced Wednesday.

Motions for new trials and arrests of judgment were made by counsel for the three convicted men.

Miss Kennedy and Miss Thelma Lorraine, both of 222 West Forty-ninth Street, testified that McCarthy approached them at Broadway and Fifty-second Street when they were on their way home early on the morning of Oct. 28, and when Miss Kennedy resented a remark made by McCarthy, the man struck her in the face with his fist. They urged leniency for the man, however, after his conviction, and were not in court yesterday.

ONCE MIGHTY CHANG POOR AND HUNTED

Jovial but Hated Ex-Tyrant of Shantung Is Likely to Seek Refuge in Dairen.

WASTED RICHES ON FRIENDS

Coolie Who Became General Entertained Lavishly While Tax-Ridden Peasants Starved.

By HALLETT ABEND.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DAIREN, Manchuria, Sept. 29.—Twelve years ago a coolie toiling on the docks of Vladivostok, then a bandit, then a "General," then autocratic ruler of 30,000,000 persons, and today a hunted refugee who is expected to arrive at Dairen on any steamer—that sums up the meteoric career of General Chang Tsung-chang, one-time Tupan of Shantung Province.

Chang Tsung-chang vanished several days ago, after the remnants of his Chihli-Shantung army were scattered just south of the Great Wall near Shanhaikwan. His remnant of 30,000 men, the last of an army which two years ago totaled 350,000, has scattered, been disarmed or joined the Nationalist forces.

Chang's No. 1 wife is here in Dairen, having been forced to flee to the protection of the Japanese city when the Mukden authorities decided to search her husband's yamen in the Manchurian capital.

Chang cannot remain hidden for long, for not only is his face known to millions of persons in North China but the former leader is 6 feet 6 inches tall and it will be almost impossible for him to adopt an effective disguise.

Chang is not yet 40 years old, but it is doubtful if he will ever make a "come-back" in political affairs. His name is anathema to the common people, north and south, and any faction which admitted him to place and power would at once become suspect.

Chang Tsung-chang is the man who, while living on a mangificently lavish scale and squandering fortunes on his favorites, callously reduced Shantung Province to abject poverty. He it is who was responsible for making conditions of life in Shantung so unendurable that millions of hardy peasants migrated to Manchuria.

At the height of his power Chang maintained a harem of thirty-three wives and concubines.

The last I saw of this man was in February, when I went to Shantung to investigate famine conditions. At that time 9,000,000 of the 30,000,000 persons in the province were either actually starving or were living upon one meal a day, a meal made up of roots, tree bark, grass and a pinch of grain. In Tsinanfu itself, Chang's capital, about 35,000 famine refugees were huddled under little V-shaped tents made of flimsy matting. They slept on the cold ground, and snow or rain blew upon them day and night.

And yet, in face of these conditions, Chang spent $25,000 on a banquet to celebrate the installation of a central heating system in his palatial yamen, a heating system which had cost $52,000. And at that banquet he served his guests upon a cut-glass dinner service with pieces enough for forty places. It had just been imported from Brussels at a cost of $40,000.

But Chang was likable. A big man, with a rolling voice, he had all the careless irresponsibility of an overgrown boy.

Millions and millions of dollars went through his hands, but he saved almost nothing. He gave money and concessions and taxing privileges freely to all who seemed to be his friends, and any man or woman who was even a fourth cousin of any member of his harem had the way opened for riches and preferment.

But he was a joke as a General, and as an administrator he was a shocking failure. His Ministers and Generals and fair-weather friends fleeced him mercilessly.

His prodigal open-handedness toward his friends was balanced by his cruelty to his people. Taxes were levied two, three and even four years in advance. When peasants could not pay he confiscated their seed grain and even tore the roof trees and beams from their mud huts and sold the wood.

The Nationalists today denounce Chag Tsung-chang. But in reality they should decorate him and give him a pension, for the former Governor of Shantung was the weak and rotten spot in the late Marshal Chang Tso-lin's organization. Had a wise administrator and a competent General been Governor of Shantung, then Chang Tso-lin probably would be in Pekin's Forbidden City today.

MONEY TANGLE HURTS MANCHURIAN BUSINESS

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Sept. 27.—The Mukden Government, now that it has decided to maintain Manchurian autonomy and to adopt an attitude of watchful waiting, instead of joining the Nationalist régime at Nanking, is giving serious thought to stabilizing the Manchurian currency, and in this measure it will have the cordial cooperation of the Japanese and Russian railroad interests in Manchuria.

At present the money tangle here levies a frightful tax upon business of all kinds. Manchuria prospers amazingly in spite of this money handicap, but would develop much more rapidly if there were a uniform and stable currency.

Suppose a traveler lands at Dairen from Tientsin. His Tientsin dollars are no good in Dairen; they must be exchanged for Japanese yen if he wants to buy a ticket northward over the South Manchurian Railway. Indeed, the yen (about 50 cents American) is the standard money in all the Japanese towns and cities along the railway.

If the traveler wants to go east or west from Harbin, he is expected to have Russian gold rubles (about 51½ cents) or else lose heavily on his yen exchange. The Chinese Eastern Railway is under Russian control.

If the traveler wants to make a trip on a Chinese line, he will have to change his money either into Mukden dollars or into Harbin dollars, according to the zone in which he boards a branch system.

Mukden uses the same silver dollars that are used in Peking, Tientsin and Shanghai, but the small silver used south of the Great Wall will not pass in Mukden. Mukden has its own paper dollars. Originally they were on a par with the yen; now one yen will buy twenty-seven Mukden dollars.

Harbin, fourteen hours away by train, one of the three large cities of Manchuria, has its own paper money. One Harbin dollar is worth 76-100 of a yen, and 74-100 of a Mukden dollar. And Harbin has, too, its own 5, 10, 20 and 30 cent paper money, which is useless elsewhere.

Suppose the traveler returns to Mukden from Harbin, and wants to mail a parcel to friends in the northern city. He goes to the main postoffice, and, while a taxicab chugs outside at $4 an hour, he has the parcel weighed. The postage is 47 cents.

He tenders in payment a Harbin dollar. Rejected.

Then a yen is offered. Rejected.

Next he offers a Tientsin banknote. Rejected.

A Peking banknote. Scorned.

Then Tientsin 10 and 20 per cent silver pieces. Handed back.

In the end the traveler will have to run his taxicab seventeen blocks to the nearest money changer, be cheated on exchange, and then drive seventeen blocks back to the postoffice. The taxi fare amounts to more than three times the cost of 47 cents' worth of stamps he has tried to buy.

GREY URGES BALDWIN SCRAP NAVAL ACCORD

Naval Parley Plan Shelved.

GENEVA, Nov. 5 (AP).—Negotiations are understood to be in progress between the interested Governments and the League of Nations as to whether the Preparatory Disarmament Commission should be convoked in January, 1929.

Proposals to hold a session of the naval experts of the five leading naval powers, including the United States, appear temporarily to have been abandoned, although the officials of some Governments feel that it would be futile to convoke the Preparatory Commission without preliminary negotiations toward establishing a naval accord.

It is believed here that Great Britain would be the likeliest of the powers to approach the United States with any new suggestion. Those in favor of holding a January session think that the naval difficulties can be discussed at that time without any preliminary meeting of experts.

Canadian Wolves Fight Dogs.

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 (AP).—A report of wolves attacking hunters' dogs was brought down from the Gatineau district by Achile Ricard, a High Constable, who has just returned from near Farrellton. The dogs were the property of the St. Hubert Hunt Club, situated between Farrellton and St. Pierre de Wakefield, and were used to round up deer at this season's meet.

POINCARE WILL QUIT IF BUDGET IS HELD

Premier Gives Near Ultimatum to Parliament to Act Before New Year.

APPROPRIATIONS OPPOSED

Estimated Expenditures Exceed the Receipts by $112,000,000—Opposition Demands Relief.

PARIS, Nov. 5 (AP).—The French Parliament, when it meets tomorrow for the second session of 1928, will be faced with the necessity of disposing of the budget before the end of the year or of dispensing with the collaboration of Premier Poincaré as head of the Government. This issue results from a near ultimatum issued by the Premier in response to criticisms of his financial proposals by the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies.

The appropriations asked for by the Government exceed the estimated receipts from present resources by 2,800,000,000 francs (about $112,000,000). The difference is made up in part by the inscription of a billion francs from reparations payments in the regular Treasury receipts, and the rest must be gotten out of the pockets of the taxpayers.

The Opposition holds that a million and a half of the increased appropriations is for the army and navy, and objects to further pressing the taxpayers for such purposes. It demands more money for the Government employes, with relief for certain categories of taxpayers.

Premier Poincaré, regarding these criticisms as a threat to the equilibrium of the budget, has flatly declared that unless a well-balanced budget is voted before Dec. 31 he will make room for another Prime Minister.

The Premier declared also that he would not consent to any diminution in the sums asked for to reinforce the national defense.

In political circles it is felt that that Radical convention at Angers has placed the Radical members of the Cabinet in a difficult situation. Resolutions were adopted requiring that the Radical Ministers retire unless the Government consented to the organization of State employes in trades unions, unless it reduced appropriations for national defense and unless it accepted the Radical Party's demand for important changes in the budget of 1929.

Since the Premier has made it clear already that he is unable to accept any one of these demands, the consquence is that the Radical Ministers will have to convince their colleagues that the Radical resolutions mean nothing, or will have to retire. The general opinion is that if they should quit Premier Poincaré would be able to for ma Cabinet without them with a sufficient majority in the Chamber to continue the program of the Union Government.

The discussion of the budget, consequently, promises to take up the whole session until the end of the year. The ratification of the Briand-Kellogg anti-war pact will probably go over to next year, along with the consideration of the war debt settlements, if they come up at all.

In the meantime French relations with Germany and the negotiations in view for anticipated evacuation of the Rhineland and for a final reparations settlement are likely to be discussed on interpellations that have been filed by several Deputies, though the Government is likely to ask that they be postponed until the negotiations have accomplished something.

Announcement of the decision was made by County Prosecutor Repetto on receipt of word from Assistant Prosecutor Hinkle, who wired from Jersey City, where Senator Richards and Assemblyman Siracusa, Republican candidates for re-election, had presented their plea to the justices for a stay.

Voters who wish to be reinstated must appear before Judge Smathers and prove they are entitled to vote.

Urges Dry Party Vote if on Ballot.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP).—James A. Edgerton, candidate for the Vice Presidency on the Prohibition Party ticket, today issued a statement asking prohibitionists to support his ticket in States where it had been filed and to support Herbert Hoover in those where it had not. He explained that the prohibition ticket had been filed "in a few States in which our vote would not affect the result" for the purpose of maintaining party identity and continuity. He urged supporters to build up after the election "a strong party for prohibition enforcement and other progressive measures."

ern Electric it will begin, on Jan. 1, 1929, operations as a company wholly owned by the officers and employes now in its employ.

The capitalization of the Graybar Electric Company will henceforth consist of $6,000,000 preferred and $3,000,000 common stock, in shares of $100 par value, all of which will be acquired by the Graybar Management Corporation. No statement could be obtained as to the assets of the Graybar Electric Company.

Buy Stock on Basis of Salary.

The proposed capitalization of the Graybar Management Corporation was not learned, but it will have a single class of stock of $100 par value, to which officers and other employes of Graybar Electric may subscribe pro rata to their salaries under three plans: An outright purchase of stock at $100 a share; subscriptions at the rate of $2 per month per share, requiring about four years to complete payments, and subscriptions at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum, to be completed in five years.

The Graybar Electric Company, under its new ownership, will remain exclusive agent for the sale of Western Electric equipment in this country, and it will continue to market other electrical products.

The change in ownership is expected to take effect primarily in the situation of Graybar Electric as regards the radio industry. It is licensed by the Radio Corporation of America to manufacture and sell radio receiving sets, which the Western Electric Company cannot sell, except to the United States Government and to the Bell system, by virtue of the patent pooling agreements at the time the Radio Corporation was formed.

The Graybar company will thus be able to occupy a leading position in the radio apparatus trade, and will market its own sets in its sixty-eight distributing centres throughout the United States.

Mr. Bloom, in his statement, further says that "since the organization of the Graybar Company the trend of its business has been toward an increasing proportion of sales of electric power and lighting supplies furnished by various electrical manufacturers."

Has Nation-Wide Sales Facilities.

The Graybar Electric Company has, since its inception, developed a nation-wide chain of wholesale warehouses for improving distribution of products marketed by it, taking in all of the larger cities and most of the important towns in every State. On Sept. 1, 1928, the company announced the inauguration of a new national system of dealer franchises involving the allocation of exclusive sales rights for Graybar radio receiving sets to approximately 3,000 dealers in the United States. On Aug. 24, 1928, Graybar Electric announced a "new type" circuit to be used commercially in home radio receiving sets. The new circuit utilizes the superheterodyne principle, with alternating current tubes throughout for simplified electric operation.

A. L. Salt is President of the Graybar Electric Company, F. A. Ketcham is Executive Vice President, G. E. Cullinan is Vice President in charge of sales, L. M. Dunn, Vice President in charge of merchandising and accounting, E. W. Shepard, Treasurer, and N. R. Frame, Secretary. The company's headquarters are in the Graybar Building, New York City.

The Western Electric Company's first step in segregating its telephone manufacturing business occurred in 1923 when the Supply Department of the Western Electric Company was organized. Graybar Electric was incorporated Dec. 11, 1925, in New York State, with a perpetual charter. Now, from a fully-owned subsidiary, it will become an entirely independent organization. The present organization is already the largest distributer of electric supplies in the United States.

Other segregations or separations by which Western Electric restricted its business to the telephone field have occurred over a period of years. On Dec. 27, 1924, the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., was organized to take over the scientific and research work in communications formerly performed by the Western Electric Company and purchased the Western Electric laboratories at 463 West Street. Its $100,000 capital is owned jointly by the Western Electric and the American Telephone and Telegraph companies.

On Sept. 30, 1925, the Western Electric Company sold to the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation the International Western Electric Company, to limit its sphere of action substantially to the United States and Canada.

On Dec. 20, 1928, Electrical Research Products, Inc., was incorporated and took over on Jan. 11, 1927, the commercial development of Western Electric products outside the telephone field. By taking over the Vitaphone Corporation, and by developing the Movietone, this subsidiary leads at present in the manufacture and development of talking motion pictures and has contracts with a majority of the leading moving picture producers of this country.

GIVES HOOVER 400 IN ELECTORAL VOTE

Chairman Work Bases Prediction Upon Reports of Republican Regional Leaders.

URGES EARLY BALLOTING

He Warns of Congestion at the Polls —Fort Says New York and Bay State Will Be Won.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Dr. Hubert Work, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, sent a telegram from his home in Pueblo, Col., to the Republican National Committee here tonight, predicting that Herbert Hoover would obtain at least 400 electoral votes.

Franklin W. Fort, Secretary of the Committee, in a statement made earlier in the day, claimed that the Republican ticket would receive at least 350 electoral votes and that Republican success appeared assured in New York and Massachusetts.

"Reports to Republican headquarters during last week from National Committee members and State chairmen warrant the prediction of 400 Republican electoral votes for Hoover and Curtis on Tuesday," said Dr. Work in his telegram.

"The largest registration in the history of the country will congest the polling places, and many may be prevented from casting their ballots late in the day.

"The greatest activity among precinct workers is important in a vote-early campaign. The only necessary thing for Republicans to do now to insure the greatest popular vote ever given to a Presidential nominee is to get the voter to the polls early."

In his statement Mr. Fort said:

"The campaign is over. The Republican National Committee has from the outset conducted its campaign as was announced in June for Hoover and Curtis and not against anybody or anything. The result of this policy has undoubtedly been to bring a wider understanding to the people of the nation of the superb character and unparalleled achievements of Herbert Hoover and of the real connection between prosperity and Republican policies.

"The further result has been to render even more certain the sweeping victory which was indicated in June. We have not the slightest doubt that Hoover and Curtis will receive both the largest popular vote and the largest popular majority ever given to any candidate.

"If we were to accept without question the enthusiastic confidential reports of our State leaders, which we have received in the last three days, we would claim every State outside of the Solid South and at least five States in the South. We believe this result is possible, although perhaps by small majorities in some of the States.

"But, discarding all reports which seem overtinctured with optimism, there is not the slightest doubt that if all the people vote who intend to vote the Republican ticket will get not less than 350 electoral votes.

"President Coolidge has never been wrong in his judgment of the American people and, in his telegram to Mr. Hoover he described his election as 'sure.'

"In the last two weeks I have personally visited and checked conditions in the States of Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, North Carolina and Virginia and believe that in the so-called doubtful States of Massachusetts and New York Republican success is assured and in Virginia and North Carolina probable.

"My own State of New Jersey will give Hoover and Curtis not less than 250,000 majority."

There was little evidence of political activity here today. Practically all of the leaders have left the capital.

WALKS HERE FROM PERU.

Youth Ends Two-Year Hike After Two Companions Die, Two Quit.

On July 11, 1926, five Peruvian Boy Scouts started out from Chepen, Peru, to walk to New York for a prize. Last night Augusto Flores, one of the five, arrived in New York. The prize, he says, has been recently withdrawn, and of the other four hikers, two died on the way and two were taken ill and returned home.

The lone survivor who arrived last night is 18 years old and the son of an automobile importer. His adventures, he said, included being captured by bandits in Nicaragua and Mexico and escaping another gang of bandits by crossing the border into Texas.

Throughout the United States the young hiker found hospitality everywhere. Boy Scouts, Lions, Kiwanis and Rotary clubs made him their guest in many towns. He proudly displayed last night a notebook in which were the signatures of the Mayors of many towns through which he passed.

Flores will pay a visit to Mayor Walker this morning and on Wednesday afternoon will speak over Station WOR. After visiting a number of persons to whom he has letters of introduction, he plans to return to Peru by steamship as soon as possible.

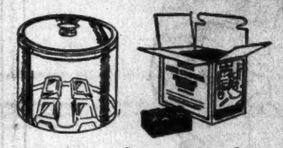
SHOPPING WITH JANET GRAY AT LEWIS & CONGER

'Is this a new brand of coffee?" asked the Big Chief. "It's got real flavor!" It was the same coffee we'd always used, but I'd made it in my new French Coffee Biggin. Coffee in the top, boiling water over it to filter through. That's all—but it certainly brings out the flavor. These Biggins come in brown or green heat-proof china; 2-cup size, $1.25; 3-cup, $2.00; 5-cup, $2.75.

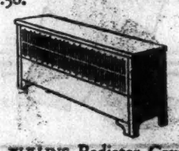
THE best way I know to get rice light and dry is to use the Rice Ball. Put the rice in this perforated aluminum ball and drop it into a pot of boiling water. When the rice is done, let the water drain off. Then a few shakes, and the rice is beautifully light. Never burns, or sticks, or gets soggy, cooked this way. $2.25.



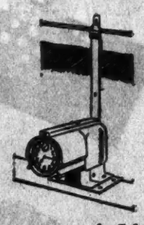
IN our house we like cheese. But it so often dried up, I used to get quite discouraged. And then I discovered the Cheese Preserver. This is a round covered glass jar with space at the bottom for vinegar and salt—which keeps the cheese fresh. It costs only $1.00.

IF you have an open fireplace and dislike the muss and bother of kindling and paper, try Dixie Firelighters. They're rosin treated briquettes and they'll set the logs blazing merrily without further ado. Inexpensive, too. A package holding 8 dozen Dixies is only $2.75.

THE Bakepot contains pans suitable for custards, baked apples, potatoes, muffins, or even a cake. And you can cook two things at the same time—over one burner on top of the stove. The base is cast iron and the five pans are aluminum $7.50.



MULLINS Radiator Covers conceal ugly radiators, prevent smudgy walls, moisten the heated air and force it right out into the room where it does most good. They come in a variety of ready-made sizes so that practically any radiator can be covered in very short time. Reasonably priced according to size.



NO more do I hop out of bed in the chill gray dawn to close the window. I've bought myself one of those new Window Closers. It fastens to the window ledge and has a coiling spring that hooks onto the window itself. I set its clock for about half an hour before getting up time. At the appointed hour, the clock releases the spring and down slides the window noiselessly. $13.50.

RASKOB DISCLAIMS ACCUSING CHURCHES

He Tells Rector No One at Headquarters Laid Bigotry to Protestant Branches.

REPORTERS BACK DENIAL

The Rev. A. W. Brooks Says Groups Attacking Governor's Religion Have No Church Connection.

John J. Raskob, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, denied yesterday that he or other spokesmen for the Democratic Party had directly or indirectly accused the Protestant churches of America of having inspired the "whispering" campaign against Governor Smith. The denial came in response to a challenge from the Rev. Arthur Brooks, rector of Christ Church By-the-Sea, Broad Channel, Queens, for the presentation of evidence that the Protestant churches had engaged in a "religious intolerance campaign."

The Rev. Mr. Brooks based his challenge on his interpretation of an advertisement sponsored by Tammany Hall which embodied quotations from a speech by Mayor Walker in Newark. The Mayor had declared that no one had questioned the Unknown Soldier about his religious faith. The Broad Channel rector believed the advertisement hit at Protestant churches.

Reporters Back Raskob Denial.

Mr. Raskob brought the clergyman to the room at National Committee Headquarters, where he has been holding his conference with the newspaper men throughout the campaign. He asked the reporters to bear him out in his assertion that neither he nor any other person at Democratic National Headquarters had ever accused the Protestant churches of inspiring the "whispering" campaign against Governor Smith. The reporters assured Mr. Brooks of this.

After some discussion between Mr. Raskob and the clergymen in the presence of the newspaper men, the Democratic National Chairman dictated a formal denial "for the record" as follows:

"The Rev. Arthur W. Brooks, pastor of Christ Church-by-the-Sea at Broad Channel, L. I., called upon me today and stated that he was under the impression that the Democratic National Committee had charged the Protestant Church with inciting and fomenting religious bigotry and intolerance. I deny any such charge and claim that the Democratic National Committee has openly fought those who are inciting religious hatred and bigotry in violation of the Constitution of the United States, believing that it is not good Americanism, and that we have never had occasion to know or to believe that the Protestant Church in any of its branches has authorized any of these attacks, or have been responsible for them."

"I think it is a magnanimous thing for Mr. Raskob to do," said the clergyman. "I want to say, and I think I can speak for the Protestant Church as a whole, that the Protestant churches as a whole believe in the Constitution of the United States, and furthermore that they believe that a man's religion should not be a test for holding any public office, and I think you will find that running through and through Protestantism, except maybe some crank here and there that may make a statement to the contrary. That is my position, and I think I can express that for the majority of Protestant ministers."

"I told Dr. Brooks that the newspaper people were here now and asked him to come over here with me," Mr. Raskob said. "I do not like to issue a denial of such a statement at this late date. It looks like a cheap political trick, but he said he did not think so."

Pastor Denies Church Activity.

The Rev. Mr. Brooks then read extracts from the letter he had sent to Chairman Raskob, following his perusal of the Unknown Soldier advertisement. The part that led to yesterday's meeting read as follows:

"I challenge the Democratic National Committee to produce such specific evidence as will actually establish the fact showing where, when and under what circumstances, responsible and official bodies of our Protestant churches have engaged in a religious intolerance campaign and opposed and urged the defeat of Governor Smith or any other candidate for the sole reason of their or his being a Roman Catholic."

He followed this with a declaration that the bodies which appeared in connection with such attacks on the Governor were not officially identified with any Protestant church.

"I would have to see their names on a church register to believe that the sponsors of these attacks actually are professing Protestants," he said. "I am speaking about the Ku Klux Klan and other kindred organizations."

"Well, what is your opinion about these?" was asked.

"I think that they are simply devoted to the propagation of a lot of filth, and no American citizen can respect them for it," was his reply. "You may quote me for that."

"No matter who attacks Governor Smith's religion," Mr. Raskob then said, "it is perfectly correct to say that nobody asked about the religion of the Unknown Soldier, as was stated in the advertisement which, by the way, this committee did not sponsor. I do not think it is correct to say that because the Protestant Church did not attack Smith on religious grounds he was not attacked because of his religion. Let us say it was a lot of heretics who did it. The Democratic Party would have just as much right to run that advertisement. It does not make much difference who made the attack.

"We had been aware for a long time of the sort of campaign that was being waged against the Governor by the Ku Klux Klan and other similar organizations, but it was not until a letter written by Senator Moses of New Hampshire (one of the Hoover campaign managers) soliciting publicity for a scurrilous attack on the Governor on religious grounds came out that we charged the Republican National Committee, not the Protestant churches, with promoting that campaign of bigotry and intolerance."

The Raskob "Chamber of Horrors," conducted in a store on the ground floor of the General Motors Building, had capacity audiences all day yesterday who scanned the hundreds of exhibits that were shown there to illustrate the character of the underground campaign against the Governor. It was said that as a result of the display the staff of James W. Gerard, Treasurer of the National Committee, was so overworked accepting contributions from visitors to the exhibition that reinforcements had to be called. It was said that about 1,500 persons had called during the day and left small contributions for the campaign fund.

ROBINSON RECEIVES OVATION AT HOME

Nominee Makes His Final Speech Before a Great Crowd at Little Rock.

PREDICTS PARTY VICTORY

Praises Smith's Record and Attacks Hoover—Says Farmers Will Decide Election.

Special to The New York Times.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 5.—Senator Robinson came home today from his 35,000-mile campaign trip and Little Rock turned out all its bands and lighted all its torches to let him know that he was welcome back.

Probably the greatest political demonstration the State ever has known marked the home-coming of the Democratic Vice Presidential candidate at the end of the strenuous campaign he has waged through thirty States. And tonight there seemed to be no doubt about Arkansas giving its usual majority for the Democratic ticket in the voting tomorrow.

Senator Robinson came home this morning and was greeted formally at the station by committees of leading citizens, and it was a genuine tribute to the high esteem in which the city holds its United States Senator and its candidate for the second highest office in the land. But late this afternoon the entire population of the city turned out to pay their tribute to a distinguished and trusted fellow-citizen.

The tired, though apparently happy and confident, campaigner rode for several miles through the main streets of Little Rock and North Little Rock at the head of a parade that included thousands of automobiles bearing pictures of the Senator and Governor Smith and placards pledging support of the Democratic ticket.

There were many cars from other sections of the State in the procession and there were many visitors mingled with the Little Rock crowds that lined the streets from the start of the parade to its end at the State Capitol grounds, where Senator Robinson made his last speech of the campaign before a great crowd assembled on the grounds, while thousands throughout the State and elsewhere heard his final appeal over the radio.

Lauds Smith, Attacks Hoover.

In his speech Senator Robinson predicted victory for the Democratic Party, praised Governor Smith and attacked Herbert Hoover and the Republican Party. He was loudly cheered, and cries of "Pour it on, Joe!" were heard during every pause. pause.

Senator Robinson accepted the recent challenge of Charles Evans Hughes for a comparison of the qualities of leadership as shown by Governor Smith and Mr. Hoover. He recalled the many progressive measures sponsored by Governor Smith in New York, related that he had been a candidate for office seventeen times and had been defeated only once, showing, he said, the great confidence of the New York people in him.

"Mr. Hoover has never been a candidate before," declared the Senator. "He had never run for office either in the United States, Great Britain, China or Japan."

The Senator then recalled the Harding and Coolidge vetoes of the Veterans Adjusted Compensation acts and contrasted that with Governor Smith's action in championing the passage of a bonus bill by the New York Legislature.

Praises Smith on Hospitals.

"While the national Administration was wasting the funds provided for the care and comfort of sick and disabled soldiers, and grafting in contracts for hospital sites and for the sale of public property, Governor Smith was urging the construction by New York of hospitals for her own soldiers," said the Senator.

"During the eight years that Mr. Hoover has served as Secretary of Commerce, he has made no suggestion, championed no measure of recognized importance.

"While fellow Cabinet officers were looting the Government and grafting in the naval oil reserves; while the heads of Veterans' Bureau and the Allen Property Custodian's office were robbing and plundering the Government and depriving its wards of their rights and privileges, Mr. Hoover remained as silent as the sphinx. He did not demonstrate that 'rare courage in leadership and constructive action' of which he boasted in his acceptance speech and in the New York address."

Senator Robinson brought forth prolonged applause in the following comparison of the two candidates:

"When Governor Smith makes a speech every one understands what he says and knows where he stands. When Mr. Hoover reads an essay on any political subject it is harder to tell where he stands after he reads it than before."

Sends Message to Governor Smith.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 5 (AP).—Following his homecoming celebration tonight Senator Robinson telegraphed Governor Smith his confidence that the New York Governor will be elected tomorrow. The telegram follows:

"Mrs. Robinson and I thank you for your cordial message. We are confident that you will be chosen President tomorrow and that you will carry into that high office the same notable ability and devotion to the public welfare which has marked your Adminfstrations as Governor. Your speeches have been forceful and effective. My confidence in you has made my campaign labors a real pleasure. Receive and communicate to Mrs. Smith and the other members of your family, particularly including your lovely grandchildren, affectionate regards from Mrs. Robinson and myself.

"JOE T. ROBINSON."

FARM ILLS HIT LABOR, COPELAND DECLARES

Senator Says Democratic Plan for Relief Will Prevent Overcrowding of Cities.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, Democratic candidate for reelection, in closing appeals to the voters over the radio yesterday declared that unless the Democratic Party won today and applied its formula for farm relief, the country would soon witness breadlines in the big cities.

"The condition of the farmer," he said, "is of tremendous interest to the urban dweller. In it lie potential dangers to the laborers in the city crafts. If the farmer fails, he goes to the town or city to add to the number of workers there. Overcrowding in the greater centres means undue competition and lowered wages for them.

"It is a sad commentary upon the present situation to learn that the farmers last year received $7,500,000,000 for their crops, but when those same products came to the consumers the latter paid $22,500,000,000—twice the income of the farmers was added to the value of farm products before they reached the consumer. For eight years the Republicans have been in full control of the Government. Why has that party not found and enacted into law an effective farm relief measure?"

In another radio talk last night Senator Copeland defended himself against charges made by Senator Jesse H. Metcalf of Rhode Island in relation to his votes on tariff measures.

"I defy him or any one else to point to one single act of mine tending to lower the tariff to the detriment of American business," he said. "I am a high-tariff Democrat. My discussion on the matter of reducing the excessive tariff on building materials, just following the war, was in accordance with the position taken by the Republican majority in Congress, a position which was forced by the Democratic minority, in order to facilitate the erection of homes in America at the conclusion of the world conflict."

HOOVER ODDS 5 TO 1 ON EVE OF ELECTION

But Commissioners in Wall St. Quote 5 to 5 on Smith to Win New York State.

2½ TO 1 PUT ON ROOSEVELT

Betting Is Lightest in 25 Years—One Source Sets Total of Wagers Under $1,000,000.

Closing odds on the election as quoted by betting commissioners in Wall Street yesterday were as follows:

Hoover to defeat Smith, 5 to 1.

Roosevelt to defeat Ottinger, 2½ to 1.

Smith to carry New York State, 6 to 5.

Hoover to receive 350 electoral votes, even money.

Hoover to receive 400 electoral votes, 1 to 3.

That Hoover does not carry two of the eleven Southern States, even money.

That Hoover carries New Jersey, 2½ to 1.

The feature of the rather meager betting in Wall Street yesterday was a withdrawal of a considerable amount of Smith money. The odds, which rose to 5 to 1 on Saturday, from the previous 4 and 4½ to 1, were unchanged yesterday. From every indication the betting on this election will be the smallest in the last twenty-five years. Considerable amounts of money deposited yesterday were to be wagered on Hoover at 4 to 1, but these offers were not accepted, and such wagers as were made, most of them small ones, were at the prevailing odds of 5 to 1, the highest figure which has been touched in the present campaign.

Probably the outstanding development yesterday in the Wall Street betting was the withdrawal of some offers which had been made last week to bet on Smith at the lengthened odds. There was considerable Hoover money at the close last night, as yet uncovered, at the prevailing odds, 5 to 1.

There is no manner in which an estimate of the total amount wagered in Wall Street may be gained, although one commissioner set the total at less than $1,000,000.

A few bets were reported in the financial district as high as 6 to 1, but these were of amounts not sufficient to sway the prevailing quotations. One bet of $6,000 to $1,000 was made.

It was reported that William T. Durant had bet $1,000,000 against $200,000 with M. J. Meehan on Hoover. This report was promptly denied at the offices of Mr. Durant and Mr. Meehan.

BAY STATE STILL DOUBTFUL.

Smith and Hoover Managers Predict Party Pluralities.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 5.—The close tonight of the bitterest election campaign Massachusetts has had for years leaves the State still doubtful.

The large increase in registration, the conflict among racial groups and the uncertainty as to what the new women voters will do contribute to cloud the outlook.

Frank J. Donahue, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, predicted tonight that Governor Smith would carry the State by 60,000 to 70,000 votes, carrying in Senator Walsh and Brig. Gen. Cole to victory with him. Louis K. Liggett, Republican National Committeeman, was equally confident in his assertion that Hoover would win probably by 100,000 at the least, with another 50,000 added if the weather is good.

Lieutenant Governor Allen, the Republican nominee for Governor, probably will win. But Brig. Gen. Charles H. Cole, the candidate of the Democrats, has made a strong campaign.

The Legislature will be, as usual, strongly Republican.

DIFFER ON ILLINOIS VOTE.

Democrats Predict 200,000 Plurality for Smith, Republicans 500,000 for Hoover.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The great silent vote will put Illinois's twenty-nine electoral votes in the Smith column by a plurality of 200,000, according to a prediction today of Illinois Democratic leaders who were heartened by advices from down-State lieutenants.

While Thomas F. Donovan, Democratic State Committeeman, termed the predicted 200,000 Smith victory in this State "conservative," David E. Shanahan, Republican State campaign manager, looked for a Republican majority of 500,000 for Hoover and the entire Republican State ticket.

The bitter campaign between Louis L. Emmerson and Floyd E. Thompson, Republican and Democratic Gubernatorial candidates, and between Otis F. Glenn and Anton J. Cermak, Republican and Democratic nominees for Senator, and, more particularly, the lively contest for State's Attorney in Cook County, in which the severance of the alliance between crime and politics has been the paramount issue, assures an unprecedented turnout of the voters.

3,000 CHEER MRS. SMITH.

Governor's Wife Is Guest at Democratic Rally in Harrison, N. Y.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISON, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Mrs. Alfred E. Smith was guest of honor at a Democratic rally tonight in the township where Colonel Herbert H. Lehman, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, has his Summer home. More than 3,000 persons crowded the Biltmore Theatre and greeted Mrs. Smith with cheers as she walked to the platform, accompanied by Mrs. Lehman and Mrs. Teresa V. Earl of Rye.

Mrs. Caroline O'Day, Democratic National Committeewoman, presided, and speakers included Colonel Lehman and the Democratic candidates for county offices.

STAMFORD, Conn., Nov. 5.—A few weeks ago the Rev. Roy E. Manns preached a sermon in the First Methodist Church here telling why he was a Protestant and mentioned the Catholic Church. This morning Mr. Mann found the doors and bulletin board of his church plastered with printed signs extolling Governor Smith and denouncing Herbert Hoover.

13 HURT IN RIOT ON ELECTION EVE

Republican Parade in Worcester Showered With Eggs and Bricks.

WOMEN ARE MANHANDLED

Girls Pulled From Automobile Truck and Their Clothes Torn.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 5 (AP).—Thirteen persons, including a policeman, were injured, 10,000 marchers were showered with bricks, eggs and refuse, and women were manhandled here tonight in disturbances which developed during an "election eve" Republican demonstration.

Patrolman Harry Hyde was beaten senseless and several of his teeth were knocked out when he attempted to break up a fight. Mrs. Lloyd Byrd of this city was taken to a hospital after a horn she was blowing had been shoved down her throat.

The police were unable to make any arrests, as prisoners were torn from their grasp and the officers threatened by hundreds of men.

Most of the action took place in the "Meadows" district of the city, near East Park, where the demonstration came to a close with a fireworks display. Several store and house windows in the district were shattered by stones.

Mrs. Frank B. Hall, wife of a member of the Republican State Committee, was pulled from her place in the parade and manhandled by a group of the hecklers before she was rescued. As the parade entered East Park a group of girls parading in an automobile truck as representatives of an industrial plant, were pulled from their seats and their clothes were torn.

"Hoover" signs were torn from the marchers as they entered the park by men who used them as clubs. The marchers formed into a square to witness the fireworks and they promptly became the targets for more eggs. Oil, in all forms, was heaved from the top of a cliff in the park down upon the heads of the singing Republicans.

HELD FOR FIRE IN HIS STORE

Proprietor Admits Plan to Get Insurance, the Police Say.

Isadore Auslander, 45 years old, of 1,153 Longfellow Avenue, the Bronx, the father of three children, was held without bail yesterday by Magistrate Glatzmayer in Morrisania Court for Grand Jury action on a charge of first degree arson in connection with a blaze after midnight in his candy store at 1,462 Hoe Avenue, the Bronx.

Auslander, according to the police, admitted he poured gasoline on his stock and left two candles burning on the shelves, intending to burn out the store to collect $2,500 insurance. Shortly after midnight the candle light caused the gasoline fumes to explode in the closed store. The five families in the house above the candy store were aroused and hurried to the street.

The fire was quickly put out by firemen. The heavy odor of gasoline aroused their suspicions and an investigation was started. Auslander, found in bed at his home, was taken to the Simpson Street station, where at first he protested his innocence, but eventually confessed.

GANGSTER FREED IN HOLDUP

Clerk Refuses to Identify Garafalo and Five Others.

Sylvester ("Big Man") Garafalo, Bronx gangster, was discharged with five others yesterday by Magistrate Glatzmayer in Morrisania Court in connection with a hold-up on Oct. 22. Assistant District Attorney Edward O'Gorman had explained that Sidney Cohen, clerk for Wilson & Co., packers, of 645 Brook Avenue, the Bronx, could not identify any of them as being among the robbers who shot him at 155th Street and Third Avenue when he refused to give up $800 in cash and several thousand dollars in checks which he was taking to a bank.

Garafalo is 29 years old and lives at 251 East 151st Street, the Bronx. He was arrested with the five other men at 154th Street and Morris Avenue on Oct. 28 on suspicion of being implicated in the Cohen shooting. His companions were Artie Palumbo, 25, of 696 Courtlandt Avenue; Louis Zaccardi, 24, 231 East 151st Street; Anthony Voglio, 28, of 616 East 151st Street; John Russo, 22, of 1,912 Edison Avenue, and Philip Reitano, 18, of 696 Morris Avenue, all of the Bronx.

All except Russo and Reitano have criminal records.

SIMON HEARS INDIAN VIEWS.

Hindus and Moslems Make Proposals to British Committee.

LAHORE, India, Nov. 5 (Canadian Press, via Reuters)—The Simon Statutory Commission, formed to study conditions in India with a view to recommending to what further extent self-government can be granted, is getting to close grips with the problem of devising a scheme reconciling the differing political views.

Sitting as a "joint free conference" in conjunction with a deputation appointed by the Legislature, the committee today first heard the Hindu and then the Moslem viewpoint. The Hindu deputation opposed any reform, if any form of communal representation were to be continued. It favored a strong central Government and urged that the Provincial Ministry should be formed of representatives of all communities.

The Moslem deputation, led by Sir Mohammed Shafi, insisted on a separate electorate as the only safeguard of Moslem interests. He contended that Hindu agitation against the separate electorate was aimed at creating an oligarchy.

Sir Mohammed advocated adult suffrage for the Provincial Council and that residuary powers should rest with the Provincial Government. If communal electorates were withdrawn, he said, Moslems would urge the withdrawal of existing reforms.

HUGHES SAYS SMITH LACKS REAL ISSUES

In Radio Address He Asserts Nominee Has No Foreign, Tariff or Farm Policy.

OPPOSES POWER PROPOSAL

Ex-Secretary Declares Oil Leases Never Were Discussed in Harding and Coolidge Cabinets.

In his final speech of the campaign last night over the radio from his home at 1,020 Fifth Avenue, Charles Evans Hughes declared that "clamor and claptrap will not determine the election" and charged that Governor Smith's trouble has not been the absence of debate, but the lack of real issues. Mr. Hughes's speech was broadcast over the WOR network and by Station WBNY, which was linked up with a large number of other stations throughout the country. He began speaking at 11:35 P. M.

Summing up the campaigns of the two major candidates, Mr. Hughes declared that Herbert Hoover had made an able and dignified campaign.

"Herbert Hoover," he said, "has discussed his principles and policies in speeches that reveal a sound philosophy of government and his specific application of that philosophy. They hold much better promise for the future than depreciation, misrepresentation and attack. There is no reason why a campaign for the Presidency should be a shindy."

"Let us examine the situation," said Mr. Hughes. "The whole field of foreign relations has been left virtually untouched, a tribute to the Republican Administration in a trying period. In domestic affairs the Republican Administration has been signalized by economy and reduction of debt. Is there any real issue in that? The Democratic Party has no issue, either as to politics or methods, but simply shocks the public sense of fairness by its depreciation of the results attained under the wise administration of our fiscal affairs by President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon.

Differences on the Tariff.

"There is a historic difference between the political parties as to the policy of a protective tariff. What issue is made up as to that? The country has done so well under the Republican tariff policy that Governor Smith has spent most of his time in attempting to quiet fears lest it be changed. The platform of the Democratic Party declares for a reduction of duties and for effective competition, which can be had only through the introduction of foreign goods of a cheaper production. Governor Smith backs away from his platform and asserts that there will be no general tariff revision. He says that the Democratic Party has learned from experience that general revisions make uncertain business conditions which interfere with prosperity. He says that the Republican tariff will be amended only as to specific schedules after careful study—'by a properly constituted, intelligent, forward-looking, fact-finding tariff commission.'

"This does not look like a keen yearning for debate over the policy of protection. It looks more like an effort of a distinguished Democrat to get office by running away from the tariff issue of his platform. But Governor Smith still wishes the Democratic Party to decide on what is 'intelligent and forward-looking' and the people naturally distrust this ability, remembering the time-worn promise of the Democratic Party that it would adjust the tariff so that it would be 'fair to all interests.' The country is not likely to consider the policy of a protective tariff safe in the hands of those whose most sacred tradition is bitter opposition to it."

Taking up the question of agricultural relief, Mr. Hughes said that Mr. Hoover had stated his policy and his program, and reiterated Mr. Hoover's warning that an "adequate tariff is essential if we would assure relief to the farmer." Mr. Hoover, the former Secretary of State declared, had proposed a definite plan for agricultural aid through a Federal Farm Board. And Mr. Hughes also asserted that Mr. Hoover was intent upon a great system of waterways, "the development of which he can promote because of his engineering knowledge better than any one else."

Control of Surplus Crops.

"Now in what sense," Mr. Hughes demanded, "is an issue presented? Governor Smith says that the solution 'lies in control of the exportable surplus with the cost of that control assessed back against the crop that is benefited.' But controlled by whom? In what way? With what powers? To what extent? Governor Smith has not enlightened us. We have asked specific questions intending to bring out whether he intends that the Government shall buy and sell and fix the price of farm products; whether he intends to erect a gigantic bureaucracy over the farmers of the country; and if not, how he expects to have his plan work.

"As to water power, we find no issue as to the retention in Government ownership of what the Government owns, or as to full and complete control by the Government through regulation in the public interest. Governor Smith has nothing additional to offer unless it is to put the Government into business on a colossal scale to nobody's benefit and in defiance of fundamental American principles.

"In default of other issues an attempt has been made to make one out of the Eighteenth Amendment. An ambitious scheme was proposed which wholly failed to stand analysis. I have discussed this subject and have endeavored to show why I consider it as a sham issue. How can there be any escape from the conclusion that Governor Smith's election, in view of his attitude, would lead to far greater demoralization than we now have and would retard rather than advance the solution of our difficulties?

"We have been glad to find in Mr. Hoover's speeches a clear conception of the functions of our Government and a determination not to introduce it unnecessarily into business, to the injury of Government and business alike. We find no such fundamental convictions in Governor Smith's speeches."

At the start of his speech Mr. Hughes again referred to his 'unwearied calumniators" who have taunted him with being in the Cabinet when the oil lands were turned over to Sinclair. The former Secretary of State said that, so far as he knew, none of the oil leases was ever brought into the Cabinet even for discussion. The same charges, he said, had been made against President Coolidge and Mr. Hoover, neither of whom had ever heard the oil leases discussed during a Cabinet meeting in the Harding Administration.

"I do not believe," Mr. Hughes said, "that this attempt to besmirch will succeed or that it will divert attention from the real questions of the campaign."

"Partisanship," he declared, "has given us much unjust criticism and many regrettable aspersions. But partisanship cannot change the facts. No detraction can alter the proved qualifications of Herbert Hoover. His is the 'arduous greatness of things done.'"

Mr. Hughes then went on to summarize Mr. Hoover's accomplishments, citing his personality, cooperative activities and the character and spirit of his work both in relief work in Europe and as Secretary of Commerce as proof of his qualification for the Presidency. Herbert Hoover's work, Mr. Hughes declared, had proved unassailable, and his opponents have discussed it as little as possible.

In conclusion Mr. Hughes quoted Dr. Angell of Yale University, asserting that regardless of all minor questions the real issue of the campaign is continued prosperity.

Cloudy Here, Rain in West, Predicted for Election Day

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP).—While fair weather is predicted for wide areas of the nation, the election day weather forecast indicates rain through the Middle West, with showers in a few isolated sections elsewhere. Conditions in most of the Southern States tomorrow are expected to be ideal.

Cloudy skies and probably rain rain is the forecast for Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas.

There is a prospect for light showers in Northern New England in the afternoon and light showers are also forecast for sections of New York. Cloudy weather, but no rain, is expected in Southern New England and Eastern Pennsylvania.

Rain or snow may fall in sections of Wyoming and Montana west of the Continental Divide, and rain was forecast for Western Oregon and Washington.

Fair or cloudy weather, with no rain expected, was the prediction for the rest of the country, with the possibility of light showers in South Florida.

CURTIS ENDS DRIVE BY TOPEKA SPEECH

Candidate, in Address to His "Neighbors," Shows Signs of Strain of Campaign.

URGES DRY ENFORCEMENT

Appealing for an 'American System' Tariff, Nominee Also Assails Smith on Immigration.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 5.—Five thousand persons crowded into Topeka's Auditorium here tonight to hear Senator Charles Curtis deliver his homecoming address. As many more crowded the surrounding streets.

The Republican Vice Presidential nominee declared that, speaking to his neighbors of a lifetime, he wanted to express his gratitude for the confidence they have reposed in him through his long public career. The Senator assured his audience that tomorrow's voting would elevate Herbert Hoover to the Presidency by a landslide that would gather in several States of the Solid South.

The candidate was introduced by the Rev. E. J. Kulp, a Methodist minister, who formerly preached in the First Methodist Church here. Dr. Kulp came here from Des Moines, Iowa, to preside at the meeting.

Early tomorrow morning Senator Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Rome Collvin, will walk to the near-by Polk School and cast their votes. At 5 o'clock in the afternoon the Senator will board a train for Washington and be well on his way before the results are known. He said today he would retire to his stateroom early to get some rest.

The candidate showed the long strain of the campaign, and asked his enthusiastic audience to overlook his weak voice, since he had greatly overworked a sore throat in his numerous speeches.

Speaks on Dry Rule and Tariff.

TOPEKA, Nov. 5. (AP).—Since he was first elected to Congress from the old Fourth Kansas District in 1892, the Republican nominee has closed each of his campaigns with an address in Topeka.

Pointing out that it takes thirty-six States to amend the Constitution, and that forty-six of the forty-eight had ratified the Eighteenth Amendment, the candidate, in a prepared address, told his audience here tonight that the Republican platform "pledges the party to the faithful enforcement and vigorous execution of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution."

"Strict enforcement of the law, while it is a law," he said, "has always been my creed."

Senator Curtis said he did not agree with Governor Smith that the American people could not be trusted to uphold their oaths as jurors in the trial of liquor cases, and cited his record as prosecuting attorney of Shawnee County, Kansas, during the '80s, as proof that he believes in and practices law enforcement.

Taking up the tariff, the Republican nominee said no competitive tariff had ever helped an American working man, an American farmer, an American factory or an American business man, and that the Republican Party stands for "the American system of protection which gives the American producer the advantage over the foreign producer."

Criticising what he termed the stand taken by Governor Smith on immigration in his acceptance speech and at another time, Senator Curtis said:

"Immigration is a grave and vital issue before the country, for the simplest of reasons. When we let too many immigrants into the country, we cannot get them back. We cannot reduce the number. They are here to stay for all time. This fact makes the question a serious one."

Smith Wins in High School Vote.

Results of a straw vote taken yesterday at Haaren High School, 120 West Forty-sixth Street, by Lucien Lamm, Chairman of the History Department of the school, showed a plurality for Governor Smith of almost 3 votes to 1 for Hoover. The results were: Smith 603, Hoover 219, Thomas 30. In the Gubernatorial election Roosevelt received 579 votes, Ottinger 256 and Waldman, the Socialist candidate, 21.

HUNT THREE POSTING ANTI-ROOSEVELT BILLS

Police Act on Complaints by West Side Merchants of Obnoxious Placards.

The police were on the lookout yesterday for three men who for the last three nights have been posting obnoxious political posters containing anti-Democratic propaganda. The posters have been particularly offensive against Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Governor.

Ever since last Friday the police have been receiving complaints from merchants on the upper west side that store windows, news stands, vestibules of tenements and even elevated pillars have been placarded each night with these posters.

Last night Captain Lennon of the West Forty-seventh Street Station ordered out a motor patrol to look for the offenders. Patrolman Scannel saw three men leave a car and start to place posters on a store window at Ninth Avenue and Fiftieth Street.

The men saw him and started for their car on the run. Scannel pursued the fleeing automobile in a commandered taxicab, but it disappeared.

The most offensive poster denouncing Roosevelt was headed, "Vote Against Roosevelt, the Fake Wet."

Skelly Oil Case Appeal Argued.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5 (AP).—Arguments on an appeal affecting the Skelly Oil Company of Eldorado, Kan., and the Universal Oil Products Company of Chicago were heard in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today by Judges Buffington, Wooley and Davis, and taken under advisement. The amount involved is said to be about $1,000,000. The appeal sought to set aside an injunction restraining the Skelly Oil Company from infringing on a patented process for converting heavy petroleum oils into lighter oils.

THOMAS USES RADIO IN HIS FINAL APPEAL

Socialist Asks for Big Vote to "Chasten" the Victor at the Polls Today.

WALDMAN PREDICTS GAINS

Candidate for Governor Asserts Campaign Has Made "Hosts of Converts" to Socialism.

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, closed his campaign last night with a radio appeal for a large party vote which would serve to "chasten" the major party which wins at the polls today. Broadcasting throughout eleven Northeastern States over station WJZ of the National Broadcasting Company chain, he asserted that there was no fundamental difference between the Republican and Democratic parties, both of which Mr. Thomas criticised for alleged service to the privileged classes.

The State campaign closed last night with an address by Louis Waldman, candidate for Governor, at Public School 14, Stapleton, S. I. Mr. Waldman declared that Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee, and Attorney General Ottinger, his Republican opponent, had not taken a clear stand on any important issue.

Wants to Alarm the Victor.

Mr. Thomas declared that Governor Smith and Herbert Hoover both represented parties subservient to privileged classes.

"One of the two old parties will win," he said. "It won't matter which. It will matter profoundly that whichever wins will take office alarmed and chastened by the else of the Socialist vote. It will matter profoundly that we who are building a party for the future should have the encouragement of all the votes of all who believe in us and our cause. To believe that we are substantially right but not to vote for us because you think we cannot win is not to save your vote but to throw it away."

The Hoover campaign, Mr. Thomas declared, was one of evasions and beclouding of issues with the exception of the candidate's utterances at Madison Square Garden, in which "State socialism" was challenged.

"Mr. Hoover's 'rugged individualism' is not in the least descriptive of a system wherein already Government interference for better or worse, by tariffs and regulations, is an established fact," he declared. "'Rugged individualism' does not describe our country of 'yes men,' of human televoxes, of men and women who live in constant fear of their jobs. To him it seems normal and natural that the owners and controllers of land and natural resources, of credit, public utilities and great aggregations of machinery should feed and milk the common herd.

"That is also Mr. Smith's system. By his silence and evasion on unemployment insurance, taxation and nationalization, Governor Smith has shown that substantially he shares Mr. Hoover's philosophy. Most of all, he has shown it by his desperate effort to placate the rich and powerful, to bring great millionaires into his service and make an 'open shopper' like Raskob his manager."

Waldman Expects Big Vote.

In his final campaign addressf former Assemblyman Waldman predicted an increased Socialist vote in this State, declaring that the campaign had made "hosts of converts" and would result in the largest poll for the party's ticket in the past decade.

"We have been the only party to recognize transit as a vital New York issue," Mr. Waldman declared, after discussing and condemning the stand taken by his Republican and Democratic opponents on State issues. "We would encourage the recapture of the people's transit lines in New York, and combine them with the New York city-owned subways in a uniform system operating on a five-cent fare."

Mr. Roosevelt and Attorney General Ottinger, according to Mr. Waldman, owe their nominations to a party desire to counteract racial or religious prejudice, and not to records of accomplishment in behalf of the people of the State.

In a statement issued yesterday from Socialist national headquarters at 15 East Fortieth Street, voters were urged to act as their own "marines" at the polls and to safeguard their franchise right by appealing to election officials, police or deputies of the Attorney General's office for protection against interference in balloting.

Mr. Thomas will vote about 9:30 o'clock this morning in the Forty-second Election District of the Twelfth Assembly District, Manhattan. Mr. Waldman will cast his ballot at 8:30 o'clock in the Second Election District of the Third Assembly District, Brooklyn.

EDUCATORS FOR THOMAS.

Columbia and Union Theological Seminary Men to Vote for Socialist.

A number of professors and instructors at Columbia University and the Union Theological Seminary have announced their support of Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President according to a statement issued yesterday by the Intergroup Bureau of Social Education.

Professor J. Russell Smith of the Columbia School of Business is quoted as saying:

"I shall vote in Pennsylvania for Thomas in protest against Smith's injection of the wet issue and the manner thereof, and also his probable wet appointments. Neither can I stand for Vare, Work and other Hoover backers. I am also opposed to Hoover's stand on water power, tariff, big navy and his probable imperialistic policy."

The statement quotes Professor Arthur L. Swift of Union Theological Seminary as saying:

"In addition to his principles, I am voting for Norman Thomas as a man of character and integrity. Neither the Republican nor the Democratic Party promises any effective dealing with the most urgent social and economic problems of the day."

Other Thomas backers listed from Columbia are George A. Coe, Goodwin B. Watson, Leroy E. Bowman, Thomas C. Blaisdell Jr., Roy Stryker, Lawrence W. K. Cramer and Donald C. Blaisdell. Others listed from the seminary are Harry F. Ward, Reinhold Niebuhr, Julius A. Bewer, A. Bruce Curry, Frank C. Foster and Charles C. Webber.

'SOLID SOUTH' LOYAL, HARRISON ASSERTS

Senator Says Its Influence Is Factor in Sweep He Predicts for Smith.

UNUSUAL SWING REPORTED

Raskob Hears Illinois and Indiana Are Safe and Believes Republicans Worried.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, a member of the Advisory Committee of the Democratic National Committee, predicted yesterday a sweeping victory for Governor Smith, including a "Solid South" supporting his candidacy.

In a statement made public last night he declared that the "Solid South" was on trial at the election today, and called the attention of wavering Southern Democrats to the fact that party leaders throughout the country were a unit in their support of Governor Smith; that both John W. Davis and James M. Cox, Democratic Presidential nominees in 1924 and 1920, respectively, had been fighting for his election, and that the surviving kin of Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson, Democratic Presidents, had been active in the Smith campaign throughout, including Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, formerly Mrs. Grover Cleveland. He said the harmony that had existed in the Democratic party throughout the nation in the campaign just ended was without recent precedent.

"As the campaign closes, an unprecedented nation-wide swing toward the Democratic candidates is evident from reports based upon the most careful survey throughout the country," Senator Harrison said. "One of the influences making for Democratic success is the South's loyalty to the Democratic Party. In every Southern State thousands who conscientiously wavered in the beginning are now enthusiastically supporting the Democratic cause."

Senator Harrison declared that the Democratic survey had shown these States to be safe for Governor Smith: New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Montana, New Mexico, Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee, in addition to the ten States in the "Solid South."

Governor Smith, he said, had better than an even chance in West Virginia, Oklahoma, Minnesota, North Dakota, Arizona and Nevada, and an even chance of carrying New Hampshire, Connecticut, New Jersey, Delaware, Indiana, Illinois, South Dakota, Colorado, Wyoming and Utah, while in every other State he was "gaining."

Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic National Committee said last night that he had talked to George Goetz of Illinois, head of the Smith Campaign Committee in that State and a former Republican, and had received assurances that the Republicans could not come to the Cook County (Chicago) border line with more than 100,000, while Smith surely would carry Chicago by 200,000 or more.

"We also have assurances from our people in Indiana that we will carry that State," he added. "I think the Republicans are pretty much worried about things. I should think they would be, because they could only find 267 electoral votes sure for Hoover, and they have to put States like Kentucky, Maryland, New Jersey, Minnesota and Wyoming in to get that total, which is a bare majority in the Electoral College."

Many of the States of Chairman Raskob's enumeration have either been claimed by the Democrats or placed in the doubtful column with the chances favoring Governor Smith.

Equal Rights as Women's Issue.

In a statement issued at the headquarters of the National Woman's Party at 542 Fifth Avenue last night, Mrs. Clarence M. Smith, National Chairman, said: "We are quite confident that members of the National Woman's Party all over the country will stand by the equal rights issue at the polls tomorrow. It is scarcely conceivable that any woman who believes in equal opportunities for women could give her support to Governor Smith, who, as he declared in his Newark speech, is unalterably opposed to industrial equality. We believe that women who care for the advancement of women will vote for Hoover and Curtis."

CADILLAC · LA SALLE

They Are Built to Last a Life-time and Never Lose Their Identity

MANY who have longed for a Cadillac, are today finding that wish fulfilled in a Cadillac, or in a Cadillac-built La Salle, that has passed from the hands of its first owner.

Such purchases represent the exercise of common sense judgment, because Cadillac and La Salle cars are built to last a life-time—with just reasonable care.

No other car offers the same advantages of long-life performance, because no others are powered with the famous Cadillac-La Salle 90-degree, V-type, 8-cylinder motor—by long odds the simplest and most dependable of all types of Eights, as General Motors engineers, laboratories and testing grounds, as well as the hundreds of thousands in owners' hands, have completely demonstrated.

Purchasers thus realize that it does not matter at all if they do not happen to be the first owner, for they know that Cadillac and La Salle cars never lose that identity which distinguishes them from all other fine cars.

Back of this confidence in Cadillac and La Salle is the complete assurance of absolutely fair dealing, no matter what make of used car may be selected, because Cadillac-La Salle dealers also exercise common sense business judgment. They know good will is their greatest asset. They want the buyer satisfied, because they want him to return—perhaps, eventually, to buy a new car. They know good will inspires many customers to recommend the Cadillac-La Salle dealer to their friends who want good used cars.

Because the Cadillac-La Salle dealer occupies an advantageous position, his used car stock is large, varied and well-conditioned. These cars are reasonably priced because no Cadillac-La Salle dealer is forced to take trade-ins at fictitious values. It's well worth your while to investigate these statements.

A dependable and far-reaching dealer body serves Cadillac and La Salle owners. It operates under a national service policy clearly defined. Wherever you drive you can secure the same efficient service under factory regulation at prices limited by us.

Text of Governor Smith's Final Appeal Over the Radio to the Nation's Voters

The text of Governor Smith's final appeal to the voters, broadcast by radio last night, follows:

Under our form of Government the citizens of this country must assume an individual obligation to do their full share to keep democratic government the success that it has been. And their share on election day is to be sure to vote.

The declaration of the equality of man is never better exemplified than it is on election day, when the humblest man in the community is the equal of the President of the United States as he stands before the ballot box. A man or woman who is not sufficiently interested in the welfare of the country to take the trouble to cast a ballot cannot be said to be a very good citizen. It is almost as though they say in effect that they do not care what happens. The whole theory of Democratic representative government is predicated on the belief that the citizens of the country are sufficiently interested in their Government to determine for themselves who is to run it.

Likewise, it is the duty of every American citizen, man or woman, to vote according to the dictates of conscience, solely upon the basis of what he or she believes to be for the best interest of the country itself and not upon the basis of any passion or any prejudice. Any man or woman or any group casting a ballot for any other reason except the welfare of the country is doing what they possibly can to negative the whole theory of democratic government.

Has Talked on All Issues.

For six or seven weeks, as the Democratic candidate for the Presidency of the United States, I have been traveling throughout this country. I have spoken to the American people on every important question that is pressing the country for solution. Within the limit of my ability I have endeavored to state my position and the position of my party on the issues presented in this campaign clearly and concisely.

Tonight I am not surrounded by thousands of people in a great hall and I am going to take this opportunity to talk intimately to my radio audience alone, as though I were sitting with you in your own home and personally discussing with you the decision that you are to make tomorrow. If I were physically present with you I know you would ask me to give you the facts to convince you which of the two candidates by training and by experience is the better fitted to head your Government and lead the American people to a solution of the problems that will confront the next Administration. A frank answer to your question makes it necessary for me to speak of my own record.

I am no stranger, as you all know, to public office. Prior to this year I have been a candidate for elective public office twenty times, and have been elected nineteen times. I have served as Governor of New York for a longer period than any man in its history since the days of De Witt Clinton, 100 years ago.

Politically, the State of New York is a strong Republican State. Only three men have been elected on the Democratic ticket since 1892, a period of thirty-six years. I am the only Democrat in forty years who has been honored by the people of my State with more than one term as Governor.

Tells of 1924 Vote.

In 1924, while the Republican candidate for the Presidency carried the State of New York by upward of 700,000 plurality, I was elected Governor by 150,000.

At no time during my Governorship was the Legislature of the State in the control of the Democratic Party. I vetoed more legislative proposals than any two Governors in the history of the State. Not a single one of these vetoes was overridden by the Legislature.

In this intimate talk you are entitled to know what actuated me in the appointments I have made to my own Cabinet. I appointed to public office more men and women requiring confirmation by the Senate than any two Governors in our history. While during my Administrations the Senate was Democratic for two years it was Republican for six years; and in all of that period not a single appointment was withdrawn by me or rejected by the Senate.

The test of administrative capacity lies largely in the ability of the Executive to surround himself with officials who are competent to transact the business of the Government. No living man could do it all himself. If he is to be successful he must have the ability and the will to make the right kind of selections.

Set Up a Cabinet.

For the first time in the history of our State I set up a Cabinet. Let us take a look at that Cabinet for a minute. Probably the most important appointment made by the Governor is the Superintendent of Public Works. He is charged by law with the operation of the Erie Canal. In his department are found the Bureaus of Highways, Public Buildings, Water Control and Architecture.

On highways alone in the year 1928 the Superintendent of Public Works expended $45,000,000. In the Bureau of Architecture and under the supervision of the Engineering Bureau there are in course of completion contracts for public buildings approximating $60,000,000.

At no time in the history of this department has there been as much public money expended as during the last six years. All the skill, the ingenuity and the political sagacity which the Republican Party can bring to bear have been directed to an effort to find something in the expenditure of all this money and in the development of all these projects that might be used against me politically. What they found was that the Superintendent of Public Works is an engineer of unquestioned ability and of sterling integrity, and that this great department, expending these enormous sums annually, is operating like a thoroughly well organized business institution.

Let us take a look into the Department of Mental Hygiene. In the New York State hospitals for the care of the insane and in the institutions for the care of the mentally deficient, there is a population of approximately 80,000 people who have to be fed, clothed and cared for by the State. The annual expenditures for this purpose run into more than $28,000,000. To this cabinet position I promoted from the Superintendency of one of the State hospitals one of the most competent physicians in the State service, with twenty-five years of experience; and not a member of my political party.

Other Republican Appointees.

To head the Department of Corrections, expending more than $5,000,000 a year for the care and custody of the people committed to our penal institutions, I selected a doctor formerly Superintendent of one of our institutions for the criminal insane, and who had twenty years' experience in the service of the State and who likewise was not a member of my political party.

To the Department of Conservation I reappointed the Republican incumbent of the office because of his ability and his capacity to do the job.

To the Department of State I appointed a man who in a spirit of civic duty worked for years for the State without salary and was primarily responsible for building up the State's great system of parks and parkways.

To the head of the Department of Health I promoted a physician of many years' experience in the health service of the State. He belongs to no political party.

To the Department of Labor and to the Industrial Board I appointed men and women of unquestioned ability without reference to party allegiance.

As my own secretary I selected a man who for thirty years was connected with the Executive Department in Albany and not of my own political faith.

To the Department of Taxation and Finance I appointed a New York business man and two tax experts whose judgment and opinion on matters of taxation have been sought to advise the national Congress, where they have frequently appeared upon request before the committee of both houses.

Two important positions are held by men not appointed by me, but I have been pleased to welcome them into my cabinet. The Commissioner of Education is selected by the Regents of the University of the State of New York, who in turn are elected by the Legislature. The Commissioner of Agriculture and Markets is selected by the Council of Farms and Markets, which in turn is likewise elected by the Legislature. Both these men, not members of my political party, have times out of number certified that I have cooperated with them to the very last degree in building up the efficiency of their departments.

Talks to the People.

It has been said time and time again by prominent citizens of my own State, members of all political parties, that the Government of the State of New York today is in the best condition that it has ever been in all of its history.

During my term as Governor, constructive reforms in the Government of the State of New York and bond issues for the replacement of its plant and structures and for the protection of human life have been accomplished notwithstanding the open opposition of the Republican legislative leaders. You would naturally ask how this was brought about, because you would want to know how I would deal with similar situations in the national Government. They were accomplished by direct appeal to the people. I did not confine my public speaking in the State of New York to election periods. During sessions of the Legislature and in years when I was not a candidate for public office I have talked directly and intimately to the people themselves in practically every city and large village in the State of New York. The success of this method was apparent on election day in 1927 when there were no candidates for State-wide public office. Notwithstanding that, hundreds of thousands of people were watching the bulletin boards in front of newspaper offices on election night for the results on eight amendments to the State Constitution.

In previous years the result of the vote on Constitutional amendments was not known until weeks after election. There was not sufficient interest in them for the Secretary of State to make a tabulation of the figures.

Last election day I favored seven amendments to the Constitution and opposed one. The seven were adopted by the people of the State and the one overwhelmingly defeated. Men, women and even the children in our public schools knew exactly what was in every proposed amendment to the Constitution, why it was proposed and what was sought to be done about it. That is my idea of executive leadership.

Two Branches of Government.

For years and years the people of my State knew nothing about the Government except what they got from Government statistics, which at best are involved and not understandable to the ordinary man and woman.

I awakened a great interest in the State of New York by my treatment of the Government itself. I divided it into two branches: the business side and the human side, for Government must have a human side as well as a business side.

Nearly every constructive reform in Government under our American system must be accomplished by law. That means that the man in an executive position must possess the traits and qualities of leadership that make it possible for him to get along with people. The American people will never stand for a dictator any more than they are today satisfied and contented with a policy of silence. What they want is constructive leadership, a leadership based upon the ascertained will of the majority, and the ability to make the governmental problems of different groups in our community the concern of all.

During my Governorship it is a matter of record that I have had my strongest and most vigorous support from the women of my State. They have a deep interest in the human side of Government. They fought side by side with me without regard to party in the struggle to obtain factory laws for safeguarding the lives, health and welfare of men, women and children in industry; to secure social legislation like widowed mothers' pensions, designed to keep the orphaned child in its mother's home; to protect society against the evils of child labor and the overwork and exploitation of women and children in industry; to improve the care of afflicted veterans, of tubercular patients, of the mentally deficient, and to restore to usefulness the lives of crippled children.

Grateful for Receptions.

With the national campaign about to close I desire to express the regret that I was unable to visit every State in the Union. Time, as you can readily understand, would not permit it. This regret is intensified by the memory I will cherish for the rest of my life of the hearty, enthusiastic, affectionate welcome I received from millions of my fellow-American citizens during the course of the campaign. It made a deep impression also upon the members of my family and the friends who accompanied me. Particularly am I grateful to the women of the country for their cordial and affectionate greeting to Mrs. Smith and my daughters.

To all who had a hand in the campaign, including the party workers, the members of the city, county, State and national committees, independent citizens and Republicans, I express tonight at the close of this campaign my heartfelt gratitude. I thank also the newspaper publishers, writers and editors for their kind and generous cooperation. I appreciate likewise the courteous treatment of the radio officials, motion picture and other photographers. I thank the police forces of the various cities I visited. The enormous outpouring of people taxed them at times to their utmost.

I take advantage of this opportunity also to extend my thanks to the thousands of people who, in the course of the last six weeks have either written or telegraphed me words of encouragement and counsel.

I am about to utter my last spoken word before the American people start in the morning to make their decision, and it is this: At no time during my long public career in elective office did I ever trade a promise for a vote. I have made no promises to any man or to any group of men. Nobody was authorized to make any promises for me and, in fact, none has been made. I can enter upon the duties of the greatest office in the world without commitment to anybody except the American people. I can enter upon the duties of that great office with a mind single to the best interests of this country, and I promise you that in return for your vote of confidence tomorrow I shall give to this country the best that is in me to bring about a constructive, progressive and forward-looking administration.

Governor Smith's Noonday Address to the Middle West on Relief for the Farmers, as Made From This City Over the Radio Network

Following is the radio address delivered by Governor Smith yesterday to the farmers of the country:

I welcome this opportunity in closing the campaign to speak briefly to the men and women in the great farming sections of the country.

Both parties are agreed that the farmer and the stock-raiser have not shared in the country's prosperity and are in dire distress today. Both parties have agreed that the solution of the agricultural problem is one of the most important duties and responsibilities of the next Administration. But Mr. Hoover and I have been in sharp disagreement as to the way in which the farmer's problem should be solved and as to the party which should be entrusted with its solution.

I believe that I can fairly say to the farmers of this country and their families that this campaign has shown that the salvation of agriculture in this country today depends upon Democratic success, and I am going to summarize my reasons for this belief.

First, I want you to judge the future by the past.

The Republicans have been in power for seven and a half years. As Mr. Hoover said last Friday night, they have been alive to the situation of agriculture. I know you will agree with me that they did nothing effective about it; that the promises made in 1920 and in 1924 have never been kept, and that the agricultural situation is worse today than when the Republicans came into office in 1921. So when Mr. Hoover said last Friday night he would esteem it an honor to have the privilege of solving the agricultural problem, I can fairly say that he has had an opportunity to achieve that honor for the last four years as the agricultural adviser to the Administration, but he took no advantage of it.

Two Farm Bill Vetoes.

He referred to the farmers' failure to agree as to what they want. I need hardly remind you that there was sufficient agreement in this country to pass two relief measures by a vote of just two-thirds of the members of both houses of Congress, only to have those measures vetoed by the President, under the candidate's advice, with no solution offered in place of them. Now that is the record of the past.

There is no farmer and no farmer's wife in this country today who does not know that they are not helping themselves by continuing in power the party which for seven and a half years has had an opportunity to grapple with this problem and has done nothing whatever about it.

I next remind you what Mr. Hoover's real views on this farm question were before he became a candidate.

In 1924, as I pointed out in my Omaha speech, he definitely said that overproduction on the farm "can only be corrected by prices low enough to make production unprofitable." I asked you then and I ask you now to reflect whether you want to entrust the solution of the farm problem to a man who definitely said that his notion of farm relief was to make prices low enough to drive more farmers and more farmers' families from their homes.

The next reason why the desire for self-preservation should lead the farmer and the farmer's wife to vote for me on next Tuesday is the utter hopelessness of anything that the Republican Party or Mr. Hoover has had to say in this campaign with respect to farm relief in contrast with the definite, specific program which I have offered.

Cites the Republican Platform.

Let us begin with the Republican platform itself. I am sure that there is no one listening to my voice who will not agree that Governor Lowden of Illinois is one of the greatest authorities on the farm problem and one of the best friends of the farmer in this country today. He has been a life-long and a loyal Republican. When the Republican platform was adopted at Kansas City, I remind you that Governor Lowden said of it:

"I have urged that it is the duty of the Republican Party to find some way to restore agriculture from the ruin that threatens it. That, in my judgment, the convention by the platform just adopted has failed to do, and I therefore authorize the withdrawal of my name from this convention."

Can you think of any reason why a farmer or a farmer's wife should vote for a candidate who stands upon a platform repudiated by a member of the party itself who is a leader in the fight for agricultural relief? And I remind you of Senator Norris's brave and courageous stand for the principles of farm relief, which have led him, as a leader in the battle in your behalf, to leave his own party and enlist himself and his great talents in behalf of my election, because he regards the policies for which I stand as the surest guarantee of relief to you; and I ask you to recall all the State and local farm leaders who have studied this problem in your behalf who agree with Governor Lowden and Senator Norris as to the utter hopelessness of any expectation of relief from the Republican Party.

Waterways and Crop Tariff.

Let me spend just a few minutes in reviewing what has been said about agricultural relief during this campaign; and I will take first the things we agree on.

First, inland waterways: There is no disagreement on that, but I think you will all agree with me that if the farm population of this country has to wait for relief until a system of inland waterways is developed, there will be very little farm population to be relieved.

Second, tariff on import crops: We are all agreed on that. The Democratic Party has promised the farmer, and I have promised the farmer, full protective duties on all import crops on an absolute equality with industry—upon all agricultural products that are imported.

I do not pause, however, to ask why, if higher duties are necessary, the Republicans have not given them during the last seven and a half years.

Now I am for giving the farmer who raises the import crops full tariff protection, but you know and I know that that, standing alone, has never solved the problem, will never solve the problem, and that when the Republicans have argued about it they have simply been trying to get your minds away from the real principle of farm relief, about which I shall presently speak and upon which they are directly opposed to me and directly opposed to your interests and your economic salvation.

Then Mr. Hoover talks about stabilization corporations.

One word about these stabilization corporations, to which Mr. Hoover is willing to lend money.

Our commodity prices are not made in America. In this very St. Louis speech Mr. Hoover says that they are made abroad. You can no more control or stabilize them by a corporation that has no power to lift the surplus clear out of the domestic market than you can fight a flat fight with a man ten miles away. World conditions and not seasonal gluts control domestic price. For the past ten years the seasonal high price of each year has occurred exactly as frequently at harvest time as in growing time. Who will share the profits and who will bear the losses?

Control of Crop Surpluses.

And now we come to the great fundamental, underlying principle for farm relief upon which Mr. Hoover and I differ absolutely.

I agree with Governor Lowden and Senator Norris that there can never be any satisfactory solution of the farm problem unless that solution is based upon the principle of an effective control of the sale of the exportable surplus, with the cost imposed upon the commodity benefited. For that principle the Democratic platform squarely stands, and for that principle I squarely stand, and for that principle you and your leaders and those who have been struggling in your behalf for the last eight years stand and have always stood.

You know full well by this time what that principle means. You understand fully that, as to the great cash crops of which we produce an exportable surplus, the tariff simply does not function, because the exportable surplus is offered for sale in this country before it finally finds its way into a foreign market. It is the presence of this exportable surplus in the domestic market that has driven down your prices far below the cost of production, reduced by billions the value of your farms, driven millions of people from the farms to other occupations and brought about the dire distress in which agriculture finds itself today.

And what has Mr. Hoover had to say about this principle of farm relief for which I stand, for which my party stands, and which, I am glad to admit, I learned to approve from a study of the speeches and writings of Governors Lowden and Senator Norris and those other great leaders who had given their attention to this problem before it became my duty to study it? In his speech at Madison Square Garden in New York Mr. Hoover branded this whole principle as State socialism. You and I and your leaders and all who have been struggling in your behalf—all of us together—are transferred to the Socialist Party because we wish the Government in your behalf to follow the same principle adopted in the Federal Reserve System for the protection of money and credit.

Only if you think that you and your family are Socialists because you believe in this principle of the control of the exportable surplus, only if you are willing to entrust the rebuilding of farm prosperity to one who thus denounces the only principle upon which it can be based, only then can you give your support to my opponent in this election.

Proposal of an Extra Session.

And at the last minute, in his St. Louis speech, Mr. Hoover talks about calling an extra session of Congress. An extra session for what? Under his advice, the President of the United States vetoed farm relief measures which were twice passed by a Republican Congress. He had nothing to offer in place of it. What has Mr. Hoover got to offer in place of it today? If he is true to what he has always said, he would certainly veto any bill passed upon the principle of the control of the exportable surplus. You certainly do not think he is going to sign a bill, whether it is passed at a special session or a regular session, based upon that principle which he calls State socialism. If Mr. Hoover were President, what good then would it do you to have him call a special session? Ask yourselves this question. There is but one answer you can possibly give, and that answer requires you, if you are true to your own convictions, if you are loyal to your own interests and the interest of your family, to follow the lead of Senator Norris and vote the Democratic ticket tomorrow.

The duty to vote the Democratic ticket rests not only on your own self-interest but on your loyalty to your homes and your families. Restoration of prosperity to the farm is not a mere material thing. It involves the continuance and the betterment of the home and the family life of the farm, a lightening of the burden upon the women in the agricultural community, the extension of the comforts of a prosperous and happy family life to the children; in short, the continuance of the traditional American country life—happy, prosperous, fruitful, and the foundation of American prosperity.

And in closing let me give you this word of cheer and confidence. From every section of this country today I have had reports forecasting a great Democratic victory. The industrial East joins with the agricultural West in its desire for a restoration of Democratic Government. I believe that tomorrow will bring a great Democratic victory, and I assure you that the victory in turn will bring a solution of the agricultural problem that will restore prosperity to the farm and promote the welfare of the entire country.

SMITH IN FINAL PLEA STANDS ON RECORD

my job in the campaign. I have been making the speeches, shaking the hands and going through the parades; let the figurers and the statisticians give you that information. I am unable to do it."

Governor Smith's last discussion of the national issues was in a half-hour farm speech reviewing his solution for agricultural distress through effecting the principle of the McNary-Haugen legislation. In his speech at night to the whole country he ignored that issue as well as the others on his slate.

Reading his speech page by page as he never has done with a visible audience of thousands in front of him, he spoke quietly, as he could not do in the large auditoriums of his previous campaign. To the group around him he seemed to talk with more intimate feeling than he had displayed before.

He urged his millions of radio listeners to vote. He requested them to lay aside prejudice. He cited his record as "a frank answer" to their questions about his fitness. He thanked those who had helped him in his campaign and he vowed, if elected, to serve only "the best interests of this country." He made no reference to his Republican opponent, Herbert Hoover, who has figured largely in all of his previous speeches, except to remark that he knew the people were interested in the comparative experience and training of the two candidates.

In his request that the voters eliminate passion from their judgment he made what his listeners took to be his only reference to the religious question which many of his friends have said is the one present obstacle to the certainty of his election.

"It is the duty of every American citizen, man or woman, to vote according to the dictates of conscience, solely upon the basis of what he believes to be for the best interest of the country itself and not upon the basis of any passion or prejudice," he said. "Any man or woman or any group casting a ballot for any other reason except the welfare of the country is doing what they possibly can to negative the whole theory of democratic government."

Thanks Women of State.

One other particularly striking paragraph was his thanks to the women of his State for their aid and cooperation in advancing his welfare program of legislation in New York and to the women of the nation for the cordiality of their greetings to Mrs. Smith on his campaign tours. Republican claims have had it that women would play a leading role in defeating the Democratic ticket.

The Governor urged every one to vote as an "obligation" of citizenship and said that the theory of democratic government was based on the contention that the people of the country were sufficiently interested in their Government to run it.

If he were sitting with the individual voter in his home, the candidate continued, they would probably discuss his fitness and he would answer questions about it frankly.

"I am no stranger, as you all know, to public office," he said. "Prior to this year I have been a candidate for elective office twenty times and have been elected nineteen times. I have served as Governor of New York for a longer period than any man in its history since the days of De Witt Clinton, 100 years ago."

He pointed out how the people had elected him even when voting overwhelmingly for a Republican President and how the Republican Legislature had never overridden one of his vetoes.

The Governor went over the personnel of his Cabinet and discussed the individual fitness and capacity of each member.

He related how he had again and again appealed to the people directly to effect his governmental reforms He told how he had gone about the State discussing constitutional amendments last year, with the result that his advice was followed upon all of them.

"That is my idea of executive leadership," he said.

Human Side of Government.

Speaking of the human side of government, he said that the people wanted "constructive leadership, a leadership based upon the ascertained will of the majority and the ability to make the governmental problems of different groups in our community the concern of all."

The women of New York, he pointed out, had cooperated with him in the work of "humanizing" government.

He thanked the people who had greeted him throughout the country and those who had sent words of encouragement and counsel.

With his last words he said of the Presidency: "I can enter upon the duties of that great office with a mind single to the best interests of this country, and I promise you that in return for your vote, or confidence tomorrow I shall give to this country the best that is in me to bring about a constructive, progressive and forward-looking administration."

Some 300 persons were in the small hall in which the Governor spoke and an outburst of applause greeted him as he concluded. Again on the street several hundred welcomed him.

In the audience inside were Justice Joseph M. Proskauer, former Ambassador Henry Morgenthau, George Van Namee, William F. Kenny, James J. Riordan, Mrs. Henry Moskowitz and other personal friends and campaign workers. Most of them had gathered earlier in the evening and heard the broadcasting of Mr. Hoover's speech from Palo Alto, Cal. Governor Smith entered the hall in time to hear his opponent's final words, "Good night, my friends." The Governor smiled broadly. His own speech took about twenty minutes.

Last Bid for Farm Vote.

In his farm speech at noon Governor Smith made a last bid for the farm vote. The salvation of agriculture depended on Democratic success, he said, pointing out what he called the weaknesses in Mr. Hoover's pledges of aid and in the Republican record. He agreed with Mr. Hoover on the desirability of inland waterways, but effective aid, he argued, could be comprehended only in such a plan for controlling the sale of the exportable surplus as Senator Norris of Nebraska and former Governor Lowden of Illinois supported.

Judge the Republican offers by their past record, he advised, pointing to pledges of aid to the farmers in the Republican platforms of 1920 and 1924 and saying that the situation was worse now than in 1921 in the field of agriculture.

He declared that in 1924 Mr. Hoover had said that overproduction on the farm "can only be corrected by prices low enough to make production unprofitable." A man who wished to make prices so low that farmers would be driven from their homes as a solution of the problem should not be entrusted with the reins of government, he asserted.

He cited Governor Lowden's withdrawal of his name from the Republican National Convention as a candidate for the Presidential nomination and Senator Norris's "brave and courageous stand" for the principles of farm relief which led him to leave his own party and come out for the Democratic nominee.

Promises Full Protection.

More strongly than ever before he announced his support for a high protective tariff on import crops. He promised "full protective duties" and "absolute equality with industry."

"I am for giving the farmer who raises the import crops full tariff protection," he said, "but you know and I know that that standing alone has never solved the problem, and that when the Republicans have argued about it they have simply been trying to get your minds away from the real principle of farm relief."

Stabilization corporations proposed by Mr. Hoover would not take the surplus crop out of the domestic market, he continued, arguing that the only solution for this problem was his proposal to market the exportable surplus and assess the cost upon the commodity benefited.

Referring to Mr. Hoover's New York speech, he added, "only if you think that you and your family are Socialists because you believe in this principle of the control of the exportable surplus, only if you are willing to entrust the rebuilding of farm prosperity to one who thus denounces the only principle upon which it can be based, only then can you give your support to my opponent in this election."

The Governor said after his speech that radio broadcasting had much to do with the increased registration. It had brought other far-reaching changes, he declared.

"Broadcasting has taken politics into the American home in a manner never before equaled," Governor Smith said. "It has changed the typical political speech from a collection of high-sounding phrases and choice bits of bunk to a clear, logical argument for or against the issues involved in the campaign."

CITY SET TO HANDLE RECORD VOTE TODAY

in which suspected instances of fraudulent registration had been uncovered. Warrants are in the custody of these officials for service on the 51 persons recently indicted in New York County and in the cases of seven others in Brooklyn.

One of those named in an illegal registration indictment in Brooklyn was taken into custody yesterday and on arraignment before Judge Nova in the Kings County Court was released in $1,000 bail for trial, following his plea of not guilty. He was Joseph Halpern, 23 years old, whose indictment followed an investigation of Special Deputy Attorney General Milton Hertz of a charge that Halpern was not a lodger in the apartment of former Assemblyman Harry Landau at 121 Marcy Avenue, from which he registered.

Mr. Hertz had discovered that, although the Landau apartment consists of three rooms and a kitchen, the Special Attorney General alleged, nine persons, including four members of the former legislator's family, had registered from there. Mr. Landau appeared in court in Halpern's arraignment. He said that the youth was a friend of his nephew, and had resided with him for several months, following a quarrel with his family in Manhattan.

Admitting that nine persons had registered from his home, Mr. Landau added that the rooms were large and said: "There is room for nine more." He explained some of the boarders slept during the day and others at night.

"Our principal idea is to expedite the election," Mr. Medalie said in telling of the preparations for the elections. "I am hopeful that none of those named in the indictments returned in Manhattan and Brooklyn will attempt to vote and thus take up valuable time needed in hurrying through the vote."

Hearings by McAdoo.

In the course of the day Chief City Magistrate McAdoo held hearings on complaints of illegal registration in his chambers at 300 Mulberry Street. The Chairmen of twenty-six election districts were closely questioned by him, after which warrants were issued for nine persons. Some of the charges were found to be unfounded, registration officials having made mistakes in the addresses of registrants. Percy Babcock, Chairman of the Twenty-second Election District, and James Masterson, Chairman of the Twentieth Election District, both of the Twenty-first Assembly District, were ordered to produce the registration books of their polling places.

Mr. Medalie in the forenoon took issue with the statement of District Attorney Banton the day before that a previous announcement of wholesale frauds at the polls was unfounded, because police reports had uncovered only 550 cases of possible false registration, thirty of which already had been found to be legal.

"To sit by and accept police reports as the last word on registration frauds is just a piece of self-delusion," declared Mr. Medalie. "Mr. Banton shuts his eyes to cases of the sort our men have been finding in certain Assembly districts, where men have been inserting names in mail boxes and then claiming they live there. We refuse to shut our eyes to such cases.

"I do not know what induces Mr. Banton to take that position. If he is criticizing the Grand Jury he should realize that it is composed of men from both parties. If he says fraud in the Seventeenth Assembly District is a myth, he is the worst informed man in New York City. Everybody knows the Ninth and Twenty-third Assembly Districts are clean, but there is no reason why the Third, Fourth and Seventeenth should bask in the sunshine."

Several Districts Not Suspected.

Mr. Medalie pointed out that in his previous statement he had said there was evidence of fraud in "certain districts," not "wholesale registration frauds in the city," the prosecutor's interpretation of his statement. He added that his men, supported by the police, would prevent any attempts at "strong-arm" work at the polls. He added, however, that because his investigators had reported that the Sixth, Seventh, Ninth, Tenth, Fifteenth and Twenty-third Assembly Districts were devoid of suspicion of election frauds, none of his men would be assigned to guard them.

To detect voting frauds thus far not uncovered in his investigation, he said, his men would take careful note of the signatures of all voters for comparison with the signatures of the registrants. This work will go on from the time that the polling places open at 6 o'clock, and when the polls are officially closed at 6 P. M. a policeman will be stationed at the end of the line of voters who have not up to that time cast their ballots to prevent late comers from casting their ballots in violation of the law.

His men were not to wear badges identifying them with any political party, he said, and were not to canvass the voters or in any manner engage in electioneering while the balloting was going on.

He made public a letter he had received from Thomas F. Tommaney, Chief Investigator for the Board of Aldermen, retracting a charge that Mr. Medalie had illegally registered to vote in the Twentieth Assembly District. Mr. Tommaney's letter said that the charge was "due to excitement on my part and in the heat of a bitter campaign," and added: "I regret that same found its way into print, and at this time I apologize to you, as I have found my charge to be untrue."

John R. Voorhis, President of the Election Board, announced that an automobile truck with four extra voting machines would be kept ready in case any of the voting machines broke down. Last year, he explained, only one machine went out of order. The extra precaution this year, he said, was due to the unusually heavy registration. Representatives of the voting machine manufacturers also would be on hand to make emergency repairs, one having been assigned to each of the sixteen voting machine zones in Manhattan and Brooklyn, under a supervisor, who will make his headquarters in the Board of Elections office in the Municipal Building.

Mr. Voorhis also announced that a total of 1,927 ballots of absentee voters would be distributed to the polling places this morning. These ballots were found to be marked correctly on Friday, when the time for accepting them expired. The board rejected 329 absentee ballots, he added, because they were found to be defective or the signers were not known at the addresses given.

Judge Mancuso will preside in General Sessions today to handle cases growing out of the Grand Jury's indictments on alleged fraudulent registration. Judges Koenig and Levine also will be present to aid him in the event Judge Mancuso cannot preside in all cases brought before him. District Attorney Banton, with a staff of assistants, also will be on hand to conduct prosecutions, and other Assistant District Attorneys have been assigned to each of the Magistrate's courts.

About three hundred officers and enlisted men at the army headquarters on Governors Island and at Fort Wood at the base of the Statue of Liberty on Bedloe's Island will vote in the polling place in Public School 29 at Albany and Washington Streets, Manhattan. They are attaches of the staff headquarters on Governors Island or members of the Sixteenth Infantry. They will be led to the polling place in company detachments beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning.

ENTIRE POLICE FORCE ORDERED OUT TODAY

Every member of the New York Police Department will be on duty today and will remain on duty until the last vote is counted, under elaborate arrangements announced yesterday by Police Commissioner Warren.

Commissioner Warren will obey his own orders by voting early in the morning, appearing at his desk by 8 A. M. and remaining in Police Headquarters until the election returns are received from all the city's polling places. Only those members of the force who are sick or who are on vacation will be excused from duty.

The police clerical force is ordered to report at 8 A. M. instead of the usual hour, 9 A. M., and will be held in readiness for emergencies.

Although the police officials do not expect any trouble, they have arranged to take every precaution. Members of the pickpocket squad will be on duty throughout the city. The strong arm squad, the bomb squad, the automobile squad and the safe and loft squad will patrol the city in high-powered cars, reporting by telephone to headquarters at regular intervals.

In accordance with an announcement made last week, the Police Commissioner has ordered one policeman to stand at the end of each queue in front of the polling places at 6 P. M., when the polls close, to prevent late comers from joining the line thereafter and voting.

DOUBLE FIRE FORCE TONIGHT

Dorman Safeguards City Against Election Bonfires.

Fire Commissioner Dorman issued orders yesterday to provide the city with a fire-fighting force of double strength between the hours of 6 and 11 o'clock tonight to protect against blazes resulting from bonfires and other election day celebrations. The platoon which ordinarily goes off duty at 6 o'clock will remain in service five hours longer.

Fire Chief Kenlon has given orders that one hook and ladder company and one engine ordinarily assigned to answer a first alarm will remain, during those hours, to cover each district. All firemen on election day duty will wear regulation helmets to protect them from missiles thrown from windows and the roofs of buildings. In past years many firemen have been injured by such objects while trying to put out bonfires.

The usual patrol service will be maintained with the cooperation of the Police Department, and will be augmented by scores of fire prevention inspectors who will report at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

URGES ITALIAN UNITY HERE.

Paper Lays Lack of Political Recognition to Dissension.

Under the heading, "A Bitter Verification," Il Progresso Italo-Americano, one of the leading Italian-language newspapers of New York, printed an article on its first page yesterday lamenting the fact that there was not a single Italian name among the eighteen candidates of the Republican and Democratic Parties for Federal, State and judicial offices.

The paper pointed out that there were about 175,000 Italian-born voters in this city and more than 200,000 in the State, out of a total Italian-born population of 1,500,000 in New York State, and it attributed "this iniquitous treatment in the distribution of the high Federal and State offices" to the "division, the chronic dispute, raging malignantly, not only among our masses, but also among the leaders and the would-be leaders of the Italian community."

Il Progresso's remedy for this state of affairs seems to be summed up in advice to the Italian residents here to make their leaders quit quarreling or else to depose them and select new men.

Rockefeller to Vote Here.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP).—John D. Rockefeller planned tonight to go to New York to cast his vote tomorrow. John D. Rockefeller Jr. also will vote in Manhattan. Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stillman will vote from their Westchester estate at Pocantico Hills for the first time tomorrow. They will vote in election district No. 6, Mount Pleasant.

SMITH WORKER HONORED.

Mrs. Rhea, Arkansas Prize Winner, Guest at Luncheon Here.

Mrs. J. W. Rhea of Waldo, Ark., who won a trip to New York for her work in behalf of the Smith campaign, was the guest of honor at an informal luncheon yesterday given by Mrs. Caspar Whitney, Chairman of the Independent Smith-for-President Clubs of the Democratic National Committee.

Mrs. Daniel O'Day, Associate Chairman of the New York State Democratic Committee, described her trip West with the Smith party, and told anecdotes of the visits to the various cities.

Her new interest in politics was described by Mrs. Rhea. She had never been active in public affairs, she said, until she went to the convention in Houston with her husband and two of their five children. She was so impressed by the personality of Governor Smith that she resolved to give all her effort to his election, and immediately upon her return home she organized an Independent Smith-for-President club. She enrolled 75 per cent. of the population of her town and thereby won the prize offered by Mrs. Whitney. She praised New York and the Democratic leaders she has met during her visit here.

ROOSEVELT TO VOTE AT 11.

He Expected Gratitude to Hyde Park for Highway Banner.

Special to The New York Times.

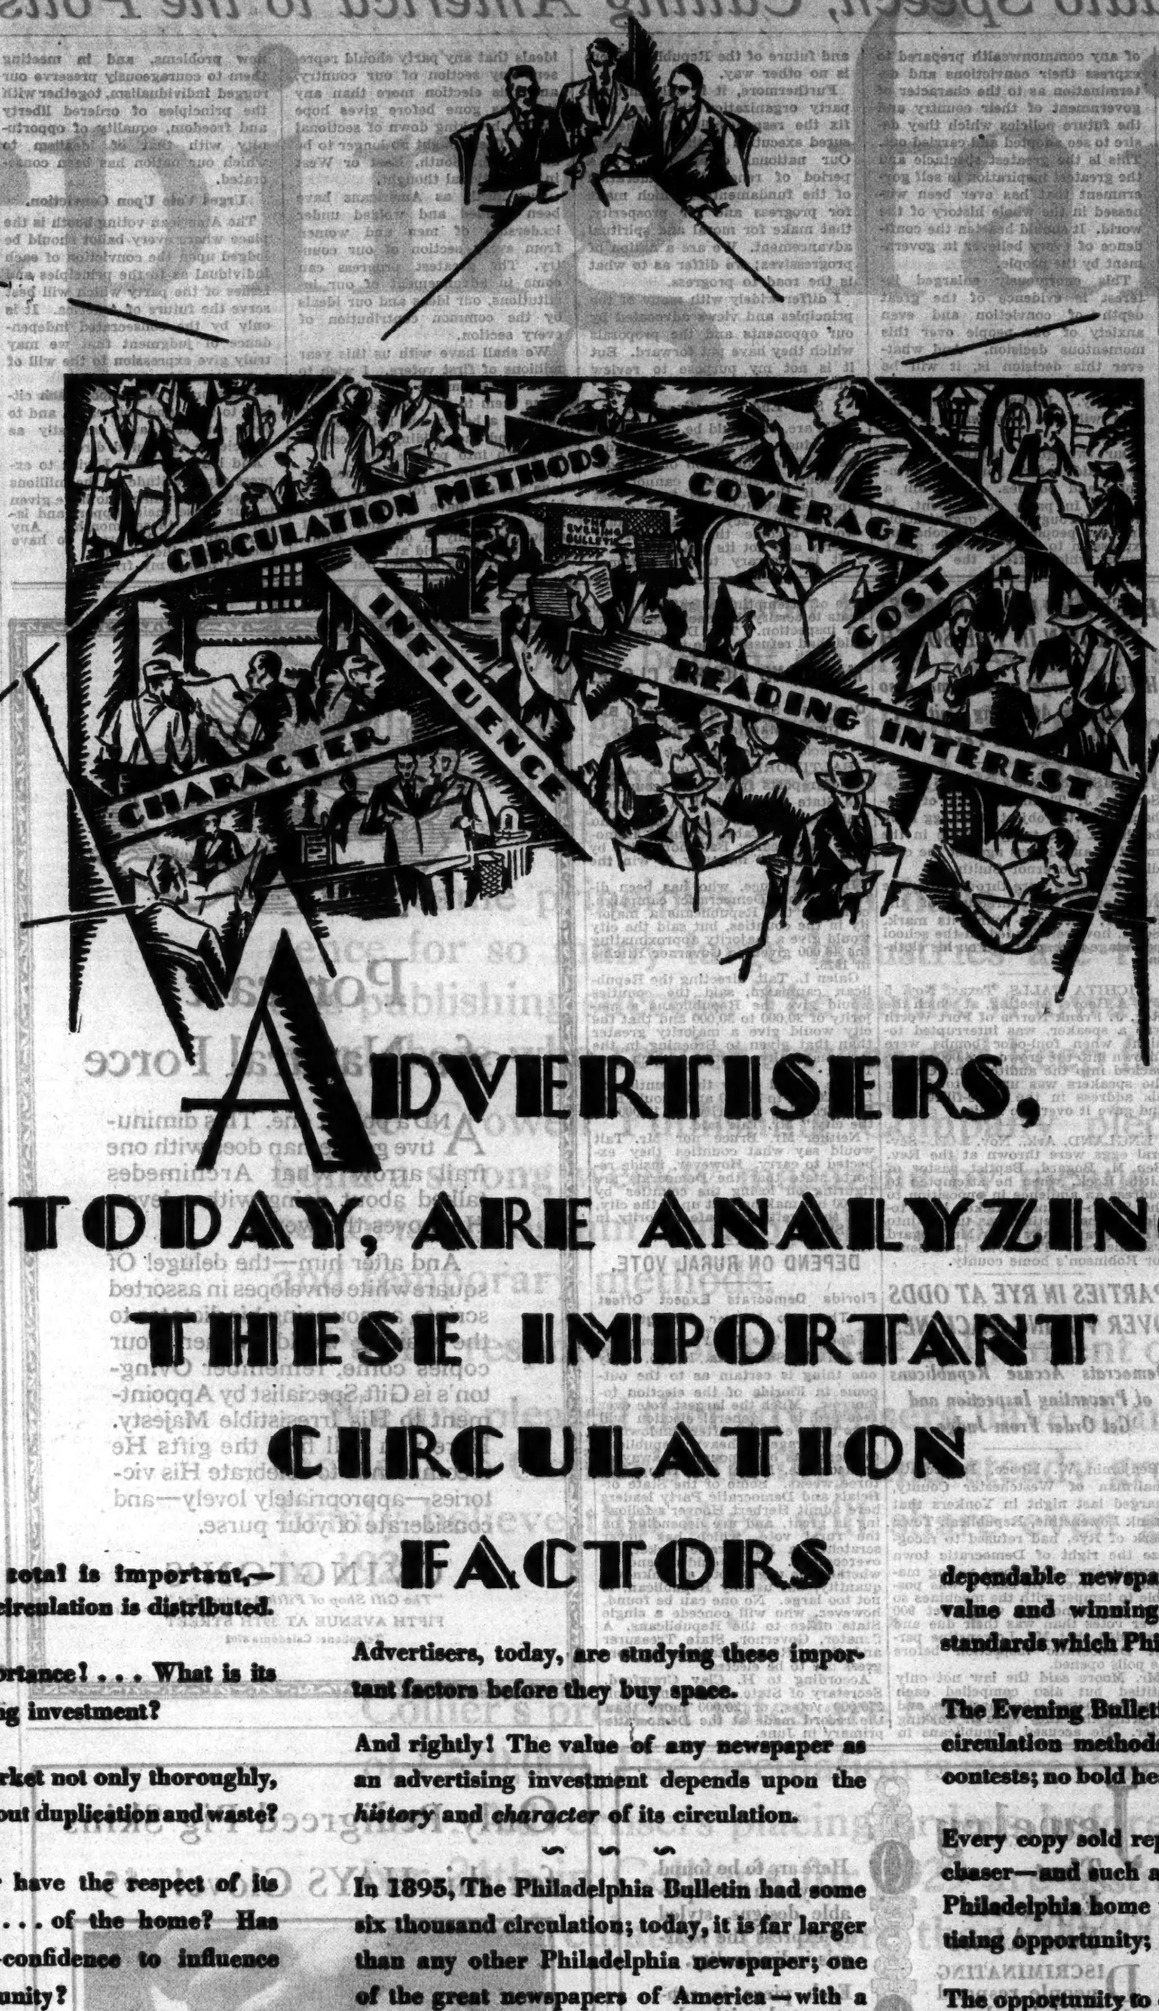
HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 5. Franklin D. Roosevelt will cast his vote at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Town Hall at Hyde Park. He said that if he lived to be 100 years old, as he expected, he could not forget the kindness of his neighbors in the little Hudson River village in hanging a Roosevelt banner across the highway near his home.

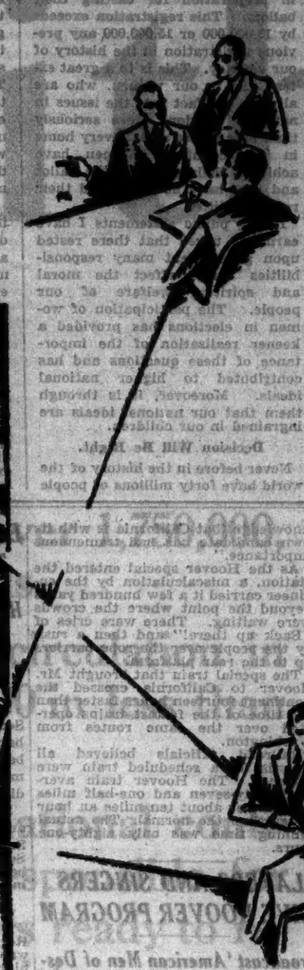
The banner was paid for by the subscription of Republicans as well as Democrats, he said, even the Republican town officers.

He said he expected a great increase in the vote this year over the 48 per cent. registration in 1924, adding that he did not care how the people voted so long as they did vote. After casting his ballot tomorrow he will drive to New York and will receive early returns at the Biltmore Hotel. He expects to go to Democratic National Headquarters later in the evening, returning to the Biltmore to obtain the final figures.

Lindbergh Reached Home to Vote.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 5 (AP).—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, flying a plane borrowed in Fort Worth, Texas, landed at Lambert-St. Louis Field late today, returning from a hunting trip in Mexico in order to cast his vote here tomorrow. He has announced he is for Hoover for President.





ADVERTISERS, TODAY, ARE ANALYZING THESE IMPORTANT CIRCULATION FACTORS

THE circulation total is important,—and where that circulation is distributed.

But of far more importance! . . . What is its value as an advertising investment?

Does it cover the market not only thoroughly, but effectively? Without duplication and waste?

Does the newspaper have the respect of its city . . . of business . . . of the home? Has it sufficient reader-confidence to influence thought in its community?

Does that circulation represent the actual demand for the newspaper? Or has it been inflated by "premium and contest" subscriptions; by "glaring headline" street sales?

Advertisers, today, are studying these important factors before they buy space.

And rightly! The value of any newspaper as an advertising investment depends upon the history and character of its circulation.

In 1895, The Philadelphia Bulletin had some six thousand circulation; today, it is far larger than any other Philadelphia newspaper; one of the great newspapers of America—with a daily average circulation of 549,148.

A tremendous increase . . . yet an unhurried one,—spread over a third of a century.

A growth attained by making an interesting, dependable newspaper every day: by giving value and winning confidence; by adopting standards which Philadelphia homes approved.

The Evening Bulletin has never used artificial circulation methods. No premiums, prizes or contests; no bold headlines to boost street sales.

Every copy sold represents an interested purchaser—and such a purchaser in nearly every Philadelphia home represents a unique advertising opportunity;

The opportunity to cover a market of six hundred thousand homes with one newspaper.

The opportunity to influence the buying mind in Philadelphia—America's third largest market, at an exceptionally low advertising cost.

The Confidence of Business Leaders

In 1927, The Bulletin carried more individual retail store advertisements than all other Philadelphia newspapers combined; carried more local and national display lineage and more individual classified advertisements than any other Philadelphia newspaper. (Including daily and Sunday lineage in other newspapers.) Reach Philadelphia business men through the paper that has their confidence,—The Evening Bulletin.

Any Investigation Will Prove This

Philadelphia's suburbs are among the world's finest: Bryn Mawr, Merion, Radnor, Cynwyd, the Old York Road Section. Homes of wealth; show places of society; where buying power is tremendous: Here The Bulletin's circulation far exceeds that of any other newspaper; is greater than the combined circulation of all Philadelphia morning papers. In city and suburbs, nearly everybody reads The Bulletin.

Text of Hoover's Radio Speech, Calling America to the Polls

Special to The New York Times.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 5.—The text of Herbert Hoover's radio speech tonight was as follows:

I have been asked to speak this last night before election directly to the vast radio audience of the United States. I shall not discuss partisan questions, nor shall I speak for more than a few moments on this occasion. I have endeavored to make clear during this campaign the principles, views and ideals which are advocated by my party and myself.

I wish to emphasize that great function of American citizenship which every one of us should perform tomorrow. The ballot is the most sacred individual act in that great system of self government which we have inherited and which it is our duty to carry forward. It is the direct opportunity for every man and woman to assert direct personal influence upon the kind of national government and the policies which he wishes pursued during the next four years.

It is estimated that over 42,000,000 men and women have registered in preparation for casting their ballots. This registration exceeds by 12,000,000 or 15,000,000 any previous registration in the history of our country. This is to a great extent due to our women, who are alive to the fact that the issues in national elections more seriously than ever before affect every home in our country. Women have achieved their rights at the ballot and they have now accepted their responsibilities.

In my public statements I have earnestly urged that there rested upon government many responsibilities which affect the moral and spiritual welfare of our people. The participation of women in elections has provided a keener realization of the importance of these questions and has contributed to higher national ideals. Moreover, it is through them that our national ideals are ingrained in our children.

Decision Will Be Right.

Never before in the history of the world have forty millions of people of any commonwealth prepared to express their convictions and determination as to the character of government of their country and the future policies which they desire to see adopted and carried out. This is the greatest spectacle and the greatest inspiration in self government that has ever been witnessed in the whole history of the world. It should hearten the confidence of every believer in government by the people.

This enormously enlarged interest is evidence of the great depth of conviction and even anxiety of our people over this momentous decision. And whatever this decision is, it will be right. I believe in the will of the majority. It represents the common will and conscience of our people.

Our two great political parties have laid before you their principles and policies. And I am a believer in party government. It is only through party organization that our people can give coherent expression to their views on great issues which affect the welfare and future of the Republic. There is no other way.

Furthermore, it is only through party organization that we may fix the responsibility for the assured execution of these promises. Our national campaigns are a period of renewed consideration of the fundamentals which make for progress and for prosperity, that make for moral and spiritual advancement. We are a nation of progressives; we differ as to what is the road to progress.

I differ widely with many of the principles and views advocated by our opponents and the proposals which they have put forward. But it is not my purpose to review these questions.

Sees End of Sectionalism.

We are, or should be, a nation of individuals and should make independent determination of our conclusions. Democracy cannot survive if the ballot is to be cast upon somebody's order or direction. Democracy in such state would become the destroyer of liberty and not its guarantee.

It is contrary to our national ideals that any party should represent any section of our country, and this election more than any that has gone before gives hope for the breaking down of sectional lines. There ought no longer to be any North, South, East or West in our national thought.

Our ideals as Americans have been molded and welded under leadership of men and women from every section of our country. The greatest progress can come in advancement of our institutions, our ideas and our ideals by the common contribution of every section.

We shall have with us this year millions of first voters. I wish to express welcome to them. We welcome them to the common task of building a better and better social order and the welding of idealism of youth into political life.

This election is of more momentous order than for many years because we have entered into a new era of economic and moral action, not only in our own country but in the world at large. Our national task is to meet our many new problems, and in meeting them to courageously preserve our rugged individualism, together with the principles of ordered liberty and freedom, equality of opportunity with that of idealism to which our nation has been consecrated.

Urges Vote Upon Conviction.

The American voting booth is the place where every ballot should be lodged upon the conviction of each individual as to the principles and issues of the party which will best serve the future of America. It is only by the consecrated independence of judgment that we may truly give expression to the will of a great people.

Therefore, I urge upon each citizen to vote, and vote early, and to vote seriously and earnestly as conscience and mind direct.

And before I close I wish to express my gratitude to the millions of men and women who have given to our cause their support and labor during these months. Any American may be proud to have been chosen their leader.

Good night, my friends.

HOOVER EXHORTS ALL TO VOTE TODAY

Monster Welcome at Palo Alto.

At Palo Alto the residents, students of Stanford University and thousands from San Francisco, San José, San Mateo and neighboring towns in the peninsula country joined to produce a demonstration with few parallels in the history of Northern California.

The vast crowd was packed shoulder to shoulder in all directions. Cheer leaders of the university took command of the occasion, so far as noise was concerned, and they made a good job of it.

Airplanes soared above the station, one of the fliers, Lieutenant Norman A. Goddard, writing in the sky California's "Welcome Home" to her best known citizen.

The nominee, wearing his favorite blue double-breasted sack suit and the familiar old pearl gray Fedora, was beaming the happiness he felt because of the warmth of the greeting when he left the train.

Mrs. Hoover and their two sons, Allan and Herbert Jr., were with him. Governor Young, who had boarded the train at Roseville and there officially welcomed Mr. Hoover, represented the State. People were massed on the tops of freight cars, on the roof of the station, in trees and at other vantage points from which it was possible to glimpse Mr. Hoover as he pushed his way through the throng.

Confident of Victory.

The crowd shouted for a speech, but Mr. Hoover declined to respond. He explained that he would talk over the radio tonight and that final word of the campaign would be enough. Everybody, he added, knew he was happy to be home again.

Finally he got to his automobile and the parade to the Hoover home on the Leland Stanford campus began. The route was through the campus, past the dormitories, fraternity houses, the Stanford Union and the homes of the professors. Of the latter fully 90 per cent. are said to be close personal friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hoover.

The acclamation continued every foot of the two miles from the station to the house. No matter what happens, Mr. Hoover said to friends, he would always cherish the memory of his welcome home on the eve of the most important day in his life.

Mr. Hoover arrived in California confident he will be elected. The only thing necessary to clinch victory in his opinion is for the people to vote. If they do, he can see no other decision than the success of the Republican ticket. If he is elected he will probably have a message for the country soon afterward. But he will make no statements until the result is absolutely established.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover will vote early. The booth in which they will drop their ballots is in the Stanford Women's Club house on the campus. Herbert Jr. and Allan Hoover will vote at the same time. It will be Allan's first vote.

The rest of the day Mr. Hoover will spend at his home hearing the returns which will come to him over special wires placed in the library. Only a few friends will be with the family.

Makes Three Platform Speeches.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov 5 (AP).—Arriving at his home on Stanford University campus this afternoon after a notable welcome from thousands of Californians, Herbert Hoover with Mrs. Hoover was greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hoover, the former Dean of Stanford University, and various others of their personal friends and well-wishers from the town. Here again a crowd had gathered and the candidate was forced to stand in his doorway while the cameras clicked.

This over, he settled down to complete the brief radio speech that came later in the afternoon and to receive last minute political reports from various sections of the country. These came to him in long distance telephone communications from Republican leaders in the East and Middle West.

At the first stop after his train entered California today, Roseville, the candidate made a brief talk, telling the crowd which had gathered that the real job now was before the country tomorrow.

"There is plenty of political debate going on, so I don't want to engage in any more of it," he said. "Our job is before us tomorrow. We know the result will be right because it will express the conscience of the American people. I do appreciate your coming down to give me this greeting."

In introducing the nominee at Sacramento, where a cheering throng broke through the police lines, Governor Young said he did not know if a President of the United States had ever visited Sacramento, but that "we have the next best to the President with us today, and that is the next President of the United States."

Large baskets of flowers were placed aboard the train by men and women. As Mr. Hoover ended speaking the crowd called for Mrs. Hoover and greeted her with lusty cheering as she appeared, smiling, on the platform.

After speaking at Sacramento Mr. Hoover spoke for the third time at Lodi, saying:

"You have given me a support in California that has carried great weight over the entire union. The knowledge that California is with its own candidate has had tremendous importance."

As the Hoover special entered the station, a miscalculation by the engineer carried it a few hundred yards beyond the point where the crowds were waiting. There were cries of "Back up there!" and then a rush by the people over the rope barriers up to the rear platform.

The special train that brought Mr. Hoover to California crossed the Continent fourteen hours faster than the time of the fastest trains operated over the same routes from Washington.

Railroad officials believed all records for a scheduled train were smashed. The Hoover train averaged forty-seven and one-half miles an hour, or about ten miles an hour faster than the normal. The actual running time was only eighty-one hours.

PLAYERS AND SINGERS GIVE HOOVER PROGRAM

Broadcast 'American Men of Destiny' as Preliminary to Candidate's Speech.

As a preliminary to Herbert Hoover's final radio appeal to the nation last night, the Hoover-Curtis Theatrical League presented "America's Men of Destiny," a one-act sketch with a musical background in which tribute was paid to great figures in American history and Mr. Hoover was hailed as their successor.

In the cast which put on the playlet were Amelita Galli-Curci, Frieda Hempel, George Abbott, Marie Sundelius, Marion Green, Neysa McMein, Edward Crandall, Elsie Ferguson, Irene Fenwick, Olive Wyndham, Claiborne Foster, Gilbert Emery, Florence Nash, Walter Huston, Lee Baker, Helen Ford and Marie Nordstrom. The American Symphony Orchestra, the Choral Symphony Society and the Apollo Glee Club also took part.

The program was broadcast over a network of seventy-one stations from the studio of the National Broadcasting Company at 711 Fifth Avenue, to an estimated audience of 50,000,000 people.

George Abbott, the playwright, opened the sketch with a tribute to George Washington as the "first great American," followed by an orchestral number, "Evolution of Yankee Doodle." Florence Nash took over the microphone with a resumé of the troubled days during the war of 1812. While the orchestra softly played Tippecanoe she spoke of Andrew Jackson's victory at New Orleans and his subsequent career.

Mme. Frieda Hempel sang "Oh Susanna," the early pioneer song, and Lee Baker continued the recital by recalling the establishment of the Monroe Doctrine. Elsie Ferguson followed with a tribute to Abraham Lincoln, while the orchestra played "The Battle Cry of Freedom."

Approval of her words was contributed by Mme. Galli Curci, Miss Nordstrom, Miss Foster, Miss McMein and Miss Wyndham.

The troubles of reconstruction days, the war with Spain, and the appearance from it of Theodore Roosevelt were narrated by Gilbert Emery and his words of praise for the hero of San Juan Hill were amplified by Irene Fenwick, who brought the tale up to the outbreak of the Great War.

Miss Marie Sundelius sang "Smilin' Through" and Walter Huston spoke of the "shrewd, cautious, silent but firm leader of our reconstruction days," after which Marion Green sang "Lord Geoffrey Amherst" in compliment to the alma mater of President Coolidge. Mr. Abbott concluded the oral part of the program by hailing Mr. Hoover as the next of the "men of destiny" called to lead the American people.

B. S. Moss, honorary President of the Hoover-Curtis Theatrical League, thanked the players and said that they hoped to have helped "to crystallize sentiment in favor of the Republican standard bearers. The program concluded with "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" and "Stars and Stripes Forever" by the orchestra.

OTTINGER AT THE ASTOR.

Will Hear Returns at Headquarters —Republicans Make Plans.

Republican leaders completed arrangements yesterday for the reception of election returns tonight. The Republican National Committee at 11 West Forty-second Street has sent out invitations through Daniel E. Pomeroy, Vice Chairman, as the space there is too small to throw open the headquarters to the public. The Women's National Committee for Hoover will receive returns at the same address.

The Republican State Committee and the Hoover-Curtis Campaign Committee, located on different floors at 9 East Forty-first Street, will receive returns by telegraph. William H. Hill, Chairman of the Campaign Committee, will have an orchestra there in anticipation of opportunity to celebrate. State Chairman H. Edmund Machold will return from his home in Watertown in time to receive the returns here.

County Chairman Samuel S. Koenig will receive returns at county headquarters, 109 West Fortieth Street. Attorney General Albert Ottinger, Republican candidate for Governor, will be at his headquarters at the Hotel Astor, and Mrs. Ruth B. Pratt, candidate for Congress, will be at her headquarters in the Hotel Roosevelt. The National Republican Club and the Women's National Republican Club will receive returns at their clubhouses.

EGGS AND ODOR BOMBS THROWN IN THE SOUTH

Heflin Is Target in Alabama, Also Preachers Attacking Smith in Arkansas and Texas.

ANNISTON, Ala., Nov. 5 (AP).—Senator J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama, was the object of an egg bombardment here tonight while in the midst of an address against the candidacy of Governor Smith.

Several eggs were thrown from the audience in the direction of the Senator, but none found its mark. Some, however, landed on the school hall stage and spattered on his clothing.

WICHITA FALLS, Texas, Nov. 5 (AP).—A Hoover meeting, at which the Rev. J. Frank Norris of Fort Worth was a speaker, was interrupted tonight when foul-odor bombs were thrown into the crowd of 4,000 people packed into the auditorium. One of the speakers was unable to deliver his address in the fume-filled hall and gave it over the radio.

ENGLAND, Ark., Nov. 5 (AP).—Several eggs were thrown at the Rev. Ben M. Bogard, Baptist pastor of Little Rock, when he attempted to address an audience in opposition to the Smith-Robinson ticket here tonight. The meeting was turned into a Democratic rally after Mr. Bogard was silenced. This town is in Senator Robinson's home county.

PARTIES IN RYE AT ODDS OVER VOTING MACHINES

Democrats Accuse Republicans of Preventing Inspection and Get Order From Judge.

Benjamin W. Moore, Democratic Chairman of Westchester County, charged last night in Yonkers that Frank Lowenstine, Republican Town Clerk of Rye, had refused to recognize the right of Democratic town committeemen to inspect voting machines in Rye. He said it was possible to tamper with the machines so that the Democrats would get 900 fewer votes than was their due and demanded that Mr. Lowenstine permit Democratic inspection before the polls opened.

Mr. Moore said the law not only entitled but also compelled each party to inspect the machines and to certify that they were in working order. He accused Republicans in Rye of attempting to get the Democrats to certify the machines without an inspection. The Democrats, he said, had refused to do it.

MARYLAND FIGURES CLOSE.

Democrats Said to Need 25,000 Baltimore Margin to Win State.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 5.—Analysis of reports from every county in the State and precinct in Baltimore indicates that Governor Smith and Senator W. Cabell Bruce, Democrat, must carry Baltimore City by at least 25,000 majority to win the State.

Howard Bruce, who has been directing the Democratic campaign, conceded the Republicans a majority in the counties, but said the city would give a majority approximating the 46,000 given to Governor Ritchie in 1926.

Galen L. Tait, directing the Republican campaign, said the counties would give the Republicans a majority of 20,000 to 30,000 and that the city would give a majority greater than that given to Broening in the last mayoralty election, which was 17,000.

"We should carry the counties by from 20,000 to 30,000 and should beat the Broening majority of 17,000 in the city," Mr. Tait said.

Neither Mr. Bruce nor Mr. Tait would say what counties they expected to carry. However, inside reports state that the Democrats are figuring on losing the counties by 15,000 but making that up in the city, and thus getting a safe majority in the State.

DEPEND ON RURAL VOTE.

Florida Democrats Expect Offset There to Hoover Strength.

Special to The New York Times.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 5.—Only one thing is certain as to the outcome in Florida of the election tomorrow. Much the largest vote ever recorded in a general election will have to be counted after sundown.

The barrage of heavy Republican artillery has been pounding away at Jacksonville, Miami and Tampa for three weeks. Some of the State officials and Democratic Party leaders here admit Herbert Hoover's following is great, and are depending on the rural vote, which has never scratched a Democratic ticket, to overcome it. This would depend on whether the negro vote, an unknown quantity, but usually Republican, is not too large. No one can be found, however, who will concede a single State office to the Republicans. A Senator, Governor, State Treasurer and three Representatives in Congress are to be elected.

According to H. Clay Crawford, Secretary of State, Florida may poll 270,000 votes, or 20,000 more than the record made at the Democratic primary in June.

Keeping faith—

The same principles which have won national confidence for so many large industries are responsible for this publishing success. The public is always ready to reward those who render service and keep faith.

The Crowell Publishing Company pledged itself to build a strong weekly magazine by means of a brilliant editorial program and by the avoidance of spectacular and temporary methods.

Public response points to the fulfillment of this pledge.

We are pleased that advertisers have shared the values incident to Collier's stability and steady growth, and we firmly believe that they will share even greater values in 1929.

REMINDERS.

The customary urging of voters to vote early is more than ever in point this year. The unexampled registration foreshadows, even after the increase in the number of election districts, an unusual thronging to the voting stations. At the best, many citizens will have to wait their turn, and the sooner they take their places in the line the sooner will they be able to cast their ballots. They should not forget that the polls will be kept open until all those in the line of waiting when the hour for closing arrives have voted. Careful attention should be given to the explanations how to vote on the machines. Their operation is really simple, but if one does not understand it full information will be given by the election officials. What all the parties must desire is the freest and fullest expression of the popular will. To achieve this the voters must cooperate intelligently. One way of doing this is to go early to the polls.

No individual voter should think it of little consequence whether he does his civic duty or not. Despite the great volume of ballots expected, the result may be close. There have been instances in our political history when the vote of one man, or a handful of men, has been of the utmost importance. A Governor of Massachusetts was once elected by the majority of a single vote. President WILSON carried New Hampshire by 56 votes, and had a plurality in Minnesota of 392. GROVER CLEVELAND in 1884 carried New York State and won the Presidency by the narrowest kind of plurality. Governor STANLEY of Kentucky was elected by a majority of 417. One can never tell how much his personal vote will count. But if he makes sure that he has cast it, even at great pains, he will not have to reproach himself later with a duty undone.

UNDYING SUPERSTITIONS.

If Governor SMITH is elected today, several immortal political fetiches will measure their length in the dust. They are (1) that no Catholic can ever be President; (2) that the mere endorsement by so popular a President as Mr. COOLIDGE is sufficient to elect the legatee of his policies; (3) that saying "I don't know" in answer to a question, when one doesn't, is fatal to a candidate; (4) that the American people never choose the nominee for whom they do the most cheering; (5) that a man must be solemn always to get into the White House; and (6) that the candidate who does the most speaking is invariably last in the counting.

If Mr. HOOVER is elected today, the following political superstitions will be pronounced officially dead: (1) That a man must have been a regular party man all his life to come to the Presidency; (2) that when State organizations are against a man's nomination he inevitably loses the election; (3) that if Wall Street opposes a nomination in the Republican Party the election is lost; (4) that if the Farm Belt resists a Republican candidature the election is lost; and (5) that long residence out of the country means certain defeat at the hands of 150-per-cent. Americans.

Thus, whoever is successful today will thrust the knife deep into some of the best-beloved hobgoblins of politics in this country. If it should be a landslide either way, the paeans sung over the bodies of the departed myths will last for weeks. The President will then take office and serve out his term or terms. And then other nomination contests will arise. With them most of the dead myths will arise again, as full of life as ever. They will be stated with as much ponderous and woeful solemnity as if the mortuary mold had never officially closed about them. Chills will run down spines from Seattle to Savannah, and the warnings will be as portentous as they were in 1928. They will be knocked out again and revived again, and so ad infinitum.

More immortal than any of those mentioned are three which the statistics of elections do not even temporarily destroy. One is that "if the balloting were tomorrow" a particular candidate would win who usually loses when the actual date comes round. Another is that a few handshakes by the candidate as he speeds through Bunkville on a special train wins Bunkville's vote that otherwise was lost. The last and toughest is that in the last two days before the election a marked "trend" is to be seen by expert eyes, openly chipping electoral votes away from one candidate and depositing them in the bag of the other.

VERMONT'S ANNIVERSARY.

A year ago Vermont was recovering from the most devastating flood of its history. Men and women of the State had no doubt read with sympathy the tales of suffering that came out of the Mississippi Valley a few months before. Little did they realize how soon their own mountain-girt homes were to be threatened. For three days the rain fell, finally transforming the tiniest rivulet into a torrent and peaceable rivers like the Winooski into veritable furies of desolation. A bronze plaque high up on a granite post in front of the Capitol at Montpelier records, "High Water, Nov. 3-4, 1927." Vermont had never seen the like of it before, and her prayers have gone up to Heaven that she may never see the like again. The World, in a review of the work of reconstruction, gives some figures as to losses: 690 farms wasted, 1,258 bridges washed out, $30,435,299 of damage done. The figures hardly tell what the flood meant to a sparsely settled State, farms up the mountain sides, villages in remote valleys, towns along the rivers, all utterly dependent on roads for access and communication.

Motor in any direction through Vermont today, on any highroad, and you will find bridge after bridge out and the débris still piled high. But you will find other things. First, and most material evidence of the alertness and resource of the engineers, a temporary bridge of logs and boards adequate to the emergency. Communication was promptly restored and the State saved for the Summer tourists. At every crossing, too, there is a construction gang at work on a new bridge. And this time it is being built to withstand the most ruthless assault and battery. Nor are the roads themselves neglected. Governor WEEKS has kept right on with his road-building program, and there are new ribbons of motor highway in the State that may well be the envy of its neighbors. Most striking of all is the spirit of the people. Few of them are rich. Flooded farm lands and the prospect of extra taxes would evoke complaints from a less tight-lipped race and daunt a less hardy one.

BRITISH CURRENCY FUSION.

It is announced from London that the amalgamation of the British currencies, concerning the date for which there has been much uncertainty, will be put into effect on the 27th of the present month. Action at some time before the end of 1928 had been promised in last April's budget speech of the Chancellor of the Exchequer. It was thought that it would necessitate further accumulation of gold by the Bank of England; for the Bank's gold holdings, plus the gold in reserve against the "currency notes," then amounted to only about 35 per cent. of the £292,000,000 of such notes then outstanding, if combined with the £179,000,000 Bank of England notes. Subsequent import of gold from the United States added £17,000,000 to this gold reserve by September, but the Autumn withdrawals from the Bank for Berlin and New York reduced it £12,000,000, and further reduction has lately seemed to be foreshadowed. But the Government and the Bank have resolved to proceed with the amalgamation.

The purpose is to bring into a unified currency, under direct control of the Bank of England, the independent note issue created at the beginning of war. The Bank's own notes are secured nearly up to face value with gold coin; but the £292,000,000 "currency notes" are not redeemable in gold at the Bank, are issued by a Government department and, outside of Government securities pledged, are supported only by £56,250,000 Bank of England notes. They occupy, therefore, somewhat the position of our own $200,000,000 "Treasury notes" of the Harrison Administration, which a few years later threatened depreciation of American currency.

The British amalgamation plan contemplates the merging of the two note issues into a uniform currency, for whose redemption in gold the Bank of England will be responsible. Instead of a note issue secured up to face value by the Bank's gold reserve, it is provided that, in addition to the currency thus secured, the Bank should be empowered to add £260,000,000 in a so-called "fiduciary issue." The actual result would be a gold reserve of something under 40 per cent. for the entire Bank note currency, but the ratio would naturally rise or fall according as gold flowed into the Bank through importations or was withdrawn for export. This is a plain departure from the historic system of a British currency based on a virtually equivalent reserve of gold; but that system, with its irresponsiveness to the changing needs for currency in trade and its limiting of the actual currency supply by the gold movement on foreign account, had long ceased to meet the country's requirements. Even before the war the London banking community had submitted proposals for a change whereby Bank of England notes might thereafter be issued on the basis of a reserve made up of one-third of gold and two-thirds of securities. The Bank of England at that time opposed the project; then came the war and the issue of what were then regarded as "emergency currency notes," which have subsequently become an integral part of the British currency.

Precisely what immediate effect, if any, the note amalgamation now contemplated will have on British finance it is not yet easy to say. Even with the currency notes taken over by the Bank, the currency would not be truly elastic; for the statutory maximum fixed for the fiduciary issue may not be exceeded, except under special authorization and for a limited period. That maximum, moreover, apparently will be not far distant when the fusion of currencies is effected.

PATENT OFFICE ORTHOEPY.

From the austere bosom of the Patent Office comes a welcome if unexpected light on pronunciation. Some genius in a knitting company distributed the letters of the artificial word "Narroto" in the shape of a flatiron, the two "o's" ingeniously disposed beneath the cross-arm of the "T," each with its caign of vantage on its own side of the upright, pillar, post, abutment, or whatever the perpendicular part of that respectable symbol is called. Application to register this device as a trade mark for hosiery was refused by the Examiner of Trade Marks, on the ground that the mystic word was a misspelling of "Narrow Toe" and therefore merely descriptive of the goods and so unregisterable according to the precedents and rules.

On appeal, Commissioner ROBERTSON has reaffirmed a decision as to the merits of which we should never presume to doubt; and there is something refreshing in the cases which he cites as parallel, "Nextobeer," "Kandlasses," "Slo Flo," "Dynashin," "Keepclean." It is not in the Commissioner's law, but in his phonetics, that some smack of obiter dictum may be detected. We quote from the report in The United States Daily:

> Appellant contends that the final syllable "to" is a word in the English language that is not "toe," nor is it pronounced "toe," and that "narro to" means absolutely nothing. It may be noted, however, that when the letters "to" form the final syllable of a word, as in grotto, Pluto, canto, De Soto, Porto, &c., the vowel has the long sound as though the syllable was "toe," and not the long oo sound, as contended by appellant. Obviously, appellant has adopted a phonetic spelling of the descriptive term "narrow toe" and hence the doctrine of Idem sonans applies.

Why did the learned Commissioner confine his researches into pronunciation and identity of sound to Spanish, Italian, Latin? How could he forget "to," "into," "onto," "unto," "lean-to"? We invoke the plain Anglo-Saxon against the handsome Latin-Romance. And in a country so heterogeneous and regional, this Idem sonans doctrine is hard to sustain. Suppose that "Narroto," which, with the elision of one "r," might pass for a Japanese place name, represents, as its inventor asserts, "narrow to." In old, perhaps in some parts of contemporary, New England, the classical pronunciation would be "narrer tew." Rejecting the appellant's flatiron, hasn't the Commissioner tried to give orthoepy too smooth a front—a false front?

MONCADA WINS.

Nicaragua's election has been concluded without incident or violence. As had been expected, the victor is General MONCADA, leader of the Liberal Party. His majority is substantial, and has been obtained without intimidation. The careful organization of the election supervision by American officials, together with the precautions taken to instruct the marines in their duties, has resulted in Nicaragua having the first genuine free election in her history. It is particularly gratifying to note that there was no animosity against the American supervisors—even when they insisted that each voter be "branded" with ink so as to prevent repeating.

This supervised election is the outcome of negotiations between representatives of the United States and of the various conflicting parties in Nicaragua, brought to a head by the visit of Colonel STIMSON in the Spring of 1927. Then the country was torn by civil war. The Conservative Party was in power, with General DIAZ as Acting President. He and General MONCADA, leader of the revolutionary forces and of the Liberal Party, both requested the American Government to supervise the elections in 1928. It was agreed that sufficient power would be given to the American election supervisor to enable him to perform his work effectively and fairly. General FRANK MCCOY was detailed to direct the work, and was aided by officers of the army, the navy and the Marine Corps, specially picked for their knowledge of Spanish and for their experience in Latin-American countries. He also had hand-picked non-commissioned officers. These were all schooled in the election law and were assigned to different districts.

The only difficulty throughout the pre-election period was with one of General MONCADA'S former associates, SANDINO, who refused to abide by the agreement between Generals MONCADA and DIAZ and Colonel STIMSON. It became necessary for the Americans to check his depredations. This task henceforth will fall to General MONCADA. Presumably, a small detachment of marines will continue in Nicaragua during the first part of General MONCADA'S Administration. He has already asked that this be done.

It is fortunate for Nicaragua that the new President is a man of force and education. He is much more than the old-fashioned military dictator. Educated abroad, with progressive ideas, he is interested in the economic as well as the political development of his people. He may be expected not only to improve the educational system—three-quarters of the Nicaraguans are still illiterate—but also to protect business interests and to maintain order so that the economic life of the country, so badly upset during the last four years of civil warfare, may be strengthened and improved.

M'ANDREW AT LARGE.

For nineteen years Dr. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER, with all his other occupations, edited The Educational Review, a monthly periodical devoted to raising the intellectual standards of the teaching profession. It immediately took and held the foremost place among educational journals in that it gathered into its columns "the most sober and constructive contributions to educational thought." But the increasing pressure of other obligations compelled him to give over its editorial direction to other hands. Dr. FRANK PIERREPONT GRAVES carried it forward on the same high plane for a few years, when he also had to relinquish the editorship. Then that able and ebullient educator, Dr. WILLIAM MCANDREW, who a little later became through the assistance of Mayor THOMPSON an international figure, undertook with his left hand to edit it while with his right hand he guided the affairs of the Chicago schools. This month it appears as a "combined" part of School and Society—the excellent weekly which, itself the result of a merger of two older journals established in the '20s, has under the competent editorship of Dr. J. MCKEEN CATTELL become a trustworthy source of educational news and authoritative comment.

Dr. MCANDREW brings to it fresh observations from the field and presents them in a way to arrest the attention of every one who opens its pages. His comments in the first joint number are devoted especially to teachers' meetings, "institutes" they are usually called, which sorely need revising. Incidentally, he gives sound advice as to meetings in general—advice to hearers for which public speakers will thank him. It relates first of all to filling the front seats. "The back-seat habit is discreditable to the service." Speakers should include in their agreement to talk a promise from the local committee or conductor "to dispose "your audience so that they will sit "with no empty seats in front of "them." The bare bench is "stupid, "unethical, rude, inhospitable and "unprofessional." It is a good rule for one attending any meeting at which there are addresses not to take a seat behind an empty seat.

Another mission on which Dr. MCANDREW has sent his pen is in protest against representations by the press in editorials or cartoons of an alleged dislike of school and teacher by the pupil. Those who carry on the tradition suggested by SHAKESPEARE'S schoolboy, "creeping like snail unwillingly to school," do not know the modern school. They should take advantage of the invitations which are now pressed upon parents and taxpayers to see the schools. American teachers, Dr. MCANDREW assures us, "have made "the schoolhouse the favorite resort "of children."

Chicago has lost much in parting with Dr. MCANDREW, but it is worth while to have such a man at large in the country.

AUTHORS' RIGHTS.

In one of the series of articles on the life of THOMAS HARDY being published by The London Times is related an incident illustrative of the difference in advice for authors available then and now. In 1872 a writer had no Society of Authors to which he could turn for information as to his rights in contracts, serial publication and copyright. Nowadays the Authors' League in this country and a similar society in England take considerable trouble to volunteer information which they urge writers to use. HARDY was not without some means of self-help, however.

He had been so discouraged by the reception of his first novel that when the second was returned to him with a criticism which he felt was unfavorable and knew was ambiguous he gave up the idea of writing anything more. The next year he met in the street the publisher of his first novel. Mr. TINSLEY persuaded him to hunt up the manuscript of "Under the Greenwood Tree," which he sold to the publisher outright for $150. It was very well received. Thereupon he was asked to write a story for Tinsley's Magazine. When the price was agreed upon, HARDY carefully refused to sign up for it without sleeping on the matter. Then he bought a book on copyright and studied it most of the night. Next day he went to sign the contract, adding the proviso that the sum paid was for the magazine rights only, all subsequent rights reverting to the author. The publisher agreed, though he protested that HARDY was very "hard" on him, but he acquired the sole ownership of the first novel at the same time by yielding.

Today an American author and member of the Authors' League would either glance through his file of Bulletins or inquire for the information he required at the office. Not only does the league answer questions in special cases presented by its members, but it also continually cites horrible examples of the things that have happened to authors who were ignorant or careless. There is a constant warning from month to month of the dangers of signing away rights which the purchaser is not going to exploit himself, but for which a market may suddenly develop. The advisability of having books copyrighted in the author's instead of the publisher's name has been strikingly shown in the case of the bankruptcy of a Boston firm. The trustees sold all the copyrights to a man who is now engaged in selling them back to the authors at prices ranging from $10 to $100 each. He paid $50 for the 400 titles he bought.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Betting Odds Are Eccentric.

On the eve of election in other Presidential years the "Wall Street betting odds" have attracted the widest possible interest. But it has greatly diminished this present year, for the reason that the handling of a multitude of large bets by Wall Street commission houses, which had hitherto created almost an organized market for election probabilities, has this time been discountenanced by the Stock Exchange. Still, the "Wall Street odds" exist, and their trend, even allowing for the more strictly individual character of this year's scattered betting, has been reasonably uniform.

In some respects they have been puzzling. Four years ago the odds were overwhelmingly on COOLIDGE, both for the nation and the supposedly doubtful States; the only notable seeming inconsistency being that, as against 11 to 1 odds on COOLIDGE for the general result, 10 to 5 was wagered on SMITH for the New York Governorship. These last odds were justified by the result. There appear to be more of such inconsistencies in the prevalent betting odds than in 1924.

At the close of last week, canvass of the Wall Street wagers found that, notwithstanding odds of 4 to 1 on HOOVER for the general result, 7 to 5 was laid that SMITH will carry Massachusetts, 6 to 5 that he will poll a plurality in New York State, and odds as high as 9 to 5 that ROOSEVELT will be elected Governor. Whether these ideas regarding results in populous Eastern States entirely square with the judgment expressed by the odds on the general result must be left to the experts. If they correctly indicate the probabilities, they would point to the most singular distribution of pluralities witnessed in any Presidential year since 1916.

Too Many Flying Accidents.

Sentiment may have something to do with the painful impression made by the crash of the airplane Yankee Doodle, in which Captain COLLYER and HARRY TUCKER were killed. The Yankee Doodle lately broke the record for a flight from Curtiss Field to Los Angeles, and it was in a return flight against time that the airplane caught fire and blew up in a canyon near Venezier, Ariz.

"There are too many airplane crashes nowadays," said Colonel LINDBERGH in an article written for THE TIMES. Most of them, he held, were "due to inexperience or to carelessness on the part of the pilot." Neither could be charged against a veteran like Captain COLLYER, but it may be the case that he failed to take into account the peril of making speed in a high desert region during a rainstorm. There is evidence that the engine was not working smoothly. When a machine is blown to pieces and there are no survivors, contributory negligence can be only a conjecture. Nevertheless, there is a warning to aviators who undertake to break flying records in every such attempt to keep the air in threatening weather.

Both in England and the United States flying accidents have resulted in the loss of many pilots and their passengers in 1928. In the first half of the year 153 persons were killed here; in the Royal Air Force alone the total was fifty-nine in eight months. September and October were tragic months in this country. On one day eight persons were killed in crashes in the Middle West, on another day the total was seven in one accident in Idaho.

Toothaches and Politics.

In the old days a King or a Queen could take the "cure" at some foreign spa without upsetting international politics. The late King EDWARD often went to Baden. His mother, Queen VICTORIA, preferred Nice. The Kaiser, to be sure, always created a flurry when he went off. But this was because of his own capacity for getting into international mischief.

Now, however, such things are changed. There are kings and kings today. ALFONSO may hunt in England or dance in Paris without trepidation. ALBERT may motor to Paris and back in a day without disturbing the political equilibrium. But when King ALEXANDER of Yugoslavia develops a toothache the Balkans rock. The Prime Minister of Hungary speaks darkly of racial characteristics and inequalities. The sharper the pain the surer the conviction of cynics that only a trip to Paris can ease it.

"What has become of Belgrade's American dentists?" A dozen European journalists ask this pertinent question. "What's the matter with the American dentists in near-by Vienna?" ask others. "Why doesn't the King employ local talent and have the tooth out?" is the question on the lips of Yugoslav nationalists.

The King continues to pack (and ache). He makes appointments with his Paris dentist. Perhaps he thinks how pleasant it will be when the tooth is out and he can eat his first "square" meal in Paris. But the cynics continue to point to the news that France is contemplating a new loan to Yugoslavia, and that the King's is therefore only a diplomatic toothache.

The Meaning Beneath the Slogan.

"Safety First" is a slogan so short, pithy and sensible-sounding that accident prevention workers have made wholesale use of it. While in many cases, such as the unequal competition of the automobile with the train on a grade crossing, it is applicable, there are some instances where it has been found to antagonize the very people whom it is designed to help.

RICHARD V. AGSTON, in charge of accident prevention work in zinc mines, discovered that where "Safety First" was strongly advertised in posters and talks carelessness was on the increase. In addition, the men displayed an increasing reluctance to cooperate with the managers in other important phases of the work. By getting into casual conversation with them he found that they had come to doubt the sincerity of their employers in everything because they were convinced of their insincerity in this one matter. Often they were at some pains to explain to him that production comes first and that "Safety First" is "the bunk." The slogan is ridiculous to men who believe that something else is actually the first consideration. They have to be educated afresh with such teachings as "Careful Work Prevents Accidents."

This slogan must seem as foolish to the zinc miners as the new Pullman sign does to travelers. Appearing beside the familiar "Quiet" card is a notice to the effect that "It Is Better to Be Cautious Than Lucky."

Strange Arguments.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

From Mr. Hughes's highly interesting speech last night two points stand sharply out. First, he tells all disbelievers in the Volstead law to register their disapproval by voting for the candidate who says no change must be permitted. Mr. Hughes's able mind works that way. Precisely eight years ago he urged his fellow-admirers of the League of Nations to vote for its chief opponent, Mr. Harding, in order to be quite certain that the league should finally triumph. Look up that record. You won't find its equal outside of Alice's Wonderland.

Second, Mr. Hughes decries Governor Smith as a candidate whose experience has come only from the Governorship of the State of New York. Just twelve years ago Mr. Hughes advocated his own election on the record of precisely that same experience. Mr. Hughes's experience as Governor of the State of New York lasted just half as long as that of Governor Smith. But then, of course, Mr. Hughes was a rapid learner.

CONTRACTION.

The heart, that in its growing years has girth
To compass moon and stars and storm-whipped sea,
And all the multiform phenomena of earth,
Begins to narrow at maturity.
Excluding all but some small patch of ground,
A rain-tight roof, a long-proved friend, a few
Appointed ones to whom the flesh is bound—
A mellow song, a cheerful book or two:
Then, shrinking imperceptibly each year,
Contracts until it scarcely may retain
Remembrance of possessions once held dear;
But such diminutive delights remain:
A special brand of tea infused with care;
Unquestioned tenure of a certain chair.

DISPUTING DR. DIEFFENBACH

A Protestant Cites History to Prove Political Idealism of Catholics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An article in THE TIMES quoting the Rev. Dr. Albert C. Dieffenbach on the subject of "Church and State" persuades me, as a member of the same religious fellowship as that of the editor of The Christian Register, to voice my disapproval of the argument he so frequently advances in public utterances against a Catholic for the Presidency of the United States. Dr. Dieffenbach, like most editors of Protestant religious publications, endeavors to persuade his readers that Governor Smith stands for election to the Presidency as a representative of the Roman Catholic Church. "Why take any chances?" is his slogan. The sophistry of this argument was impressively exposed by Mr. Hughes in his Chicago speech when, with royal impartiality, he declared that both Governor Smith and Mr. Hoover were outstanding representatives of our best American traditions.

Dr. Dieffenbach, like all his professional confrères, passes over in complete silence the unique and magnificent contribution of the Catholics of America to the political idealism of the United States. He knows that it was not Massachusetts, nor Virginia but the Catholic colony of Maryland that first granted full religious freedom in this country. That was in 1649. But when the Protestants came into power in 1714 this historic act of toleration was repealed and Catholics were disfranchised. Yet Protestant religious editors would have us believe that the principle of the separation of Church and State, which prevails in this country, was the distinctive contribution of our Anglo-Saxon Protestant forefathers, when history proves that it was our Anglo-Saxon Catholic forefathers who first attempted this enlightened experiment. The political tradition of the Catholics of America is that of Maryland, and not of Rome. The insinuation that our Catholic friends have a divided loyalty to country is unfounded, and to wage a persecution against them over a "religious issue" is to make mockery of the sacred principles of equality and brotherhood upon which this Republic was founded.

An Opportunity.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An opportunity exists for one desirous of aiding a meritorious endeavor without a large outlay of money. Visitors to Naples are acquainted with the wonderful Stazione Zoologica, where many of our foremost scientists have carried on investigations. The space available is limited and, since the facilities are open to research workers of all countries, only a few of all applicants can be accommodated.

Wonderful as the fauna and flora of the Bay of Naples are, they are by no means unique. The Corsican shores teem with life and represent an almost untapped source of valuable material.

Professor H. C. Van der Heyde, formerly of universities in this country, the Sorbonne, Amsterdam and Utrecht, has given up an otherwise promising career as chief of his department in a Holland university and purchased with his own funds a tract of land near Galeria on the Island of Corsica. The laboratory thus founded is a nucleus of an institution which, properly endowed, would take its place as an important station supplementing Naples and others such as Plymouth, England; Rostock and Rugen, and our own Woods Hole.

The immediate needs are funds to purchase apparatus to complete investigations already begun. One thousand dollars will meet this demand.

Undoubtedly, some Americans who frequent the Riviera would care to further this work. It would afford a pleasant diversion from Nice, Mentone, Monaco or the newer Andorra to run over to Ajaccio and thence by picturesque routes to Galeria, in order to see their adopted child. Indeed, were the interest in his laboratory strong enough and sufficiently supported, Dr. Van der Heyde would gladly give the laboratory the donor's name. In such a manner could one establish a memorial like that to which Louis Agassiz gave inception on our Island of Penikese, which later became the famous Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole, Mass.

Finally, it would be a pleasant gesture to return this compliment of Agassiz by founding in Europe a marine biological laboratory in which our investigators could mingle with the Old World scientists.

Detailed information may be obtained by addressing me at the Hotel Roosevelt.

Five-Cent Fare and the Budget.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The mild rebuke contained in your editorial to the Walker Administration for the tremendous increase in the budget leaves the average taxpayer wondering where he will find a courageous champion to espouse his cause.

No one can believe that property in this city has increased in value to the tremendous extent of $1,430,000,000 in the past year, in spite of the large amount of new building which has been going on, yet this is the increase in assessed valuations, in round numbers.

Every year the taxpayer finds that his assessment has been increased. How long can this inflation continue? The five-cent fare fetish of the politicians is of course responsible for a great deal of it, with $15,000,000 appropriated last year and $25,000,000 next year for the construction of subways, in the hope, as you state, of thus preserving the five-cent fare, in this the richest city in the country, when it has disappeared from every other. Five cents will only buy what three cents would buy before the World War. This is known by every one but ignored by the present City Administration in the hope of hoodwinking the average man into the belief that increased taxes do not affect his cost of living.

Not the "Emperor's Carpet."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On July 6 and on Oct. 24 THE TIMES printed dispatches from London regarding the sale of the "Emperor's Carpet" to an American firm at a reported price of $200,000.

The carpet in question, although like many others formerly in the possession of the imperial family, is not the "Emperor's Carpet," but is one of two duplicates, both of which are known as ""Tierteppiche" (Animals' Carpets). These duplicates being exactly alike, one was sold by the Austrian Government in 1925 and is the one to which your dispatches referred. The other remained in the possession of the Austrian Government.

Neither of the above-mentioned carpets is identical with the famous "Emperor's Carpet." The carpet which is known under that name to art lovers and connoisseurs all over the world and is considered to be perhaps the most valuable and most beautiful carpet in existence has never been sold, but is held by the Museum for Art and Industry in Vienna as unsalable property of the Austrian Government.

MONCADA INCREASES LEAD IN NICARAGUA

Returns From 345 of 432 Precincts Give Liberal Margin of 19,618 for Presidency.

CLOSE RACES FOR CONGRESS

Tie Is Indicated in Senate—Slight Conservative Advantage Is Expected in Chamber.

By Tropical Radio to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 5.—Additional returns from yesterday's Presidential election increased the majority of the Liberal candidate, General José María Moncada.

More than three-quarters of the precincts have now reported, showing a Liberal majority of 19,618. Of the 432 precincts, the returns from 345 give the Liberals a total of 65,632 votes against the Conservatives' 46,014. It is expected that the remaining eighty-seven precincts will increase the Liberal majority slightly.

It is believed that Emiliano Chamorro, former President, has been elected Senator for the Province of Matagalpa though a number of precincts in that province have not yet reported. The unreported precincts however, are remote districts where usually Chamorro is strong.

Carlos Cuadra Pasos, Conservative and former Foreign Minister, has been defeated as candidate for the Chamber of Deputies by the Liberal in Managua Province.

The complexion of Congress is still doubtful though the indications are that the Conservatives will be in control. At present the position in the Senate appears to be a tie, while the race for the Chamber of Deputies is very close with a probable Conservative majority of not more than two. It will require the complete returns to determine the exact composition.

Confidence Brought Heavy Vote.

The total absence of disorder at the polls and the heavy vote furnished the chief surprises of the election, even to the American mission, which predicted there might be attempts at violence in a few places. Not even a fist fight has been reported to the National Election Board from any part of the country.

It was expected that the total vote would fall at least 20 per cent. below the registrations, but the returns so far indicate a vote within 15 per cent. of the registrations.

The American election officials and marine officers attribute the heavy vote to the confidence of the people that they would not be intimidated by partisans of either side.

The National Election Board has received a number of messages from various parts of the country congratulating them upon the fair and impartial manner in which the election has been conducted.

General Sandino has not been a factor in the election and he has almost been forgotten in Nicaragua. From his jungle hiding place on the northern border, where he has been for many weeks, he has made a number of threats to disrupt the election machinery, but his hand was not seen anywhere during the voting. General Sandino is known to be a violent enemy of General Moncada, but the latter's big majority would indicate that Sandino's influence has completely faded away.

Marines Win High Praise.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Samuel J. Fletcher, American Consul at Bluefields, reported to the State Department that the election was a complete success on the east coast of Nicaragua. No disturbance was reported up to 6 o'clock last night, he said, by any local election boards or marine patrols.

Credit was given to the American bluejackets and marines on duty in Nicaragua for the orderly character of the election by Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, commander of the Special Service Squadron in Nicaraguan waters, in a report to Secretary Wilbur.

"All reports available," he said, "indicate that the national election was carried out throughout the country without disorder and in free, impartial manner. In the opinion of the squadron commander, great credit is due to General Feland and the marines and bluejackets under his command, who by energetic and consistent hard work have not only thwarted the efforts of Sandino, his bandit groups and others to interfere with the election, but all hands have displayed a high degree of initiative and intelligence.

"They have endured hardships of tropical service under very adverse conditions and by their unflagging zeal and attention to duty have enabled the United States to give Nicaragua the best election in the history of the country."

Stand of Parties Shifted.

With the election of General José María Moncada as President of Nicaragua, the Liberal forces which raised revolt in that land approximately two years ago, came into power. General Moncada, who was the military leader of Dr. Juan Sacasa's revolt of 1926, was actually one of the figures against whom the United States Marines entered the country at that time.

So, by a curious twist of fate, the United States, for two years active in bringing about conditions that would permit a fair and peaceful election, has actually fostered the party which was a revolutionary minority less than two years ago.

But the purpose of the Marines' entry, as explained by the State Department, was to preserve the peace and to permit a fair expression of the people's choice without recourse to bloodshed, bribery, and the other forces which might otherwise have influenced the election.

In the course of two years' intercession in Nicaragua the conditions, according to observers, have considerably shifted. It was Moncada who acquiesced to the United States demand that the Liberals lay down their arms, and it was the Chamorristas Conservatives, representing the nation's old aristocracy, who last Spring secretly and almost successfully opposed the United States' effort for a clean election.

Hence last March the Conservatives and not the Liberals bitterly attacked American activity when the supporters of President Diaz tried to put through a measure in the Legislature authorizing United States supervision. The measure was defeated and only came into effect several days afterward by an Executive decree promulgated by the President, without recourse to the Congress. This measure gave General Frank R. McCoy virtually dictatorial powers.

President Diaz's action caused a schism in the Conservative Party, Chamorro taking the intransigent side. It was Chamorro's candidate, Adolfo Benard, a wealthy sugar planter and representative of the old aristocracy, who was defeated.

HIROHITO SETS OUT FOR ENTHRONEMENT

Gorgeous Procession Amid a Scene of Splendor Marks Start for Kyoto Ceremonies.

TOKIO A MASS OF GAY COLOR

Citizens Hail Their 124th Emperor, Whose 2,000-Year-Old Ancestral Shrine is Borne Before Him.

By HUGH BYAS.

Special to The New York Times.

TOKIO, Tuesday, Nov. 6.—The Emperor Hirohito departed this morning for his enthronement at Kyoto amid a scene of beauty and splendor.

When the head of the imperial procession appeared on the upper of the two bridges which form the entrance to the imperial palace the sun was just rising in a cloudless sky over a matchless picture, the foreground of which was a broad sanded space framed in masses of troops, whose bayonets flashed with every movement, while behind rose the towering walls of the ancient castle above the green banks of the inner moat.

Every leaf and gray stone was picked in clear, soft relief by the level rays of the morning sun, the white watch towers and the green, curving roofs of the palace buildings combining with deep foliage of the centuries-old pine trees to make a perfect setting for the vivid colors of the procession.

In front, escorted by the lancers, came the imperial ancestral shrine in a silken palanquin, borne shoulder high by young men from Yasu village, who have this hereditary privilege. The shrine was attended by mounted priests in light blue robes, and, as it passed, the loyal multitudes, too closely jammed to kneel, bowed in deepest reverence.

Immediately after the shrine came the Emperor in his Phoenix coach, preceded by a blood-red silken banner of the rising sun, escorted by lancers. His Majesty seemed remarkably well and looked keenly to right and left acknowledging salutes as he passed.

The Empress followed in a State carriage, after which came Prince and Princess Chichibu and other Princes and Princesses of the blood, imperial Ministers of State and high officials.

The procession moved at a slow, walking pace, set by the bearers of the shrine, and all the thousands who lined the route had an excellent view.

The Emperor and Empress rested a short while at the station before boarding the imperial train, which all day long as it steams through the golden countryside will be received by rural Japan with silent respect.

200,000 Citizens Line Route.

TOKIO, Tuesday, Nov. 6 (AP).—Emperor Hirohito left the capital by special train at 8 A. M. today for Kyoto, where he will be enthroned on Saturday as the one hundred and twenty-fourth imperial ruler of Japan. He will break his journey at Nagoya this afternoon and will spend the night at the detached palace there.

Twenty thousand troops of the Imperial Bodyguard and the First Division lined the short distance over which the Emperor passed in going from Chiyoda Castle, embodiment of the old Japan, to the modern Tokio railroad station.

The Emperor began his westward progress with the rising sun, which is the national emblem of his country. The level rays of the early morning shone from a cloudless sky to disclose an unforgettable spectacle to the eyes of the 200,000 who lined the route from the palace to the station.

A few minutes after 7 o'clock the first horseman of the procession appeared on the upper span of the two-fold bridge spanning the inner moat of the palace grounds. He was followed in stately splendor by the other elements of the elaborate ritual, of which the Emperor's phoenix-crested carriage and the kashikodokoro, ark of the sacred mirror, attracted the greatest attention.

Bugles sounding the imperial salute marked the progress of the sovereign, who acknowledged the honors with slight bows. He wore the gold, red and blue uniform of a generalissimo with a white-plumed cap. The crowds, silent and reverent, uncovered their heads and bent in low bows as his Majesty passed.

The morning mist softened the tones of the unique background of the procession, the massed evergreens, the towering two-fold bridge with its flanking white watchtowers rising above the moat, and the green palace roofs rising above all. The black lines of the spectators were held in place by the khaki and red lines of the imperial guards.

The outer palace park was reserved for privileged spectators, but the populace had its place in the broad plaza in front of the railroad station. It was packed by scores of thousands who overflowed into side streets from which they could obtain only a glimpse of the spectacle. These crowds had gathered during the dark night, shepherded by thousands of police, and had waited patiently for the sunrise.

The imperial bands struck up the national anthem, "Kimigayo," as the Emperor reached the station. He had a rest of half an hour before entraining with his suite. As the special train pulled out of the station promptly at 8 o'clock, the first of the imperial salute of 101 guns was boomed.

Rite 2,000 Years Old Observed.

The modern military pageant of the procession was in sharp contrast with the carrying of the sacred mirror in the same manner as 2,000 years ago. The mirror, symbol of the soul of Amaterasu-O-Mi-Kami, the sun goddess and ancestress of the imperial line of Japan, with the sword and the jewel, are the three sacred treasures that have passed from sovereign to sovereign.

In contrast to these ancient treasures, the rays of the sun glistened on the bayonets and sabres of 20,000 picked troops. The plumed hats of the thousands of officials of high rank in full uniform gave the appearance of a snowdrift.

Except for the bugle call and the sharp military commands which brought the soldiers to salute, the procession moved silently to the station over roads muffled by a layer of fine black sand. Horses, but no automobiles, were in the parade.

Next behind the Kashikodokoro came the imperial standard, a golden chrysanthemum on a field of crimson silk, announcing the approach of the ruler. His carriage, rich in brown lacquer with golden chrysanthemum seals, was drawn by six horses.

Close behind was the four-horse carriage of Empress Nagako. She was stylishly dressed in a large sky-blue hat with a sweeping white plume and a soft blue gown. She rode along modestly, with downcast eyes.

Next was the carriage of Prince Kotohito Kan-In and then that of the Emperor's younger brother, Prince Chichibu, with his recent bride, who was Setsuko Matsudaira. The young Prince wore a military uniform, while the daughter of the former Ambassador to the United States was becomingly dressed in a white cloche hat and a white and plum colored gown. There followed the carriages of the Premier and other dignitaries.

About 300 foreigners, journalists, residents and a few American tourists watched the procession from assigned places which they had occupied since 4 o'clock. The procession moved without a hitch from the palace to the station.

Tokio throughout last night bore the aspect of a celebration which comes once in a generation. At nightfall scores of thousands of lanterns of brilliant designs lining the main street were lighted and illuminated thousands of banners bearing such inscriptions as "Bansaii Coeval With Heaven and Earth" and "Loyal Subjects' Congratulations."

Ancient Capital Transformed.

KYOTO, Japan, Nov. 5 (AP).—This ancient capital of Japan has been transformed into a blaze of Oriental color for the principal religious ceremonies of the enthronement of Emperor Hirohito, which will be held here on Saturday.

All the streets have been gayly decorated with flags, lanterns and bunting, while triumphal arches have been erected.

Extraordinary precautions, the most ever taken to guard royal personages, have been completed, including the mobilization and deployment of 30,000 police in Tokio and Kyoto, which is three times the number engaged in the enthronement of 1915.

The entire staff of the railway and the crack troops of the empire will have every yard of their Majesties' passage from Tokio to Kyoto under surveillance.

OTTO E. DRYFOOS MOURNED BY 1,000

Rev. Dr. Schulman Pays Warm Tribute at Funeral of Emanu-El Trustee.

HIS PHILANTHROPIES MANY

Had Served as Treasurer of Temple and Chairman of Its Committee on Religious Schools.

Funeral services for Otto E. Dryfoos, a trustee and associate treasurer of Temple Emanu-El and head of the hosiery and underwear firm that bears his name, who died on Saturday at his residence, 440 Park Avenue, were held yesterday at the temple on Fifth Avenue by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Schulman, rabbi of the congregation. About 1,000 friends attended.

The trustees of Temple Emanu-El and the former Temple Beth-El trustees served as honorary bearers. Members of the family present included the widow, Mrs. Millie Samuel Dryfoos; two daughters, Mrs. Sidney Herman and Mrs. Arthur B. Levi, and two sons, Sidney O. E. and Jack A. Dryfoos. Among others at the services were officers and members of the Harmonie Club and bank officials with whom Mr. Dryfoos had been associated.

Lilies of the valley and orchids predominated among the many floral tributes that were sent to the temple. A blanket of these flowers covered the coffin.

Dr. Schulman paid tribute to the character of Mr. Dryfoos, saying:

"He was a man of rugged character and unbending integrity. He had the higher standards of honor. He loved truth and hated lies. He was frank and fearless and absolutely dependable. His word was the equality of a bond. He therefore was honored in a world of his peers as a successful and honorable merchant.

"The strength of his character was the impressive house in which was the holy of holies of his personality and his tender heart. He not only contributed to all public charities but responded quickly in various directions when calls were made for the needy and suffering.

"He was a whole-souled and enthusiastic Jew. He loved his faith and was deeply concerned for its perpetuation. He served Temple Beth-El for many years as trustee, as Treasurer and as Chairman of its Committee on Religious Schools. He was of a group that gave most generously to the sanctuary, and he had the vision to see that it would be to the glory of Israel and Judaism to unite the two congregations [Emanu-El and Beth-El].

"We keenly regret that he passed away so soon. He had a pure heart, brave and full of faith until the last. He walked as a whole man on earth, and therefore he goes securely and unafraid across the threshold into life eternal."

The honorary bearers included Louis Marshall, President of the Board of Trustees of Temple Emanu-El; Ben Altheimer, Vice President; Henry M. Toch, Treasurer; William I. Spiegelberg, Secretary, and the following members: Henry J. Bernheim, Davis Brown, Philip J. Goodhart, Sidney H. Herman, Irving Lehman, Benjamin Morstadt, Samuel M. Newburger, Adolph S. EVEN CHANCE SEEN IN QUEENS CONTEST

Neither Patten Nor Harvey Make Predictions, but Both Issue Final Appeals.

MUCH SPLITTING EXPECTED

Fight Over Borough Presidency Believed to Threaten Gov. Smith's Plurality There.

Interest in the contest for Borough President of Queens continued keen yesterday and for the first time since the inclusion of that borough in New York City the Democratic candidate failed to be an odds-on favorite for election. It was said to be an even-money bet as to whether Borough President Bernard M. Patten, Democrat, or George U. Harvey, Republican, would be elected. The number of split ballots is expected to be very large.

The situation in Queens, which resulted from the sewer graft investigation and the conviction of Maurice E. Connolly, former Borough President, is believed to threaten to cut down the plurality Governor Smith would otherwise receive in the borough because of resentment some of the friends of Mr. Connolly feel toward the Governor for ordering an investigation on the application of Mr. Harvey. There has been a tremendous increase in registration, as a result of which the entire borough had to be redistricted, and more than 50,000 postal cards have been sent out notifying registrants that they will vote at places other than where they registered.

Appeals by Candidates.

Neither of the candidates for Borough President made a prediction but each issued a final appeal to the voters. Borough President Patten said:

"I have asked the voters before they cast their vote to forget for a moment any partisan feeling that they might have and think of the borough as a corporation assessed at over two billion dollars, with the voters as stockholders. Think of this corporation as one organized for the purpose of doing things that add to their comfort, convenience, health and prosperity. I ask them then to consider the qualifications of the two men who are running for office and decide which is best qualified to conduct the affairs of the corporation. If the voters take that attitude, then I am satisfied that I will be given an opportunity to serve the people of Queens for another year.

Mr. Harvey said:

"I do not like making predictions. The people of the borough who cast their votes for me will not be voting for me, but for the protection of their homes. Already several thousands have had their homes confiscated, due to high taxes and assessments. If the present conditions in the borough government prevail for another five years, the average small home owner in the borough will have lost all his equity in his property. I believe this condition is realized by the voters of the borough."

Both Sides See Victory.

At the headquarters of the Smith-Roosevelt Citizens' Committee, Assistant District Attorney James J. Conroy said that there was no doubt that Smith and Roosevelt would carry Queens. "We believe the Democratic plurality will be surprisingly large," he said.

William Haarstedt, Chairman of the Queens Hoover-Curtis League, predicted that Hoover would carry the borough by at least 10,000. "Hoover and Curtis will lose the First, Second and Third Assembly Districts by 5,000 each," he said. "They will carry the Fourth Assembly District by 15,000 and the Fifth and Sixth by 5,000 and 6,000, respectively."

TRAIN HITS BOYS ON BRIDGE

Waterford (N. Y.) Brothers Die of Injuries in Fall Off Trestle.

WATERFORD, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP).—Two small brothers who climbed to a railroad trestle "to watch the trains go by," are dead today, flung from the bridge when the first passenger train roared past them. Leo Ryan, 6 years old, died in a hospital two hours after he had been tossed into the barge canal yesterday. His 7-year-old brother, Joseph, died today in another hospital.

The boys went to a canal lock a short distance from their home here, and near the railroad trestle, to watch the boats. Tiring of this, they decided that the trains thundering over the trestle offered more entertainment and climbed to the trestle abuttment. The operator of the canal lock, glancing up as he heard the train approach, saw the bodies of the children whirling down as the locomotive sped out onto the bridge.

Royce Moves for Summary Judgment in "Rio Rita" Case.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Decision was reserved today by Supreme Court Justice Frank L. Young upon the application of David Newburger of New York, attorney for Edward Royce, for a summary judgment against Florenz Ziegfeld for $32,500.

Denision was also reserved upon Royce's application for barring some testimony given by Ziegfeld at an examination before trial conducted here last Summer on the ground that it was not in accord with the bill of particulars.

In the suit, started more than a year ago, Royce asserts he was discharged without cause as director of "Rio Rita." The producer alleged that Royce had often been intoxicated and neglected his duties. No date for trial has been set.

JAILED LAWYER DISBARRED.

Appellate Division Acts in Case of Nathan B. Finkelstein.

Nathan B. Finkelstein, former Republican Assemblyman and lawyer, who is serving a prison term for grand larceny, was disbarred by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday.

Finkelstein's conviction resulted from a series of fraudulent mortgage transactions, whereby he was alleged to have swindled clients out of more than $500,000.

"Do You Know, Mr. Wanamaker," the Kind Old Lady Said,

"that I come to your Store just as I go to our old family doctor or to my banker, who has charge of my money, or to the lawyer who has always attended to our business matters. I feel your Store, knowing it as I do for long years of dealing with you, has in it everything I want, and that I can trust you for its proper quality and its just prices. You save me a lot of bother by having never disappointed me, and I am just as well satisfied with you and your Store as I am with my doctor, banker, lawyer." Well, now, why shouldn't it be so?

Secretary of State Says "Not Guilty" to Charge of Larceny of Public Funds.

TRIAL AWAITS FULL AUDIT

Governor Holds Official's Resignation Over Till Tomorrow to Avoid Election Tangle.

BALLOT SHORTAGE FOUND

State Orders Night Work to Get Out 20,000 More—Wife Calls Pillsbury Victim of Party Foes.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 5.—Secretary of State Robert Pillsbury, arraigned in the Municipal Court here today, pleaded not guilty to a charge of larceny of State funds and was released in $8,000 bail upon the continuance of the case till Nov. 19.

He waived the reading of the warrant upon which he was arrested at his home in Manchester and in which the specific amount of the discrepancy was named as $134, though it is understood that the irregularities discovered thus far total $1,000.

Attorney General Jeremy R. Waldron announced tonight that a complete audit of the books of the Department of the Secretary of State would be made under the direction of the State Auditor, assisted by a private auditing agency. This audit, he said, would cover the period beginning with Pillsbury's election to office in 1925 to the present and would require about ten days.

After the arraignment, Governor Huntley N. Spaulding held a conference with Attorney General Waldron, Assistant Attorney General John P. Carleton and Secretary Pillsbury, and decided that Mr. Pillsbury's resignation should not go into effect until Wednesday morning. The Governor explained that the delay was to prevent any technical difficulty from invalidating tomorrow's election, the ballots for which have been issued and signed by Mr. Pillsbury as Secretary of State.

Rush to Fill Ballot Shortage.

The developments of the past twenty-four hours, involving the arrest and resignation of Secretary Pillsbury, whose wife is a candidate for re-election as Commissioner of Hillsborough County, has complicated the political situation in New Hampshire, and the Republican leaders, who had been confident of victory for the national and State tickets, are beginning to express apprehension concerning tomorrow's outcome.

Further disturbance in the political atmosphere has been brought about by the discovery that at least seventy-six towns or wards are short of their ballot quotas, which were prepared for distribution by Mr. Pillsbury.

When the situation became known Deputy Secretary of State Frederick I. Blackwood, now in charge of the department, telegraphed to every town and city clerk in the State to learn the status of their ballot supplies.

It was found that the State was 20,950 ballots short of the registration, not to mention the legal requirements which call for sixty ballots for every fifty voters. No attempt will be made to meet the legal requirements.

Every available motor vehicle of the State Department had been dedicated to the printers in Manchester, which will work through the night preparing the ballots necessary to fill the quotas. Late tonight the officials were confident that a sufficient number of ballots would be in the hands of every moderator not later than noon tomorrow.

Mrs. Pillsbury Blames Party Foes.

Mrs. Pillsbury, who is willing to leave it to the electorate regarding her record, is loyal to her husband. She blames political enemies for her husband's plight, intimating that the primary contest between the Old Guard and progressive wings of the Republican Party, which resulted in victory for Charles W. Tobey, a progressive, for the Gubernatorial nomination, and her activities in investigating county affairs, had something to do with the present attack.

Although Mrs. Pillsbury's maiden name, "A. O. Weller," appeared on the two manifests upon which the larceny charge is based, Mr. Pillsbury has completely exonerated her from all blame in connection with the case. He has declared that she knew absolutely nothing about the checks, never saw them and received none of the money. He assumes all the responsibility.

Charging animosity against her on the County Board, Mrs. Pillsbury said that she had documentary evidence in her purse that she had not revealed regarding conduct of affairs in the county.

"I have been begged to remain quiet for the sake of the Republican Party," she said.

"If I am ever asked again to speak before women's clubs and groups of women eager to get into civic affairs, I feel right now that I will say, 'politics is no game for a lady to get into.'"

Mr. Pillsbury is a graduate of Harvard and Superintendent of the Franklin Street Congregational Church Sunday School in Manchester. He is the father of five children.

MADRID, Nov. 5.—General Primo de Rivera became his own Foreign Minister today when the officers of the newly reorganized Cabinet took the oath. The duties of the Foreign Ministry will remain unaltered but they will henceforth be directed personally by the Premier.

Other new Ministers who took office today were the Minister of War, General Ardanaz, who is extremely popular with the army; the Minister of Marine, Rear Admiral Garcia Reyes, the youngest navy man who has ever reached a directing post, and Count de los Andes, a strong personal friend and adviser of General Primo de Rivera, who becomes Minister of National Economy.

Britain's Newest Cruiser And Liner Crash in Clyde

Wireless to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The 10,000-ton cruiser London, the newest vessel in the British Navy, was in collision with the 12,000-ton White Star liner Runic at Greenock, Scotland, last night. Both ships suffered slight damage above the water line.

The London is known as the "mystery ship" of the navy because it embodies structural improvements which have not yet been disclosed. She was launched last year and has been in commission only three weeks. Her armament includes eight 8-inch guns and twenty-nine smaller guns.

MANIU REJECTS REGENTS' TERMS

Peasant Leader Refuses to Compromise on Cabinet With Rumanian Rulers.

DECLINES THE PREMIERSHIP

Members of Regency, Unable to Agree on Another, Await Return of Titulescu.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 5.—The political leaders of Rumania today marked time more or less and are expected to continue to do so till Nicholas Titulescu arrives from London.

The Regency offered the Premiership to Juliu Maniu on condition that he permit the Regency to name the Ministers of the Interior, War and Foreign Affairs. Maniu refused.

The Regency members could not agree on any other man of Premiership calibre, so decided to await M. Titulescu's arrival.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 5 (AP).—Still without a Government and with all political conferences abortive, Rumania tonight was anxiously awaiting the arrival of Nicholas Titulescu, politically independent statesman, who it is hoped will solve her problems.

Chances of an early solution appeared lessened because of the sudden fusion of the minority parties led by General Fofoza Averescu, Nicholas Jorga and Dr. Nicholas Lupu, who apparently intend to combine against Juliu Maniu and his Peasant Party, unless a part in the Government is accorded them.

Vintila Bratianu, who resigned as Premier on Saturday at the request of the Regency, suggested to that group of three which rules for the boy King Michael that a National Government be formed with the participation of the Liberal Party.

OFFER $1,000 REWARD IN WOMAN'S BURNING

Authorities Seek Solution of Miss Knaak's Death—Body Buried at Deerfield, Ill.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Funeral services were held today in Deerfield, Ill., over the burned body of Miss Alfrieda Knaak, while the Finance Committee of the Lake County Board of Supervisors decided on a reward of $1,000 for any information contrary to the woman's ante-mortem statement that she burned herself in the Lake Bluff police station furnace as a purification and love rite.

The reward notice specified it would be paid for information leading to the apprehension of any one who might have assisted Miss Knaak in her immolation attempt or "who burned and tortured her with intent to murder her."

A. V. Smith, State's Attorney, of Lake County, favored the offering of the reward because of the doubt in the minds of Miss Knaak's relatives and other persons that she could have subjected herself to such severe burns because of a "spiritual love" for Policeman Charles W. Hitchcock. He sent the brain of the dead girl to Dr. William D. McNally, Coroner's chemist and toxicologist at Chicago, for examination as to indication of any mental disease.

RICE IS INDICTED FOR GIRL'S MURDER

District Attorney Plans to Prove Alice Joost's Death Was Premeditated.

DOUBTS CONFESSION STORY

His Believed Boy Feared Betrayal Following Attempted Attack—Lunacy Commission Possible.

Vincent Rice, 17-year-old boy who confessed Saturday to the murder of Alice Joost, 15 years old, found strangled with an electric iron cord in her home at 160 Clinton Avenue, Port Richmond, S. I., last Friday night, was indicted yesterday by the Richmond County Grand Jury for murder in the first degree.

Rice will be arraigned for pleading at 10 o'clock on Friday morning before Supreme Court Justice John B. Johnston, but will not be tried before the end of November. District Attorney Albert C. Fach expects to be busy until that time with the third trial of Harry Hoffman, former Port Richmond motion picture operator charged with the murder of Mrs. Maud Bauer four and a half years ago. The latter trial opens in Brooklyn tomorrow.

District Attorney Fach made it plain yesterday that he expected to prove the murder of Alice Joost was premeditated. He declared the fact that Rice, after knocking the girl down, paced the floor and then went into the kitchen, unfastened the electric iron cord and returning to the bedroom wound the cord deliberately four times around the girl's neck, was ample evidence of premeditation.

Fach Sees New Motive.

Although in his confession Rice asserted that he struck the girl when she tried to embrace him, the District Attorney believes Rice tried to attack her and that fear lest the girl betray him was his real motive for the crime. The District Attorney admitted he had no proof that Miss Joost was assaulted, but said he was awaiting a report from Dr. Otto Gettler, toxicologist at Bellevue Hospital. This report, he said, might furnish the necessary evidence.

Frank H. Innes, attorney for Rice, said yesterday that the boy's parents had authorized him to spare no expense in retaining the best alienist available. Mr. Innes declared that the family was satisfied Rice was mentally unbalanced at the time the crime was committed, and added that after the youth had been arraigned for pleading next Friday they will have him examined by an alienist. If the examination warrants it, Mr. Innes said, he will make application immediately for the appointment of a lunacy commission. A legal technicality requires that Rice plead not guilty when arraigned.

Since the youth's arrest last Friday night, Mr. Innes said, ten young women who have known Rice for several years have come personally to the attorney's office and volunteered to take the stand as character witnesses should they be needed.

Grand Jury Hears Witnesses.

Although thirty witnesses were scheduled to be heard by the Grand Jury yesterday only about half that number actually were called. These included Dr. George P. Mord, Deputy Medical Examiner of Richmond, who testified that Miss Joost died of strangulation; Frank di Sandis, a letter carrier, who told of having seen Miss Joost at home that morning; John Errickson, a neighbor of the Joost family, who saw Rice leaving the house, and Deputy Inspector Ernest Van Wagner and Detective John Lewis, who obtained Rice's confession.

When informed yesterday that the Grand Jury had indicted Rice, the only comment of Mrs. Lucie Joost, the girl's mother, was: "I am satisfied that if he committed the murder he will be severely dealt with by the law." Mrs. Joost told of finding a wrist watch belonging to her daughter and which the girl always wore hidden in a jar in the kitchen. It was turned over to the police. The hands of the watch had stopped at 6:15, and the police believe the watch fell from the girl's wrist during her struggle with Rice and was subsequently found and hidden by him.

The body of the murdered girl will be buried tomorrow in St. Peter's Cemetery at New Brighton, following a requiem high mass at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Port Richmond. The Rev. John Snyder, assistant pastor of the church, will officiate. A number of classmates of Miss Joost from Port Richmond High School will act as honorary pallbearers.

McCORMICK HELPS HOOVER.

Newspaper of Former Democratic Leader Appeals for Anti-Smith Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 5.—The Patriot and Evening News, published by Vance C. McCormick, former Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, today printed sample ballots showing how to vote the Democratic ticket but with a mark beside the name of Hoover for the Presidency.

Mr. McCormick, early in the campaign, bolted Smith on the prohibition issue.

Cards urging citizens to "vote for these candidates," issued by the Dauphin County Democratic Organization today, likewise do not contain the names of the Smith-Robinson ticket. Neither do they contain those of the Democratic State office nominees who were backed by the present State organization.

Robber Sentenced to 25 Years.

Thomas Cirrone, 24 years old, of 83 East Broadway, one of three men who held up a shoe store at 738 Third Avenue on the night of June 7, last, and shot the manager before fleeing with $47, was sentenced to twenty-five years in State's prison yesterday by Judge Donnellan in General Sessions. Cirrone was caught after a chase by one of the clerks in the store and was identified by Melville Hartsall, the manager, who had been shot in the chest when he and the other two employes had their hands in the air at the robbers' command. A probation officer's report to the Court described Cirrone as a "low grade moron."

Deadwood Dick Abandons Pony for a Plane; Flies to Chicago on Way to See Coolidge

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Deadwood Dick, the hero of the dime novels, was a centre of attraction in Chicago today. Wearing long gray curls and arrayed in beaded leather jacket and ten-gallon hat, he climbed out of the airplane in which he had made the trip from Rapid City, S. D., in nonchalantly as he must have dismounted from his pony in the good old days back in '76, when he went to the Dakotas during the gold rush and founded the town of Deadwood.

Deadwood Dick—in the twentieth century, Richard W. Clark—is one of four of the old band of trappers, scouts, traders and adventurers about whom historians write and novelists spin their Western thrillers. He was a friend of Buffalo Bill, Wild Bill Hickok and Diamond Dick, and still speaks with pride of the days when he, with Diamond Dick, was a scout for the army in the Black Hills during the Indian wars.

Deadwood Dick is now 82 years old and he celebrated his birthday Nov. 3, by embarking on his first airplane trip, which included stops in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Chicago. He will leave here tomorrow morning for Washington, where he will call on President Coolidge.

The visitor allowed that Illinois had changed some from the mudhole he was born in eighty-two years ago. Having traveled the gold coach as guard, he was of the opinion that "these here Chicago gunmen don't know nothin' at all" as he fanned his .45.

Second Trip Away From Haunts.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 5 (AP).—When Deadwood Dick flew the 600 miles from Rapid City, S. D., to St. Paul, it was the second time he ever had been out of the Black Hills.

"Well, it beats oxen for speed," he commented today, after a night's rest.

Ox teams took him to the Black Hills when the Dakotas were "the end of the world."

HUNT $150,000 LOOT AS THIEF IS JAILED

Police Seek Jewelry and Money Williams Is Believed to Have Hidden After Robberies.

GETS 5 YEARS IN SING SING

Ex-Convict Fails to Win Court Order for Return of $10,000 Gems Found in Room.

George H. Williams, 41 years old, an ex-convict with many aliases, who, the police believe, has $150,000 in loot from hold-ups secreted in this city, was sentenced to Sing Sing for five years yesterday by Judge Nott in General Sessions on his plea of guilty to possessing a pistol. The police said they were trying to trace his loot. George S. Dougherty, former Deputy Police Commissioner in charge of the Detective Division, told the Court before sentence was imposed that Williams was one of three men who robbed him and others in an automobile hold-up at Los Angeles in 1925.

Mr. Dougherty said that Williams, George Dash, a former Los Angeles policeman now serving a long term in Sing Sing, and the third robber got $20,000 in gems and money from himself, his wife and another man and his wife after they had threatened the motorists with pistols.

Judge Nott assented to the plea of Williams's lawyer that the imposition of sentence be stayed for five days to enable Williams "to gather property this man has scattered about town." The Court refused, however, to give Williams an order on which he might reclaim $10,000 in unset diamonds which the police had seized in Williams's room in a mid-town hotel last June.

The detectives had announced their suspicion that the diamonds were part of the $50,000 in loot obtained by gunmen in the hold-up of the Commonwealth Loan Company at 1,675 Broadway last Jan. 13, but they admitted that thus far they had been unable definitely to establish this.

In Williams's bag the detectives also had found a copy of an appeal from the conviction of James Nanery, Sing Sing fugitive and suspected participant in the recent shooting and killing of Patrolman Jeremiah Brosnan in the prison ward at Fordham Hospital by one of three gunmen. Dash, Nannery and two others were sent to Sing Sing after their arrest two years ago as they were about to hold up a bank in the West Farms section of the Bronx.

Williams was sentenced as a second offender, having been sentenced to a long term in San Francisco for a robbery in 1917 and, seven years later was sentenced to the penitentiary after his conviction in the Bronx on a pistol-carrying charge, following the accidental shooting and killing of a 12-year-old girl as she was riding in an automobile through Bronx Park. The ex-convict was found in the park with a pistol and a new silencer, which he had been trying out. The original homicide charge against him had to be dropped when the authorities could not prove that any of the bullets fired by him had struck the girl.

FIND SKELETON IN JERSEY.

Police Believe Discovery in Woods Points to Murder Last Summer.

SALEM, N. J., Nov. 5.—Salem County authorities and State police were searching the records of disappearances in an effort to identify a man whose skeleton was found today in the pine woods at Burton's Hill, nine miles south of here.

The skeleton, the hands and feet tied with bits of clothing and rope, was uncovered today by State Trooper Frank A. Kelly and County Detective Robert Kidd in the woods about 300 yards from the Salem-Bridgeton road after four youths told Sheriff Robinson that they had seen the bones in the woods while out with their rabbit dogs at dusk yesterday. The police believe the man was murdered.

They found the skull had a gash behind the left ear. Remnants of clothing indicated, they said, that the man had worn a brown coat, blue serge trousers, light socks, black oxford shoes and a light gray soft hat. Coroner Oscar R. Denn declared the man had probably been dead for about five months.

CHURCHES PREPARED TO OBTAIN RETURNS

Park Av. Baptist, Methodist Temple and Others Plan to Get Vote Figures.

TRINITY CLOSES AT NOON

This Is One of the Few Days in the Year When Historic Edifice Shuts Doors.

Several churches in the city will be open this evening to receive election returns.

Among these will be the Park Avenue Baptist Church, at Sixty-fourth Street. The current calendar contains this notice: "Do you know that the Men's Club has arranged to receive the returns by telegraph and by radio on the evening of Nov. 6? Results from all sections of the country will be announced and posted as received. How the election is going from hour to hour will be shown in an analysis of the totals by States. The West Side Y. M. C. A. Glee Club, under the direction of Mr. Albert G. Janpolski, will sing during the evening. If you think the campaign may lack zest, you will be interested to know that entertainment and refreshments will be furnished."

Election returns will be received in the Social Hall of the new Broadway Methodist Temple, between 175d and 174th Streets, of which the Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner is pastor. They will start being announced at 8 o'clock.

"Open House" will be kept this evening in the Institute of Plymouth Congregational Church, Orange Street, Brooklyn, of which the Rev. Dr. J. Stanley Durkee is the pastor. There will be a social evening, with radio returns and refreshments.

The Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies have run wires direct to the auditorium of the Rescue Mission, 5 Dovers Street, and election returns will be announced, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. The announcements will be interspersed with a concert by the Chi Rho Fraternity.

Trinity Church, Broadway, at the head of Wall Street, contains this notice in its calendar for this week: "Tuesday is election day. Since all the offices are closed and there is almost no one in this part of town on that day, the church will be closed at noon, and we shall omit the midday service and evensong." This is one of the few days in the year that Trinity closes for even half a day.

The current issue of The Queens Baptist Herald, the organ of the Queens Baptist Church, Queens Village, Long Island, covers its front page with a photograph of Abraham Lincoln and an inscription beneath it reads: "We choose his successor Tuesday."

FRANCIS BRETT YOUNG HERE

Novelist to Be Guest of T. W. Lamont—Wheeler Wilson Returns.

The Cunarder Carmania arrived yesterday from Southampton and Havre with her flag at half-mast on account of the death of Thomas Clark, a night watchman, who had an acute heart attack while the ship was anchored at Quarantine.

Among the passengers was Francis Brett Young, English novelist, accompanied by his wife. They will be the guests of Thomas W. Lamont during the visit to this country. Mr. Young, who makes his home on the Island of Capri, said he had come to visit friends, and had not been in New York for two years.

Another passenger was Wheeler Wilson, American sculptor, who has been two years in Paris and is bringing over forty pieces of sculpture to be exhibited at the Ferargil Galleries commencing Dec. 10.

Also on board were two English delegates to the Second International Conference on Bituminous Coal at Pittsburgh Nov. 19, Dr. C. H. Lander and Edgar C. Evans.

Traffic Court Has Peaceful Day.

A new record was made in Traffic Court yesterday when none of the traffic violators arraigned was sent to jail, either on sentences or in default of payment of fines. Only 235 persons appeared.

ZEPPELIN AT BERLIN FOR A DAY'S VISIT

President Receives Eckener and American Officers and Thanks Us for Welcome Here.

SHIP IS NOW ON WAY HOME

Pierce Holds Stronger Bows and More Powerful Motors Needed in Future Dirigibles.

BERLIN, Tuesday, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Graf Zeppelin started from the Staaken Airdrome at 7:06 A. M. (1:06 A. M. Eastern Standard Time) today for her home port of Friedrichshafen.

Carried Twenty-five Passengers.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—The Graf Zeppelin with twenty-five passengers aboard, arrived at Berlin early this morning from Friedrichshafen, which she left about 2 A. M., and after a cruise over the capital tied up at the new mooring mast at Staaken. No difficulty was encountered in making a landing, the first of its kind in Germany.

President von Hindenburg received Dr. Eckener and Herr Maybach, President of the Maybach Motor Works, and the three American naval officers, Commander Pierce, Lieutenant Bauch and Lieutenant Settle, at the Presidential Palace in Wilhelmstrasse at noon.

"A hearty welcome to you," said the President, adding, "The American people gave the Graf Zeppelin pride of the German people, a great welcome, which has shown how well the service is adapted for bringing peoples separated by the ocean into closer and friendlier relations."

The Zeppelin will remain in Berlin only until tomorrow morning, returning then to Friedrichshafen, where it will probably remain in the hangar for an indefinite period before making another flight.

There is little prospect of making a second American flight this year. Dr. Eckener now hopes to be able to build a Zeppelin in the near future on such lines as will make it safe for transoceanic journeys under the most severe climatic conditions the ocean has to offer. Such a ship should be considerably larger than the present one and her structure stronger, he says.

Zeppelin of the Future.

BERLIN, Nov. 5 (AP).—Powerful motors and stronger bows are the next in Zeppelin construction in the opinion of Commander Maurice R. Pierce, U. S. N., who discussed the Graf Zeppelin's transatlantic voyage with The Associated Press correspondent at a luncheon today given by the Minister of Transportation. The luncheon followed a reception accorded to Dr. Hugo Eckener, the crew of the Zeppelin and the three American naval officers who were passengers on her eastward trip from America by President von Hindenburg. The President was warm in his tribute to those who had been responsible for the great accomplishment.

In discussing Zeppelins, Commander Pierce said:

"When the Graf Zeppelin reached the storm region off Newfoundland she simply could not gain mastery over the fierce gale which was blowing, because her motors were not strong enough. I realize, of course, that the motors were as powerful as could be mounted in a Zeppelin as now constructed, but I agree with Dr. Eckener, that if the Graf Zeppelin's bows were strengthened and stronger motors—sufficient to force the airship's way even through the gale we encountered—could be installed, it would not be necessary to tear the present craft apart and increase its size. It would be merely necessary to reinforce the Zeppelin's bow."

Warns Us to Build Motors.

Commander Pierce, Lieutenant Bauch and Lieutenant Settle were specially requested by Chancellor Mueller to assure the American people that Germany heartily reciprocated the feelings of friendship evinced by Secretary Kellogg in welcoming the Zeppelin in America. The three American officers were the recipients of an ovation as they entered the Transportation Ministry.

Lieutenant Settle warned America to get into the business of building airship motors quickly, lest she never catch up with Germany.

"There is only one airship motor today—the Maybach," he said. "People forget that, though such American motors as the Wright Whirlwind are the best made anywhere for airplanes, entirely different principles apply in the case of airship motors. Unless American engineers get busy devising acceptable American motors American airships will have to rely on German motors."

Lieutenant Settle expressed the belief that the airship was the vehicle of the future for transoceanic voyages in preference to airplanes, which, he thought, must be reserved for short hauls. He also insisted that an airship crossing is fully as comfortable as by steamship.

Lieutenant Bauch declined to discuss the Zeppelin. He preferred to talk about the Germanic Museum at Munich, which he called the most marvelous collection he had ever seen.

Crowds Hail Airship Company.

Dr. Eckener and his Zeppelin men had a busy day accepting the homage of the capital city. It began with an official welcome by Federal and city representatives at the Staaken airdrome, where the Graf Zeppelin is moored; then continued through a touching reception by Germany's "grand old man," President von Hindenburg, and a luncheon by the Transport Ministry, Herr von Guerard, where Dr. Hermann Mueller, the Chancellor, extended the Reich's greetings, and the American Chargé d'Affaires, De Witt C. Poole, responded for America.

The day's festivities ended with a gala performance of "Figaro's Wedding" at the Civic Opera, which some humorists insisted ought to have been changed to Wagner's "Flying Dutchman." Wherever Dr. Eckener or the members of his crew showed themselves the crowds gave a great ovation.

Terhune Returning Next Week.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 5 (AP).—Clarence Terhune, St. Louis boy, who was a stowaway on the Graf Zeppelin's return trip to Germany, plans to reach New York Nov. 12, he told his sister, Mrs. Edna Hall, in a telephone conversation yesterday.

Funds for his transportation were sent him from here.

Will Rogers Off the Ticket, But Is Not Downcast

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Owing to jealousy, and me not paying my entrance fee, I find my name has been left off the ballot.

Now here is how we will fool 'em. There is a fellow running somewhere on the ticket called Thomas. He is a Socialist, so vote for him in place of me, and in case he gets in we will split it, I will run the Government and he can do the fishing. So vote for Thomas and elect Rogers.

The election ain't over till 6 o'clock tonight, but it's been over since last June. Just think. We got people in this country that have to wait till votes are counted before they know.

This is going to be the greatest lesson in geography that New York City ever had. They never knew how many people live west of the Hudson River.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

TRIAL OF STEWART TO BEGIN MONDAY

Chairman of Board of Standard Oil Company of Indiana Charged With Contempt.

OUTCOME OF OIL INQUIRY

District Court of Appeals Delays Decision in the Case of Sinclair and Similar Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Trial of Colonel Robert W. Stewart of Chicago, Chairman of the Board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, on charges of contempt of the Senate growing out of the oil investigations, will start in the District Supreme Court on Monday.

This decision was reached today by District Attorney Leo A. Rover and his assistant, Neil Burkinshaw, after the District Court of Appeals had failed to render a decision in the conviction of Harry F. Sinclair on similar charges.

Sinclair faces a sentence of three months in jail and a fine of $500. He was convicted of contempt for refusing to testify before the Senate committee investigating the lease of Teapot Dome oil reserve to him.

The charge against Colonel Stewart resulted from his alleged failure to answer questions asked him by the Senate investigators who were inquiring in February into the dealings of the Continental Trading Company. The trial of Colonel Stewart was scheduled to start in October, but was delayed until after the election on the request of the Government's counsel.

The Government contended that Senators Walsh of Montana and Nye of North Dakota were necessary witnesses in its case and both Senators had made speaking engagements which would keep them busy until election day.

LAY COLLYER CRASH TO DOWNWARD DRAFT

Fliers at Prescott, Ariz., Tell of Unusual Air Currents in Crook Canyon.

PRESCOTT, Ariz., Nov. 5 (AP).—Aviators here today advanced the theory that the airplane Yankee Doodle, which crashed near here Saturday, killing Captain C. B. D. Collyer and Harry Tucker, was caught in a downward draft of mountain air currents, when it faltered with motor trouble and dashed against the sides of the canyon in which it fell.

Charles Goldtrap, who flew here from Phoenix, Ariz., yesterday, at the request of the Standard Air Lines, Inc., of Los Angeles, said he believed Collyer and Tucker were without doubt victims of unusual atmospheric conditions.

The downward sweep of air currents in Crook Canyon caught the plane, heavily loaded with fuel, and reduced its altitude to about 200 feet, making the climb out again impossible, in Goldtrap's opinion. The flier said he based this belief on his own experience yesterday in his flight from Phoenix, which he was all but forced to abandon because of misty weather and strong headwinds.

Mrs. Tucker, widow of the wealthy passenger-owner of the record-breaking monoplane, was due here today from Long Beach, Cal. Funeral arrangements were held up pending her arrival. The bodies probably will be sent to Los Angeles.

The Yankee Doodle was on a West-East transcontinental non-stop flight when it fell. It was seeking a new record. It recently broke the East-West non-stop record.

LONDON FOG SEASON OPEN.

Thousands of Commuters Late for Work—Eight Injured.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Millions of Londoners groped their way today through the season's first fog which settled like a shroud over the Thames Valley and made traffic hazardous in the crowded streets.

In the roadways flares were lit along the Thames Embankment to guide automobiles. Big Ben boomed mournfully from his high tower, completely out of sight from the streets.

Eight persons were hurt in street collisions while thousands of commuters were delayed in getting to work.

CHARITIES ARE FINANCING IT

After the First Year It Is Hoped to Obtain Appropriations From Board of Estimate.

Preliminary work on the new city-wide health survey began yesterday in the Health Department, when three clerks began to prepare maps and street directories of the 270 districts into which New York has been divided for the purpose. The Health Department, cooperating with the Milbank Fund and the Welfare Council, hopes to have the plan perfected and in working order by Jan. 1 and to publish the statistics gathered by Feb. 1. They will be made public each month thereafter and will be largely financed by the two outside agencies for the first year.

The maps of each of the 270 districts, with populations of 25,000 each, showing the numbers on the street corners where the districts intersect and the street indices, will be reproduced by photostat or by printing at their completion, which probably will be on Dec. 1. Three clerks sent by the outside agencies will cooperate with the department clerks in the preliminary work and three others after Dec. 1. The work will be in charge of Dr. William H. Guilfoyle, registrar of the department's Bureau of Records.

Dr. Charles Bolduan, director of the department's Bureau of Health Education, said yesterday that the department expected to be able to save much expense by the survey, in that it would be able to concentrate in fighting communicable diseases in quarters where the survey would show them to be most prevalent rather than to scatter its efforts, as heretofore. The initial cost of the survey would be the greatest, he said, and when it is in working order it will be inexpensive. Following the first year, Dr. Bolduan said, the department will know how much money it will need to ask the Board of Estimate to appropriate to carry it on.

The diseases which the survey will fight will include tuberculosis, diphtheria, measles, scarlet fever, chickenpox, influenza, pneumonia, typhoid fever, whooping cough, poliomyelitis and cerebro-spinal meningitis.

FLIERS SAVED IN RIVER AFTER MOTOR MISHAP

Four in Amphibian Plane Land Safely in Hudson When Piston Break Disables Craft.

Special to The New York Times.

IRVINGTON, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Men in rowboats rescued four persons adrift in a Loening amphibian plane which was forced down in the Hudson River here today by a broken piston. Beckwith Havens, pilot of the plane, was painfully burned by oil which spurted from the broken cylinder of the engine.

Besides Havens, the plane carried Fred Armstrong, mechanic for the Loening Company, and Mr. and Mrs. Russ Holdermen of Leroy, N. Y., friends of David Woodward of Leroy, to whom the ship was being delivered. They had flown from the Loening plant at Thirty-first Street and the East River, New York.

They were taken to the Tarrytown Hospital for first aid, after which they returned to New York.

The plane was towed to a mooring in the river here.

The accident occurred shortly after 11 o'clock this morning. Persons in Irvington watching the plane in flight heard an explosion and saw a puff of smoke spurt from the motor of the plane. Pilot Havens made a safe landing, however despite the fact that he was showered by the almost boiling oil.

PLANE PILOT ACCUSED OF HAVING HAD DRINKS

Maryland Officials Find No Law to Enforce Revoking of Pilot's License.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—State legal officers and motor transportation officials have the knotty problem of deciding whose business it is to act when an airplane pilot gets intoxicated and crashes on Maryland soil.

Robert F. Strange, a pilot who has been flying ten years, was arrested for running his plane into the sod of the Pimlico Airport, on the complaint of Leo Steinmetz, his chief. Steinmetz charges that the pilot had been drinking before he took off in the flight.

There is no law on the Maryland statute books providing for driving-while-drunk charges against airplane pilots.

The State's Attorney says that if the pilot was operating his plane on an Interstate license the Federal Courts would have to deal with him. On the other hand, if Strange had a State license, there is no law to prosecute him. He has been arrested and charged with disorderly conduct.

Strange was released on his own recognizance. He is a member of a prominent Maryland family.

Man Killed as Plane Falls in Field.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., Nov. 5 (AP).—Al Ferien of Milwaukee, flying his Waco biplane, was killed today when the ship went into a tail spin and crashed into a plowed field about two miles south of the Sheboygan airport. The victim had been visiting relatives here for a few days.

SENDS 'MOP UP' MEN HERE FOR ELECTION

Doran Augments Regular Dry Forces After Conference With Major Campbell.

HOLDS THIS IS ADEQUATE

Officials Are Mum as to Plans to Curb the Sale of Liquor Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The Federal prohibition agents in New York City will be augmented on election day and night by the "mop-up squad" in an effort to keep the metropolitan area as dry as possible while the ballots are being deposited and the crowds await the returns. This decision was made here today by Commissioner Doran in conference with Maurice Campbell, the New York Administrator.

In addition, the permanent force attached to the New York headquarters, which is usually excused from work on a holiday, will be kept on duty all day and night. The "mop-up squad" to be sent in from the outside is a mobile group, some members of which took part in the raids on Broadway night clubs during the Summer.

Just how many outside agents will be sent to New York tomorrow, officials refused to disclose. They said that it would be adequate to meet any liquor situation that might arise.

Mr. Campbell told Commissioner Doran that he did not look for any disturbances in New York and said he felt certain that his regular force, supplemented by the "mop-up squad," would be able to keep drinking at the minimum. He returned to New York on an afternoon train.

Commissioner Doran asserted that there would be little opportunity for election crowds in the metropolitan area to quench their thirst with alcoholic drinks. He added that tomorrow's dry patrol of New York would not cause additional expense to the Government.

Similar precautions will be taken in Chicago and other large cities. The work of the regular agents will be supplemented by members of the mobile squad. Orders have been issued to administrators in all districts to do their utmost to prevent violations of the prohibition law.

Campbell Is Silent as to Raids.

Maurice Campbell, Prohibition Administrator, upon his return from Washington last night, refused to disclose any details of plans for making election day as "dry" as possible in the metropolitan area. He said he did not expect any unusual amount of drinking or any kind of liquor disturbance.

The Administrator would not say where the additional agents would be stationed or what sort of commissions they might get. Since there are no saloons at the voting places, so far as known, the Federal forces are expected to seek "evidence" in other places.

It was pointed out yesterday that no greater penalty attaches under the prohibition law to possessing or selling liquor on election day than on any other day. The police, in fact, are expected to bear the brunt of any untoward circumstances that may result from the sale of liquor, the chief fear being that political enthusiasms may evolve into alcoholic demonstrations of an illegal character. The police will be on hand to quell disturbances, alcoholic or otherwise, while the prohibition agents will watch for violations of the Volstead act.

In pre-prohibition days saloons were closed by law during voting hours. Today, however, the "speakeasies" are expected to be open for business as usual, by both the police and Federal officers, thus making the task of achieving a "dry" election doubly hard.

Unofficial report has it that the night clubs and other resorts will exercise greater caution than they use on ordinary nights.

ASK DRY LAW VICTORY IN PRAYER AND FASTING

Members of Calvary Baptist Church and W. C. T. U. Seek Divine Aid on Election Eve.

Fasting and prayer for the victory of prohibition and for divine help in "a time of national danger," occupied the eve of the election for members of Calvary Baptist Church and for many local units of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. On Sunday groups gathered to pray in all parts of Calvary Baptist Church, the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, the pastor, said yesterday, and he added that he had assurances that many of the members of the congregation would continue the observances in their own homes through last night.

Mrs. Ella Boole, President of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, attended a prayer meeting of the Flatbush Union held yesterday in accordance with a "Call to Prayer" sent out from the National Headquarters early in October. She said that the W. C. T. U. would hold an all-day meeting today at the Central Methodist Episcopal Church, Hanson Place and St. Felix Street, Brooklyn.

The meetings were not intended as public affairs, she said, but as "a gathering in prayer of Christian women concerned with the spiritual and religious values of the election." The W. C. T. U. "Call to Prayer" asked, among other things, for, "an honest election and an honest count, a decided victory for prohibition and law enforcement, and a growing conviction that patriotism demands obedience to the laws of our country."

RANGERS TO GUARD POLLS.

Texas Governor Acts on Appeal From Hidalgo County.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 5 (AP).—Governor Dan Moody today ordered Texas Rangers to Hidalgo County to preserve order during the election there tomorrow. He said he was complying with requests from both sides of the bitter political controversy which will be settled with election of county officers.

The Governor instructed Adjutant-General R. L. Robertson to send Rangers to Edinburg, the county seat. He said that they would be on hand merely to preserve peace and quell any outbreak.

It is claimed that leaders of the Republican Party are cooperating with the regular Democratic Administration in rebuking efforts of those favoring a slate of Independent candidates.

Residents in Hidalgo County about a week ago sent nearly 2,000 telegrams to President Coolidge, asking him to aid them in getting a Federal investigation of "Hidalgo County conditions." The telegrams were referred to the Department of Justice. Federal officers at Houston, Texas, subsequently ordered an investigation. Nothing tangible has come out of the inquiry.

CHURCHES IN BROOKLYN WANT 100 DRY AGENTS

Federation to Ask Increase From Twelve Men for Long Island and Staten Island.

The Brooklyn Federation of Churches will seek to have the Federal prohibition staff in the Long Island and Staten Island enforcement district, which includes Brooklyn, increased from twelve men to 100, it was announced last night following a meeting of the directors of the Federation at the Central Y. M. C. A., 55 Hanson Place, Brooklyn.

Representatives of the federation and of clergymen in Richmond and Queens are to go to Washington within two weeks to ask officials of the Treasury Department for the increase. They will point out that the Manhattan and Bronx staff has more than 100 men and also will report results of a survey which the federation has made of conditions in Brooklyn.

The Rev. Dr. Frederick M. Gordon, Executive Secretary of the federation, who has been in charge of the survey, said last night that its purpose had been to determine the comparative activity required in the Long Island and in the Manhattan districts. The findings would be made public, he said, when they were presented in Washington.

Cooperation had been promised to the federation by the social service committees of the Staten Island and Jamaica ministers' associations, Dr. Gordon said, and the movement for a larger force in Brooklyn would be under the direction of the Moral Reform Commission of the federation, of which the Rev. A. E. Rayback of the Flatlands Dutch Reformed Church is Chairman.

EDISON WANTS BALLOT 1.

Friendly Rivalry in Neighborhood May Fell Early Arrival at Polls.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 5.—Thomas A. Edison, who is supporting Herbert Hoover, will try to cast ballot 1 tomorrow in the florist's shop which is the polling place of the Second Election District of the Second Ward here. He plans to leave his home, Glenmont, in the Llewellyn Park section of West Orange, at 5:30 A. M.

It is believed that he will be accompanied by Mrs. Edison. The polls open at 6 A. M. The polling place is just outside the main entrance of Llewellyn Park. Mrs. Edison will also vote for Hoover. She has worked earnestly in his behalf during the campaign.

In the past the Llewellyn Park section has been predominantly Republican. This year the number of Democratic votes has increased, and a friendly rivalry has developed among families to cast ballots 1 and 2. In other years it has been the custom to allow the inventor to vote immediately upon his arrival, without awaiting his turn, but it cannot be forecast what will be done tomorrow.

CAN THEY BE WRONG?

THE finest merchandising brains in the country have designated Atlanta as Distribution City to the rich South. Over a thousand of America's leading corporations have established regional headquarters here. They have invested millions of dollars in plant equipment and sales organizations.

In the past 2½ years alone 462 great names have been added to the list of American concerns who serve the South from Atlanta. These new concerns employ an army of 12,000 workers and their annual payrolls exceed $22,000,000.

Great corporations like General Motors, Southern Railway System, National Biscuit, Pullman, Sears Roebuck, Johnson & Johnson, and Cluett Peabody—to mention only a few—do not locate plants involving millions of dollars without making a most careful investigation of every phase of production and distribution.

That these and hundreds of others have, one after another, through independent, unbiased surveys, selected Atlanta as the meeting point of advantages should be of interest to the management of every company doing business on a national scale.

For in the Atlanta Industrial Area you can cut production costs. Operating from Atlanta your Southern sales organization will exceed the most optimistic quota you care to set.

Atlanta is Distribution City to the rich South. Fifteen main lines of eight great railroad systems radiate from here, to reach 18 million prosperous people overnight, 70 million in one day of travel. Men and merchandise may be routed to the Southern territory most economically from Atlanta.

Radiating from Atlanta, over 6000 miles of air mail lines in operation or under contract are bringing Distribution City within a few hours of all important centers.

The Atlanta Industrial Area combines fundamental economies in a manner that produces peak profits for those whose branch factories are here. Labor is a major factor—with a ready supply of intelligent, willing, inherently skillful, Anglo-Saxon workers. Raw materials are close by and plentiful. Taxes are low. Power rates compare with the lowest in the country.

These economies, plus many more, enable the producer in the Atlanta area to take a better profit, yet go into market with a distinct edge over his competitors in the old, congested centers of American Industry. And these factors, taken together after the most painstaking study, have made this a humming, busy industrial district.

Your dividend rate can be influenced materially by Atlanta location. Ask the Atlanta Industrial Bureau to make an engineering study of the situation as it affects your business. Let us lay a complete report on your desk in the strictest confidence. This valuable cooperation is rendered without charge or obligation, and is yours if you will write

RIOTERS STOP TRIAL OF OBREGON SLAYER

Alleged Deputies Burst Into Court, Menace Jurors and Accuse Defense of Bribery.

MEXICO PUTS CURB ON NEWS

It Silences Radio, Ends Stenographic Press Reports and Asks Ban on Comment—Nun Tells Story.

SAN ANGEL, Mexico, Nov. 5 (AP).—The court-room where José de Leon Toral is on trial for the assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon was thrown into an uproar tonight when a group of men broke in with shouts of "Death to Sodi! Death to Portrio Diaz!" and threatened to attack the jury.

Demetrio Sodi, defense counsel, stood on a chair and attempted to speak, but shouts drowned out his voice. Attorney General Ezequiel Padilla climbed on a table and urged the people to allow the trial to continue peacefully.

When a move was made to adjourn the court the clamor broke out again and there was a shout of "You are afraid! Don't let them run out!"

The room became a bedlam, with people standing on seats and shouting epithets, some of which were disparaging to Mother Concepcion, who is co-defendant of Toral. The Judge rang his bell for order without effect.

The men who precipitated the disorder were said to be Deputies, followers of General Obregon, who had come from the Chamber of Deputies, where a heated discussion of the trial was held during the afternoon.

Shout Against Dead Dictator.

The shout of "Death to Porfirio Diaz" was attributed to the fact that Señor Sodi was prominent during the régime of that President.

Members of the jury, alarmed by the shouted threats, declared that they would send their resignations to President Calles and would not return tomorrow.

One of the alleged deputies shouted an assertion that "The Catholics, through the defense, are bribing the jury." Señor Nieto, speaking from a table, finally restored order and court was adjourned until 3 P. M. tomorrow. The public will not be admitted then.

It is understood that the Obregon blocof Deputies had held a caucus this afternoon at which indignation was expressed at the treatment by some of the Mexico City newspapers of the trial and also at Toral being permitted to broadcast his story from the court room. The bloc was said to have resolved to take direct action unless he is convicted. The Deputies were said to have come en masse to the court room from the caucus.

The radio broadcast of the trial to which the Deputies objected was stopped today after the prosecutor alleged that it had been used by the defense for propaganda purposes. At the same time newspapers were requested to abstain from comment on the trial and were refused stenographic reports of its progress that they had been receiving.

Threatens to Call Out Troops.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 5 (AP).—Emilio Portes Gil announced tonight that Federal troops would be called out if necessary to maintain order at the trial. Señor Portes Gil, who will become Provisional President on Dec. 1 in his present office of Minister of Interior, is responsible for domestic affairs.

Prosecution Begins Attack.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 5.—The Government laid down a heavy barrage today, both in court and out, in the trial of José de Leon Toral for the assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon and of Madre Concepcion as "the intellectual author" of the crime.

Broadcasting of the trial was ordered discontinued, reportedly on direct instructions from President Calles himself. On several occasions when Toral was testifying he has moved the microphone closer to speak more directly into it.

In court the prosecution not only began a vigorous counter-attack on defense contentions, but Señor Correa Nieto, Procurator General of the Federal District, who is conducting the prosecution, announced the appointment of four assistants.

As soon as court opened Señor Nieto told the Judge that he had been receiving numerous anonymous letters containing death threats, and that rather than take any risk of the trial being annulled or postponed through his possible absence he had nominated additional counsel to assist him. He said his aides would be Ezequiel Padilla, Procurator General of the nation; Enrique Medina, an Obregonista deputy, and two criminal lawyers, well known in Mexico, Antonio Palacios and Antonio Tarasens.

Now Five on Each Side.

The prosecution and defense counsel ranged against each other now number five on each side. The effect of this reinforcement of the prosecution was evident early in the morning's hearing.

Señor Nieto, in his opening remarks, charged defense counsel with unjustified attacks on public officials and with malicious propaganda against the Government and the Revolution, and the Judge did not allow the principal defense attorney, Demetrio Sodi, to reply. A warm discussion followed regarding Nieto's denial that he had been responsible for Toral's evidence regarding the torture he said he had undergone at police headquarters. Señor Nieto pointed out that drawings made by Toral of the positions in which he said he was tortured came from Señor Sodi's stack of defense papers. He condemned in vigorous language Señor Sodi's defense of Toral, saying that defense counsel had placed General Ogregon's assassin on a pedestal and was publicly on his knees before it. He denounced Señor Sodi's aides as having expressed publicly heartfelt admiration for General Obregon's murderer and Señor Sodi on his statement in court that Toral had acted patriotically in concealing until the last moment his alleged torture.

Nun Takes Witness Stand.

Public interest in this morning's session was intense in view of the fact that it was known that Madre Concepcion would take the witness stand. She did so and defended herself with the astuteness that has characterized her throughout the many judicial audiences she has undergone since her arrest. The nun crossed oral swords with the prosecuting counsel on a number of sensational points, but throughout her long session on the witness stand stuck to her statement that she had no suspicion that Toral was going to murder General Obregon.

Señor Nieto directed his chief efforts to proving that Madre Concepcion's house was a regular meeting place for malcontents, dynamiters and even assassins. He scouted the idea that General Obregon's murderer and Carlos Castro, who threw bombs into the Chamber of Deputies, and the girl, Señorita Manzana, who went to the city of Celaya with a poisoned needle to attempt to murder President Calles, frequented her house or laid plots there without her knowledge of it.

Directing himself to Madre Concepcion's acquaintance with Carlos Castro, Señor Nieto drew from the witness only a denial that she knew him well. The prosecuting attorney then produced a branding iron with the letters JHS on it above a cross with which Castro, the prosecution asserted, had been ordered to have been branded. That, Señor Nieto insisted, was evidence that Castro was in the intimate set dominated by the nun, for Madre Concepcion admitted that she was branded in three places on her body with that sign. She refused to state whether nuns under her orders had so been branded, vigorously resenting the question. She fort to proving that Madre Concepdeclared that Señor Nieto had got his information as to her use of the branding iron from her under a solemn promise not to make use of it.

Denies Knowledge of Bombs.

Madre Concepcion insisted that she knew nothing of the bombs that had been thrown into the Chamber of Deputies, although she admitted they were made in the house next door to hers. She said she saw the chemicals for their composition there but did not know what they were for.

At the conclusion of Madre Concepcion's evidence Señor Sodi said that not only did he believe her to be a saintly woman but he would be honored to kiss her brow.

After the nun had left the stand an attorney, Arturo Orci, close friend and legal adviser of General Obregon, was called. He described the shooting of the General at La Bombilla Inn substantially as Toral had done. He was present later that night when President Calles interviewed Toral and said the President expressed the opinion that Toral was a religious fanatic.

Señor Orci, however, was insistent in stating his belief that Toral was the instrument of others. He denounced Madre Concepcion as the intellectual author of the crime but expressed the belief that there was someone else above her in the plot. He added that late at night on the day General Obregon was killed he took Toral to Madre Concepcion's house and that the nun there tacitly admitted her guilt.

Relative of Obregon Testifies.

The next witness was Deputy Ricardo Topete, a relative of General Obregon and a former leader of the majority Obregonista bloc in the Chamber of Deputies. Señor Topete was seated near General Obregon at the tragic luncheon and he also described the killing. He said he had known for more than twelve months that a plot was afoot to kill General Obregon and that he even made a journey to the President-elect's home in the State of Sonora to advise him not to return to the city, but that General Obregon insisted, saying that if his enemies were left alone they would grow stronger.

Facing the nun, Señor Topete stated that she was without doubt the intellectual author of the crime. Summing up today's proceedings, Señor Topete concluded his statement by asserting that Toral is not a Catholic fanatic but just a low assassin.

A late witness this afternoon was Valentine Quintana, former Chief of the Secret Police Service, who arrested Madre Concepcion. He stated that the nun, when taken, said:

"You need not look for any others than Toral and myself."

Madre Concepcion told the witness he was not speaking the truth, but Señor Quintana retorted, producing Catholic medals:

"I also am a Catholic and speak the truth."

AUTO KILLS PEDESTRIAN.

Pennington Satterthwaite of Short Hills, N. J., Freed on Bond.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—A man who identified himself as Pennington Satterthwaite of Short Hills, N. J., was released in $2,000 bond by the authorities at Laurel, Md., tonight as the driver of an automobile which struck and killed William Higgins of Norfolk, Va., about 6 P. M. today, near Waterloo, Md.

Mr. Satterthwaite was accompanied by his mother and was on the way to Washington to visit friends. He told the police that he was blinded by approaching lights and failed to see Higgins until the car was about five feet from him. So sudden was his stop, Mr. Satterthwaite said, that a truck immediately in his rear crashed into his automobile, pushing it further.

The State Police at Laurel said damage to the rear of the New Jersey machine bore out Mr. Satterthwaite's story.

After hearing the details of the case from the police, Coroner H. U. Gosnel ordered Mr. Satterthwaite's release on security.

BLAST WRECKS BUNGALOW.

Home of Coast Guard Captain Is Destroyed at Manasquan, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

MANASQUAN, N. J., Nov. 5.—A four-room bungalow on Second Avenue was wrecked here tonight by a mysterious explosion which could be heard for two miles. The bungalow, which was unoccupied, is the property of Captain Charles Cook of the local Coast Guard station. The only clue to the explosion, which blew off the roof and one side of the bungalow and broke windows in a house next door, was the remains of a small can of gunpowder, which was found in the wreckage.

Captain Cook knew of no gunpowder in the bungalow but was disinclined to the theory that the explosion was of incendiary origin.

They Jump From Ship Ordered to Quarantine for Cholera.

LONDON, Nov. 5 (AP).—The Daily Mail prints dispatches from Shanghai saying that twenty Chinese, panic-stricken when their ship was ordered into quarantine because of cholera on board, jumped overboard and were drowned.

"In their frantic fight for liberty the panic-stricken Chinese pushed almost to death and wounded the British master," the dispatch says.

The vessel was the steamer Kungwo. Marines who filled two launches from the British warship Kent were unable to quell the disorder, and the cruiser Cornwall was ordered to Hankow to assist.

ELECTION RETURNS ON RADIO TONIGHT

Broadcasting to Begin Over N. B. C. Stations at 6 o'Clock —To Interpret Reports.

ARTISTS ALSO TO BE HEARD

Regular Entertainers Will Fill In Between Announcements—Chains to Cover Nation.

Radio stations throughout the nation will broadcast election returns tonight. Beginning at 6 o'clock, many of them will depart from the regular entertainment schedules to send out the returns. The National Broadcasting Company's networks will start the election service at 6 P. M. Artists usually heard on the air Tuesday nights will be in the studios to entertain in case any lulls occur in the bulletin service.

David Lawrence, political writer and editor, will be in charge of the staff of fifty experts for the National Broadcasting Company, Associated Press, United Press and International News Service. The group in the studio will include political analysts and tabulators. The bulletins supplied by the three news services will be used in preparing the running story, which will continue until 266 electoral votes are given to the successful candidate. Music will fill in for brief interludes. Graham McNamee, announcer, will be in charge of the entertainment. Mr. Lawrence will broadcast the political story.

Returns to Be Interpreted.

"Instead of announcing numerical returns from scattered States and precincts," said a representative of the National Broadcasting Company, "we will send out interpretive reports. For example, when a certain number of precincts in Newark have reported and the majority for one of the major candidates is given, the listeners will be told what this signifies as compared with election returns of four years ago and what its probable effect will be on the present Presidential race. Score cards for radio listeners have been made available by the NBC through cooperation with several newspapers. Mr. Lawrence will work with a score card in his hand. The national situation will be summarized from time to time and in addition reports on the outcome of Congressional contests and State contests will go on the air.

"More than seventy-five radio stations will be associated with the NBC for the election broadcast. The report will also be rebroadcast on short waves for foreign listeners from transmitters in Schenectady, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati.

The network includes the following stations: WEAF, WJZ and WEVD, New York; WEEI, Boston; WBZA, Boston; WBZ, Springfield; WTIC, Hartford; WJAR, Providence; WTAG, Worcester; WCSH, Portland, Me.; WFI, Philadelphia; WRC, Washington, D. M. with a program by the Brooklyn Symphony Orchestra, assisted by Helen Schafer, contralto. Mayor Walker will speak at 6:33 o'clock on the "Aspects of the Election." His talk will be followed by election returns interspersed with music, until 2:30 A. M. or later. Station WOR will go on the air at 6:45 o'clock; WHN-WPAP from 7 o'clock to midnight; WRNY from 12:15 A. M. to 3 A. M. tomorrow. WGBS will begin at midnight and cover the late reports. Dr. Cadman's Remark Misquoted.

In a report of Dr. S. Parkes Cadman's radio address printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday Dr. Cadman was quoted as saying: "Do not let us, therefore, play the fool in front of the Pope." The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America said yesterday that the sentence should have read: "Do not let us, therefore, play the fool in front of the foe." The error, it was explained, was in the stenographic copy of the address sent out by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

NIGHT CLUB DRY TRIALS TO BEGIN TOMORROW

Judge Burroughs Expected to Preside—200 Padlock Suits to Start After Nov. 14.

Trials will begin tomorrow under the indictments which named more than 100 night club and other resort owners, managers and employes charged with prohibition law violations, following raids ordered by Assistant United States Attorney General Mabel W. Willebrandt on the night of Governor Smith's nomination for the Presidency. Judge Burroughs, a recently appointed out-of-town Judge, is expected to preside. The criminal calendar of these cases was not called yesterday because Judge Burroughs had not arrived in the city.

Titles of 200 padlock suits against night clubs, restaurants, speakeasies and drug stores were called from the civil calendar before Federal Judge Goddard. These cases include the actions seeking to padlock Texas Guinan's Salon Royal and about twenty-five other resorts, managers and employes of which have been indicted. The actions were marked ready yesterday and listed for trial on and after Nov. 14.

David Tarbel of 183 Ludlow Street was fined the maximum of $500 yesterday by Federal Judge Knox. He had pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing three gallons of alcohol and Assistant United States Attorney Frank W. Ford had recognized him as a second offender.

TOOMBS IN ST. LOUIS COURT.

Arraigned for Larceny, He Gives $25,000 Bond—Returns to Chicago.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 5 (AP).—Roy C. Toombs of Chicago, under whose administration $3,500,000 of assets were removed from the International Life Insurance Company, surrendered here today to face charges of larceny of more than $500,000 and of overissuance of company stock, gave $25,000 bond, protested his innocence and returned to Chicago on a late afternoon train.

"I am not guilty," Toombs said in a statement handed to newspaper men on his arrival. "When the facts are known, certain St. Louis gentlemen will have considerable explaining to do if they are not to be held responsible for wrecking the International Life Insurance Company."

He was arraigned in Circuit Court and released under $10,000 bond on a charge of larceny of one batch of bonds having a total value of $538,500 and under $5,000 bond on each of three charges of over-issuing capital stock of the company to increase his borrowing power. The decision to surrender followed Toombs's abandonment of efforts to evade extradition from Illinois.

Gets Jail Term for Tire Frauds.

Joseph Remere, 24 years old, of 341 East Seventy-sixth Street, accused by the police of being the leader of a band of swindlers who in the last six months had victimized motorists by selling them worthless tires represented to be of standard makes, was sentenced to six months in the workhouse yesterday by Justices Voorhees, Salomon and Kelly in Special Sessions. Abraham Jandzewic, 28, a chauffeur, of 304 East Seventy-ninth Street, pleaded guilty as an accomplice of Remere, and was released on his own recognizance, pending sentence next Monday.

SLAIN WOMAN STRANGLED.

Medical Examiner Finds Bruises on Body of Mrs. Woodruff.

Mrs. Maude Woodruff, 59 years old, of 256 West 112th Street, was strangled, an autopsy performed yesterday by Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, assistant medical examiner, showed. She had been found dead on Sunday. Dr. Gonzales said she had been dead ten or twelve hours. There were bruises on her back, arms, face, forehead and knuckles.

Hayusima Gentaro, Japanese cook, who occupied a room in the same apartment, where he had been a roomer for five years, was questioned by detectives of the Homicide Bureau and later released. The police found bruises on his body, but a check-up of his story that he had suffered them in a fall down the steps of the Nikko restaurant, 506 Columbus Avenue, where he is employed, indicated he was telling the truth.

The Japanese said Mrs. Woodruff asked him to spend Friday night elsewhere so she might entertain a guest, and that he did so.

FLETCHER WILL ATTEND PAN-AMERICAN SESSION

Ambassador Is Named as Secretary General of Delegation to Conciliation Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Henry P. Fletcher, Ambassador to Italy, who is in this country on a leave of absence, today was appointed Secretary General of the American delegation at the Pan-American Conciliation and Arbitration Conference to be held here Dec. 10.

Cord Meyer of New York, Secretary of the American delegation at the Pan-American Conference at Havana last Winter, was named Assistant Secretary General of the conference.

Secretary Kellogg and Charles E. Hughes, formerly head of the delegation, will represent the United States. Mr. Hughes will come to Washington within a few days to discuss the preparations with Secretary Kellogg, who regards the conference as one of the most important tasks ahead of him in the remainder of his term of office.

Twenty Latin-American nations will participate under a resolution of the Havana conference favoring the adoption of "obligatory arbitration as a means they will employ for the pacific solution of their international differences of a juridical character."

The resolution called upon the American republics to meet in Washington in a conference of conciliation and arbitration "to give conventional form to the realization of this principle, with the minimum exceptions which they may consider indispensable to safeguard the independence and sovereignty of the States as well as matters of a domestic concern, and to the exclusion also of matters involving the interest or referring to the action of a State not a party to the convention."

While there has been no announcement from official sources, it is believed the American Government will propose a multilateral arbitration treaty modeled after the series of new arbitration treaties negotiated between the United States and other powers, and that efforts will be made to revive the Treaty of Santiago of 1923 as a means of conciliation between the American republics.

The value of the receiving set components exported during August was $313,272, while receiving set accessories exported were valued at $195,615.

SHORT WAVES FOR PLANES.

Two Seattle (Wash.) Companies Get Radio Board Assignments.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The Federal Radio Commission today allocated short waves to the Boeing Air Transport Company, Inc., and the Western Air Express Company, both of Seattle, Wash., for use of their airplanes. The Boeing company received short waves for twenty-two planes, while waves were given to the express company for eleven planes. Both of these companies already have short wave assignments.

The Boeing company has one plane equipped for radio transmission, while the express company has three. In so far as the records of the commission show, these are the only companies whose planes are equipped with radio who do regular commercial work. Licenses have been granted before by the commission for experimental work only.

A hearing has been set for Nov. 20 before the commission for Station WENR, Chicago, 50,000 watts, which now has two-sevenths time on 870 kilocycles, with WIS, Chicago, having five-sevenths time. WENR is asking the commission that the time be allocated on a fifty-fifty basis. It is understood also that WIS will ask for more than 5,000 watts, which it is now using. It is possible that the hearing date may be advanced.

Deny Lindbergh Will Wed Miss Morrow; Her Friends Say Couple Are Not Engaged

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 5 (AP).—Reports published in Mexico City newspapers that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Morrow, daughter of Dwight W. Morrow, American Ambassador to Mexico, will be married in Mexico City during the coming visit of the famous airman here were denied today in circles close to the Morrow family.

The Colonel's visit to Ambassador Morrow will not be made to see Miss Morrow and he is not engaged to her, said persons in a position to know, who, in addition, expressed belief that there was no foundation to various stories to the effect that there was a romantic attachment.

Colonel Lindbergh was invited on his Mexican hunting trip by Colonel Alexander McNab, United States military attaché, on McNab's personal initiative. Miss Morrow, who recently was graduated from Smith College, was then in the United States and knew nothing of the invitation. The American Embassy was without definite information as to when the Colonel would arrive, but expects him some time during the latter part of this week.

GIRL DROPS A WREATH WHERE CARRANZA FELL

Cousin Strews Roses From Plane Over Scene of Mexican Flier's Crash in New Jersey.

Special to The New York Times.

HASBROUCK HEIGHTS, N. J., Nov. 5.—Miss Celia Tervino Carranza, a cousin of Captain Emilio Carranza, the young Mexican military pilot who crashed to his death on the night of July 12 at Chatsworth, N. J., during a thunderstorm, dropped a wreath and hundreds of roses today from a plane over the spot where the flier's body and wrecked plane were found.

Miss Carranza, accompanied by a representative of the Mexican Consulate and several friends, took off from Teterboro Airport in a trimotored plane piloted by Captain G. E. Haynes, test pilot for the Atlantic Aircraft Company, this afternoon. No one in the party knew the exact spot where Captain Carranza met his death after a start from Roosevelt Field on his return flight to Mexico City, so Captain Haynes circled over the flatlands of Burlington County in the vicinity of Chatsworth while Miss Carranza dropped the wreath and blossoms. The party returned to Teterboro just before dark.

ATTERBURY GOING TO PARIS.

State Department Names Him Delegate to Exhibition's Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—General W. W. Atterbury of Philadelphia, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was today appointed by the State Department as a member of the American delegation to the Diplomatic Conference on International Exhibitions which will open in Paris a week from today.

The American representatives will act only as observers. Associated with General Atterbury will be Henry C. McLean, commercial attaché of the American Embassy in Paris, and Richard Eldridge, resident acting commissioner in Paris of the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce.

The conference has been called at the instance of France in an effort to work out through international cooperation plans through which duplication and conflict in expositions and exhibitions of international importance may be removed. The movement has the support of business and commercial houses in many countries, which in the past have been inconvenienced through lack of coordination in this respect.

VOTER TRAVELS 4,000 MILES.

Fixed Schedule to Arrive From Europe in Time for Election.

Charles Rothmann, proprietor of the East Norwich Inn, East Norwich, L. I., where, he said, the late President Roosevelt cast his first vote, arrived yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Muenchen. He said that he had timed his travels so that he would arrive in New York either election day or the day before, having qualified under the absentee registration provisions. Although he traveled 4,000 miles to cast his ballot, he did not say for whom he would vote.

Theodore Wedepol, German portrait painter, who last year painted a portrait of Mrs. James J. Walker, also arrived on the liner. He brought with him thirty-one canvasses to exhibit in this country.

When the ship docked the passengers were in a somewhat irritated frame of mind. They said they had been waked up by the ship's bugler at the early hour of 4:30. Among the complainers were the parents of seventy-six children, who said that their offspring should not have been awakened so early. The ship's officers explained the bugler's action by saying it was necessary to have the passengers assembled in time to be examined by the health officers.

RELEASES GRAND JURY IN QUEENS INQUIRY

Justice Tompkins Praises Its Work—Moore Trial Is Put Off Till Tomorrow.

Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins discharged yesterday the Extraordinary Grand Jury which for six months had delved into the sewer situation in Queens County and which returned the indictments that resulted in the conviction of Maurice E. Connolly and Frederick B. Seely on charges of conspiring to defraud the city. The jury reconvened in Long Island City and announced that it had finished its work and had no further recommendations to make.

Justice Tompkins also postponed the trial of Clifford B. Moore, former consulting engineer in the office of the Borough President, which was scheduled to start yesterday. Moore, indicted for filing an improper State income tax report, will be tried tomorrow. David B. Siegel, counsel for Moore, moved for a postponement to give him more time to familiarize himself with the case. Justice Tompkins set the time for opening the trial at 10 o'clock tomorrow.

Moore is out in $5,000 bail, awaiting sentence by Federal Judge Robert A. Inch on Nov. 15 on his plea of guilty to attempting to defraud the Government of income taxes amounting to $13,332.67 for the years 1926 and 1927. Peter J. Campbell and Andrew Zorn, former associates of the late John M. Phillips, indicted on the same charge, are to be tried on Nov. 12.

Justice Tompkins praised the work of the Extraordinary Grand Jury. "You have performed a great public service and have earned the gratitude of the people of this borough and city," he said.

Chamberlain Visits Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5 (Canadian Press).—For thirty-five minutes late today Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Minister, visited Winnipeg and was greeted by representatives of the city and province and newspaper men. Sir Austen, Lady Chamberlain, his daughter, Diana, and his son, Lawrence, were welcomed by Sir James Aikens, former Lieutenant Governor. "I absolutely refuse to talk or comment upon the political situation in England or Europe," Sir Austen told reporters before the latter had started their usual bombardment of questions.

LONDON, Nov. 5 (By the Canadian Press).—Sir William Horwood, Chief Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police and head of Scotland Yard since 1920, retires tomorrow. He had an interview with the King at Buckingham Palace today.

Sir Wyndham Childs, Assistant Commissioner, who is also retiring, contrary to expectations, will not relinquish his office on the same day as his chief, but will remain at Scotland Yard for some time yet.

Sir William will receive presentations from the Superintendents and from the Assistant Commissioners and chief contables. His successor, Baron Byng of Vimy, former Governor General of Canada, has not yet been to Scotland Yard and has had no consultations with its chiefs, but it is understood he will take up his new duties on Wednesday when he will meet Sir William for the first time.

New and important information promising to lead to further sensational developments in connection with charges of corruption against the police of a certain West End of London division was understood to have been received today.

A constable of the division who was suspended last week was ordered to report to the Scotland Yard disciplinary committee today to explain certain charges against him, but it was believed the hearing had been indefinitely postponed on account of the new information.

HERTZOG PLANS TO RESIGN.

African Cabinet Expects to Quit Today on Native Labor Split.

Wireless to The New York Times.

PRETORI, South Africa, Nov. 5.—General Hertzog, Prime Minister of South Africa, will in all probability tender the resignation of his Government tomorrow. This is not quite so momentous as it sounds, since the resignation will be a political manoeuvre designed to force out of the Cabinet W. E. Madeley, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, who has refused to resign.

Its significance lies in the fact that it will probably advance by some months the date of the general election, which would otherwise not have been held until next June, and it may well mean that the election will be fought on the native issue.

Mr. Madeley made himself unpopular with the Government because, as representative of the left wing of the South African Labor Party, he insisted on recognising and supporting the native trade unions.

By receiving a deputation from the native organisation—the Industrial and Commercial Workers Union—he offended the Nationalist Party, which holds office by means of a pact with the Labor Party, but which is adamant against recognising equal rights for black and white, either economic or political.

For some time leading Nationalists in Transvaal have been anxious to make the native question the election issue and they are now congratulating themselves that Madeley has presented them with the election cry for which they were looking. The more responsible sections of the Government, however, deplore this lighting of the fires of racial prejudice.

SEIZES GUNMEN IN HOLD-UP.

Policeman Catches Two, Out on Parole, After a Chase.

Several hours after arriving from Philadelphia yesterday afternoon two gunmen on parole tried to hold up Nathan Hochman in his luggage store at 307 West Forty-second Street, the police said. Both of them, James Bonte, 29 years old, of Morristown, Pa., and Peter Matise, 24, of Williamstown, Pa., were caught by Patrolman Peter Pfeiffer after a short chase in Ninth Avenue and in Forty-first Street.

Pistols drawn, the two entered the store at 9 P. M. and told Hochman to "stick 'em up." He did so, but, panic-stricken, began to scream. A scuffle ensued in which the store owner's right shoulder was dislocated. The robbers, frightened, fled, and were chased by Pfeiffer, who recently left the hospital after having been shot in a hold-up in 1927. They were locked up in the West Forty-seventh Street station and will be arraigned today charged with robbery and violation of the Sullivan law.

AUTO PARADE IN GREENWICH

Republicans Mobilize Line of 00 Cars in Campaign Climax.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Nov. 5.—The Republican campaign here came to a climax in an automobile parade tonight in which more than 500 cars participated. The Republican Town Committee, the Greenwich Hoover-Curtis Club, of which Colby M. Chester Jr. is President, and the Women's Republican Club had gayly decorated automobiles in line. Every section of the township was covered.

An escort of police followed Pierpont Minor, Superintendent of Highways, leading the procession. Following the parade there was a display of fireworks on the high school grounds. Several Democrats joined in the parade, traveling alongside of the Hoover cars.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

Max Rosen's Recital.

A large audience welcomed Max Rosen, violinist, when he played last night in Carnegie Hall. This audience was cordially disposed, and the performer was given full credit for everything he accomplished. Mr. Rosen gave a concerto by Stamitz, according to the program, its first performance. Stamitz died 127 years ago, and his compositions enjoyed a wide popularity and esteem in their time. Records of performances in New York are very incomplete, and "first performance" statements have often been confounded. Let it suffice here to say that the concerto was unfamiliar. The remainder of the program consisted of the Paganini D major concerto and smaller pieces by Dobrowen, De Falla-Kreisler, Mattheson and Wladigeroff. Mr. Rosen added encores to the list.

It would be a pleasure to say that Mr. Rosen's performances fulfilled the glowing predictions concerning his talent that have been made in past years, but this would be stretching the story. The fact of his talent is evident, but its present development leaves much to be done. Mr. Rosen has a considerable degree of facility, musical feeling, and virtuoso instinct. His tone, at its best, is warm, and it is natural for him to express himself emotionally. But he has not built his technic in a substantial manner, and his musicianship often appears superficial. The tone is usually light and thin, especially on the upper strings, lacking in body and lustre. Intonation was far from impeccable, and Mr. Rosen had too seldom a firm rhythm.

Superimposed on this shaky substructure are characteristics which connote the musical nature of an artist. The trouble is that Mr. Rosen does not seem to have come to grips with himself. His technic skates the surface. His tone seldom grips the strings. Last night he did not play a composition that required very much depth; therefore, it would be unjust to say that he lacks this quality. He did not display it last night, and he did not give smaller compositions any special significance or individuality. Granted that the Paganini concerto has an extended form, it is petty in material, being cheap and poor music, only worth playing when a past master of its difficulties delivers it as a tour de force and astounds an audience with his bravura. At present Mr. Rosen cannot give the concerto that kind of a performance. Nor does he do justice to himself. The impression is strong that a course of long and strenuous labor would endow him as a performer with much that was lacking last night, and that, given this solidifying process, he would be able to reveal qualities now obscured by insufficient equipment.

REVIVES IBSEN PLAY.

Walter Hampden Appears in "An Enemy of the People."

Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People," which Walter Hampden first acted here last season, was revived by Mr. Hampden last night at the theatre bearing his name. Mr. Hampden of course again plays the rôle of Dr. Stockmann, and Cecil Yapp repeats his performance as Aslaksen.

With three minor exceptions the cast is the same as that which acted the play during its successful run last season. Chief of the newcomers is Evelyn Goodrich, in the rôle of the daughter.

The revival will be continued for several weeks.

Dr. E. M. Bluestone, for five years first assistant director of Mount Sinai Hospital and during the last three years director of the Hadassah Medical Organization in Palestine, has just been appointed medical director of the Montefiore Hospital in this city. He succeeds Dr. E. P. Boas, an authority on clinical medicine, who is returning to private practice here.

M'EVOY'S 'AMERICANA' CLOSES SUDDENLY

Money Refunded to Ticketholders —Manager Tells of Dissension Among Revue's Backers.

No performance of "Americana" took place at Lew Fields's Mansfield Theatre last night and it was announced on behalf of the producer, J. P. McEvoy, that the show had closed. The decision to withdraw the production was reached at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and there was no time to inform the actors, who arrived at the theatre as usual for the expected performance. Refunds were made to many ticket holders.

C. G. Stewart, manager for Mr. McEvoy, said that the show, which opened here last Tuesday, had done moderate but profitable business since the premiere. He attributed the closing to dissension among the production's backers. Mr. McEvoy, who wrote most of the show in addition to producing it, could not be reached last night. On Broadway it was reported that a rewritten version of the show would be launched here in a few weeks, with new producers and several new principals.

"Americana," which came here after three weeks in Boston, had a score by Roger Wolfe Kahn. It was received with mild enthusiasm by the reviewers, but was thought to have a chance for a moderate engagement. It was a revue of the intimate type.

BARBARA LULL'S RECITAL.

Young Violinist Shows Growth as a Sincere and Talented Artist

Barbara Lull, a young violinist from California who made her New York début three years ago, after several years of concert work in Europe, returned to the local stage last night in a recital at the Town Hall. The favorable impression she made here in former seasons was confirmed by her brilliant playing of a program that included Veracini's Sonata in E minor, Respighi's "Concerto Gregoriano," the Dvorak-Kreisler "Slavonic Fantasy," Bartok's "Rumanian Dance" and shorter works of Josef Suk, De Falla and Wieniawski.

A fine-spun tone of delicate beauty and warmth, a firm bow and emotional feeling tempered with artistic restraint distinguished her performance of the varied items on her list. A former pupil of Leopold Auer and Alexander Bloch, Miss Lull promises to fulfill the predictions of those who have followed her steady growth as a sincere and talented artist. She was applauded by a large audience. Walter Golde provided excellent piano accompaniments.

"ANDREA CHENIER" SUNG.

Florence Easton Sings Heroine's Role in Giordano's Opera.

Giordano's "Andrea Chénier" opened the season's second week at the Metropolitan last night, the opera's restless background of the French Revolution seeming the more timely amid excitements of the closing political campaign that drew many to the streets from this and many other theatres. A subscription audience of large size interrupted the stage action to applaud Florence Easton's singing of the heroine's air before the revolutionary tribunal.

Mr. Gigli as the patriotic poet had many opportunities of popular appeal. Mr. De Luca, like Miss Easton, brought to the turbulent action a sincerity that enhanced the musical values of even bald melodrama. In a host of picturesque minor rôles appeared the Misses Bourskaya, Alcock and Dalossy, Messrs. Didur, Bada, Cehanovsky, Tedesco, Reschiglian, Picco, Gustafson, Gabor and Malatesta. Mr. Serafin conducted.

HELD FOR GEM THEFT HERE.

Man Arraigned in Baltimore Is Charged With $20,000 Robbery.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—Charles Price, 29, was held in $10,000 bail today for the action of the Grand Jury, after arraignment before Magistrate Cadden in Central Police Court, for alleged complicity in a jewelry theft in New York. A $20,000 pearl necklace and two wrist watches and a diamond bracelet, of a total value of about $28,000, were found in Price's possession, according to police.

Counsel for Price immediately filed a writ of habeas corpus, demanding that Magistrate Cadden produce Price before Judge Solter in Criminal Court Wednesday and show cause why Price should not be released.

Price, who also goes by the name of Leo Canter or Lee Silver, was arrested by Detectives Cooney and Smith when they found him attempting to pawn an unset diamond which they say was plucked from the bracelet which New York police charge Price stole.

Posing as a drape hanger under the fictitious name of "Leo Levine," a man believed to be Charles Price, according to the police here, gained admittance to the apartment of Mrs. Anna Trone at 411 West End Avenue on Oct. 23. After he left the apartment jewelry valued at $28,000 was missing. Mrs. Trone, accompanied by detectives, will go to Baltimore today to attempt to identify the jewelry and the prisoner.

Olean Water Not Cause of Typhoid.

OLEAN, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP).—City health officials received a telegram today from B. C. Roberts of the State Health Department at Albany stating that an analysis of Olean's drinking water had shown it to be pure. The water was shut off Oct. 1 when an epidemic of typhoid fever, which thus far has taken fifteen lives, developed in the southern section of the city. Since then residents have been using boiled water obtained from other sources.

FLIGHT TO BOGOTA NEAR.

Lieut. Mendes Expects to Leave Here Within Two Weeks.

Lieutenant Benjamin Mendes of the Colombian Air Service, who has been a student at Mitchel Field in the United States Army Air Service for the last year, is planning to take off for Bogota, Colombia, within two weeks in a new Curtiss Falcon, now undergoing tests at the Rockaway Naval Station. The distance is about 4,000 miles and the flight will be broken at several stops.

The plane was purchased for Lieutenant Mendes by popular subscriptions raised through the Colombian newspaper Mundo al Dia.

Lieutenant Mendes and the New York representative of the paper, C. Puyo Delgado, expect to fly tomorrow to Washington, where the ship will be named by Miss Maria Olaya, daughter of the Minister of Colombia to the United States.

2,000 DIE OF CHOLERA.

Epidemic Sweeps the State of Travancore in India.

BOMBAY, British India, Nov. 5 (AP).—An epidemic of cholera is raging in the State of Travancore, in the southern part of the Indian peninsula. The deaths already total 2,000, or 62 per cent. of the cases.

In the capital city, Trivandrum, the outbreak has been checked by a vigorous campaign of inoculation, but in the southern areas, near the sea, the disease is virulent.

Gets 25 Years for Shooting Jailer.

BALLSTON SPA, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP).—George I. Fellows, wanted by authorities of three States, today was sentenced to twenty-five years in Dannemora Prison for the shooting and wounding of a Saratoga County jailer during an attempt to escape. Fellows, a former school teacher, pleaded guilty to assaulting Fred Currier, jailer, last July. Authorities of Vermont, New Hampshire and Tennessee also sought the arrest of Fellows.

SINGER FREED IN THEFT.

Mrs. Alva Valla Wins Suspended Sentence as Shoplifter.

Mrs. Alva Valla, 36 years old, a former opera singer who came to this country from her home in the Argentine five years ago, was freed on a suspended sentence yesterday in Special Sessions following her conviction a week ago for shoplifting.

A detective testified that she was arrested in Hearn's several weeks ago for the theft of $7.75 in trinkets. She was remanded to the Jefferson Market Women's Prison after her conviction pending sentence and regaled for other prisoners during her stay with her singing of Spanish love songs.

Mrs. Agnes Brock, a probation officer, reported to Justices Healy, Herbert and Murphy that Mrs. Valla's husband, Thomas, also a singer, but at present a factory manager, lived at 730 Eighth Avenue, where she gave piano and singing lessons.

Eulabee Dix Opens Exhibit of Large Miniatures—Vonnoh Art on View.

Eulabee Dix, American miniaturist, opened an exhibition of twenty "table portraits," yesterday at the Milch Galleries, 108 West Fifty-seventh Street. The "table portrait" which Mrs. Dix has created is a large miniature, averaging six by eight inches, set in a specially designed frame standing about fourteen inches high. Its aim is to take the place in the crowded apartment of the life-size portrait and yet to provide a larger representation than that of the ordinary miniature.

At the same galleries Robert Vonnoh opened an exhibition of recent paintings, most of which have been produced this year at the artist's studio in Lyme, Conn. Most of the paintings are portraits and figure studies. Mr. Vonnoh is represented in many of the country's museums. Both exhibitions will continue through Nov. 17.

ALL YOUNGSTERS NEED CEREALS

Sugar as a flavor makes these healthful foods enjoyable

Growing bones and teeth require the health-giving minerals and vitamins that are freely found in grain cereals and breakfast foods. Grains are nature's foods and they supply elements necessary to growth and nutrition. They are excellent in connection with milk, but is it sometimes hard to get children to eat them?

A judicious and reasonable amount of sugar added to these foods will work wonders in making them palatable, tasteful and enjoyable. No ingredient adds so much to the taste appeal of other foods. Sugar adds to the enjoyment of all kinds of fresh fruits and vegetables, so valuable in the diet of growing children. Use sugar as a condiment in making healthful foods acceptable to the palate. Sweetness, as the perfect flavor in foods, stimulates the flow of saliva and of gastric juice, thereby aiding digestion, as well as enjoyment.

Medical authorities warn parents to guard the nutrition of their children. See that your children eat regularly of varied, nutritious foods—thereby being safeguarded against such diseases as tuberculosis. Far better that your child be slightly overweight for its height and age than a single pound underweight. Sound nutrition is absolutely necessary to health and proper development. THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

A Zola Tragedy.

SHADOWS OF FEAR, with Gina Manes, J. Marie Lagrange, H. A. Schlettow, Charles Barrois, Wolfgang Zilzer, Paul Henckels and La Jana, based on Emil Zola's novel, "Therese Raquin," directed by Jacques Feyder; "Prudence," a Hal Roach production. At the Cameo Theatre.

Few tragic stories in motion pictures have been handled as capably as the picturization of Emile Zola's novel, "Thérèse Raquin, which is at present on view at the Cameo Theatre. It was directed by Jacques Feyder, a Frenchman, who, it may be remembered, produced "Faces of Children" and the shadow version of "Carmen," with Raquel Meller. It was made in Germany with both French and German players.

The technical side of this picture may not be up to Hollywood standards, but the manner in which the story is told is most impressive. M. Feyder exacts your attention and except for one or two minor shortcomings his presentation of this drama is trenchant. Because a murder is committed by means of drowning it will at once bring to mind something of "An American Tragedy," and also F. W. Murnau's motion picture, "Sunrise," which was an adaptation of Sudermann's "Trip to Tilsit."

This "Shadows of Fear," as it is called on the screen is a production that sinks into one's mind and even the individual characters will be remembered. It is an excellent example of sustained suspense in all its chapters and, while the chronicle is unpleasant, it is filmed with an intelligent conception of human psychology. Its restraint is another point in its favor.

The characters are admirably drawn, even to the manifestation of nervousness on the part of Thérèse's detestable husband. His artist friend, Laurent, undertakes to paint Michaud's portrait, and the romance between Laurent and Thérèse begins behind the easel as the unsuspecting husband is seated in frock coat and white tie in the big chair.

Laurent finally decides to get Michaud out of the way. They hire a boat during a carnival and Michaud, Thérèse and Laurent go forth one night on the water. M. Feyder gives at first no conception of how the drowning occurred. He waits until it is time to turn a flashback. Immediately after the drowning of Michaud cries for help are heard, and those who go to the rescue discover Laurent and the almost unconscious Thérèse near the boat, which is filled with water, but apparently still floating.

No suspicion is attached to the two. But their guilty consciences shadow them constantly. When some time later Laurent and Thérèse are wedded they have a frightful quarrel and the almost crazed Laurent rips off the wall the painting of Michaud. The noise brings up the old aunt, Michaud's mother, and she hears the truth about her son's death and falls unconscious. Laurent and Thérèse finally become more composed, evidently thinking over the fact that their secret is out. Then they discover that the old woman is paralyzed from head to foot, being able only to use her eyes. The artist and Thérèse bear with this old woman's steady stare for quite a long while, but in the end life becomes so filled with torture that they take poison.

It is heavy, gruesome, but M. Feyder's admirable work makes it an impressive study, and perhaps because the husband was despicable and the other two deserved their horrible existence and fate, it is not depressing.

Gina Marus gives a most understanding portrayal of the role of Thérèse. H. A. Schlettow, one of Germany's most able actors, is capital as Laurent. Charles Barrois as Michaud makes every gesture and expression tell. He is the accountant, adding up figures. He is the little-minded man who would like to meet some of Laurent's models, an idea that makes the character repugnant. The other players also do their share to make this an unusually worthy effort, black though the tale be.

Russia in 1859.

BONDAGE, with Heinrich George, Mona Maris and Harry Halm, a Ufa production; Soviet news reel; "Hand to Mouth," an old Harold Lloyd comedy; "Great Moments in Football." At the Fifty-fifth Street Playhouse.

"Bondage," a pictorial story of Russia in the days of tyranny and serfs, swings from the soil to the palace and then back to the soil. While the direction is sluggish and at times unconvincing, the acting is splendid, especially the performance of Heinrich George, who impersonates a rotund, bearded, fine-looking serf.

The tale is constructed to suit the convenience of the picture; it is chiefly concerned with the domination of the landowners over the farmhands and their ilk. There is a Countess, whose son falls in love with Tatjana, a lowly maiden. This Countess, to outwit her son, Alexei, during his absence with his regiment commands Tatjana to marry any one of the serfs who will have her. Nitika (Mr. George) chooses to make the girl his bride, because he feels that she will be happier with him than with any of the other available workmen.

The Countess, a month or so afterward, informs her son most casually of Tatjanas marriage to Nitika. She does this hoping that he will consent to marry the Governor's daughter. Alexei had been promised by his mother that he would be permitted to make Tatjana his wife if she still loved him in a year's time. The elderly Countess had even then decided on a plan to force her son's engagement to the Governor's daughter.

It is when the Countess discusses with the Governor, while he is inebriated, her strategy in the matter, that Alexei overhears, and this results in a violent scene, in which, to save himself from the Governor's sword, Alexei breaks a champagne bottle over the old man's head. These stretches are not particularly well pictured and the denouement is worked out in a more or less conventional manner.

'THE COP' A MELODRAMA.

Homicide Squad and Racketeers in Film at the Hippodrome.

THE COP, with William Boyd, Alan Hale, Jacqueline Logan, Robert Armstrong, Tom Kennedy, Louis Nathenux and Phil Sleeman; news reel; Aesop fable; vaudeville. At the Hippodrome.

This picture, as one might guess from the title, is a melodrama. It deals with members of the Homicide Squad, patrolmen on the beat, bridge workers and several varieties of racketeers. It adds little to the growth of drama in America, but as an unpretentious exponent of sturm and drang, it is a bit higher than the average.

William Boyd, as Pete Smith, starts his working career by operating a draw-bridge, presumably over the Harlem River. Nothing much happens to him until Scarface Marcas, wounded and disheartened, comes along and for a time lives in the bridge-tender's cabin. Then Scarface steals a coat and returns to the underworld; Pete decides (from boredom) to join the police force.

It thus develops that Scarface is one of the leaders of the criminal element, a leader to whom the Homicide Squad attaches a good deal of importance. They seek to capture him, but he is evasive and almost gets away with it. But Pete soon enters the lists, and after his best friend is shot during a holdup staged by the amiable Scarface, finally kills the fugitive.

The love interest is provided by a young woman who, while a member of the underworld gang, decides that Pete is a gentleman—even though "a cop." It is a wise decision, for Pete, on his side, saves her from the meshes of the law. Presumably they were later married, although there is no way of telling.

Mr. Boyd, in the part of a flippant—yet pseudo noble—patrolman, performs fairly satisfactorily; Miss Logan, as the girl, is pretty and amiable. Robert Armstrong, as Scarface, is just a little uncertain.

'FUR FASHION PAGEANT' AT PALACE THEATRE

Artists Appear Between Parades of Manikins—Fannie Brice in Familiar Numbers.

For those whose concerns in life include fashions and furs—and the number is said to be a not inconsiderable one—the chief new feature at the Palace this week may be of some interest. It is a "Fur Fashion Pageant and Revue," staged, so the program says, by the New York Retail Furriers' Association, Inc., in conjunction with the vaudeville people. Although it shows what the well dressed wearer of ermine, sables, caracul and mink will appear in this season, the act does not rise to any great heights as vaudeville entertainment. The intervals between the parades of the manikins are filled with dance specialties by Benny and Western and the Wright Dancers and with songs and whatnots by the Gauthier Sisters—vaudevillians all. As a novelty the revue may have a place, but happily it is not the sort of novelty that the Palace has often gone in for.

Fannie Brice, remaining for a second seven days, sings "My Man" and other familiar numbers—nearly all of them retained from last week. At the end of the performance she appears with Hughie Cameron in "Spoils of Lust," a travesty on the talking pictures which is not as good as its title.

Al Trahan, also holding over, has built up his act. He has overdone it a little, for he is not as funny as he was last week, although he was esteemed by yesterday's audience. Other features of the Palace show are William Morris and family in the skit "All the Horrors of Home," which they have often played in vaudeville, and Jimmy Savo, doing the familiar Jimmy Savo pantomime.

Toney and Norman and "Yesterthoughts," a revue, head the Hippodrome show. Irene Ricardi is at the Broadway, while Loew's State bills White and Tierney.

'SHANGHAI GESTURE' TO END

Mrs. Leslie Carter to Close Her Tour in Brooklyn Saturday.

Mrs. Leslie Carter, who began a tour in "The Shanghai Gesture" in Mamaroneck on Sept. 26, will close her engagement at Werba's Flatbush Theatre in Brooklyn on Saturday night. Although the business of the attraction has been considered profitable it has not been of sufficient proportions to warrant continuance. Mrs. Carter was the author's original choice for the leading rôle and acted it for several weeks when the play was first tried out three seasons ago.

'The Wild Duck' Revival Nov. 19.

The Actors' Theatre revival of "The Wild Duck" will open on Nov. 19 at a theatre yet to be specified. In addition to Blanche Yurka, who will stage the production and appear in the leading rôle, the cast will also include Linda Watkins.

"Exceeding Small," which is also being sponsored by the Actors' Theatre, will be continued at the Comedy. The original ending of the play was restored last night, following several performances with a modified ending.

Store Celebrating Book Week.

The celebration of Book Week at Wanamaker's, which began Saturday, was continued yesterday. William Lyon Phelps, Lampson Professor of English Literature at Yale, heads the honorary committee in charge of the store's observation of the week. John Farrar was Chairman of yesterday's celebration, and among the others on the program were Nathalia Crane, Faith Baldwin and J. P. McEvoy.

Hunter Dies of Accidental Shot.

NORWICH, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP).—Arthur J. Hartman of Endicott, injured when a companion's gun was accidentally discharged during a hunting trip Sunday, died today in a hospital here. The accident occurred near Oxford.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Many of the Broadway attractions will give holiday matinees this afternoon.

"A. M. or P. M.," a play by A. A. Milne, which was known in London as "The Fourth Wall," will be the next production at the Charles Hopkins Theatre.

Ruth Shepley, Clarke Silvernail and Heidi Brown have replaced Zelda Santley, George Probert and Robert Bentley in the cast of "The Squealer," which comes to the Forrest Theatre next Monday night.

"Thou Shalt Not," a play by John Willard, now being tried out, will be withdrawn on Saturday night. It is playing this week at the Windsor Theatre in the Bronx with Ralph Morgan, Mayo Methot and Edward Pawley in the leading roles.

"The Come Back," the Olga Printzlau play, will open on Thursday night in New Rochelle.

"Sign of the Leopard," is the name of the Edgar Wallace play, first called "The Squeaker," which the Shuberts are producing.

"Cafe de Danse," the play tried out last season as "Cafe Tomaso," will open in New Rochelle on Thursday, Nov. 15. In the cast will be Beverly Sitgreaves, Leonard Ceeley, Marion Draper, Myrtle Clark, Allen Vincent and Gregory Ratoff. Ben Bernie is now the producer.

"Jim the Penman," George C. Tyler's third revival of the season, has been placed in rehearsal.

"The Last Lover," Edgar Selwyn's next production, of which Elsie Ferguson is the star, will open at the Windsor Theatre in the Bronx on Nov. 26 and play the following week in Atlantic City. It went into rehearsal yesterday.

The Macklin-Marrow Chamber Orchestra has been engaged for the revival of "The Yellow Jacket," opening tomorrow night at the Coburn Theatre.

An election night performance of the "Jubilee of 1928" will take place at midnight tonight at the Earl Carroll Theatre.

MARGARET ANGLIN TO QUIT MACBETH

Giving Up Lady Macbeth Role Because of Injury to Her Foot —Florence Reed Her Successor.

Margaret Anglin, it is announced, is withdrawing from the cast of George C. Tyler's production of "Macbeth," now on tour, and will be succeeded by Florence Reed when the play begins its Washington engagement next Monday night.

Announcement was made by Mr. Tyler yesterday that Miss Anglin is giving up her rôle because of an injury to her foot, suffered in a motor car accident several weeks ago. She had expressed a desire to relinquish the part of the course of rehearsals, Mr. Tyler said, but had agreed to remain until a satisfactory substitute could be found. In Philadelphia this week Miss Anglin is still playing her rôle, that of Lady Macbeth.

Florence Reed has acted a Shakespearean rôle on only one occasion before, that having been during the season of 1907-1908, when she played Ophelia to E. H. Sothern's Hamlet. She made her last appearance three seasons ago in "The Shanghai Gesture."

The Tyler production of "Macbeth" has drawn considerable advance attention by reason of the fact that the scenery has been designed by Gordon Craig. The production, with Lyn Harding in the title rôle and William Farnum as Banquo, is scheduled to open at the Knickerbocker Theatre on Monday night, Nov. 19.

Held for Firing at State Troopers.

MALONE, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP).—Accused of having fired four shots at State troopers when they arrested him co...on near Santa Clara Friday night, Floyd E. Farmer, Rochester real estate man, was held in the Franklin County jail here today on an assault charge. Farmer was held for the Grand Jury at the direction of the District Attorney. Troopers reported that they stopped the automobile containing Farmer and a companion Friday night to make a routine search for possible evidence of violation of game laws. They found Farmer's companion intoxicated, they said, and took him from the automobile.

Two Killed at Ontario Crossing.

LONDON, Ontario, Nov. 5 (AP).—Mrs. Stanley Fuster of Medina and the hired man on the Fuster farm, whose name has not yet been ascertained, were fatally injured when their automobile was hit by a Canadian National Railroad passenger train near Thorndale this afternoon. Mrs. Fuster was being driven to visit relatives when the accident occurred.

JAILED ON ARREARS TO WIFE

Charles H. Thaw of New York Penalized by Philadelphia Court.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—Charles Harper Thaw, a former New York ticket broker, who says he is a relative of Harry K. Thaw, was sent to the House of Correction by Judge Thomas Bluett in Domestic Relations Court here today, pending the payment of arrears for the support of his wife, Mrs. Ethel M. Thaw of Bala, and their four children.

Thaw was arrested on Oct. 26 as he was preparing to board a New York express. He was unable to furnish $5,000 bail and was committed to Moyamensing Prison pending trial on the charges preferred by his wife. She declared he was $3,100 behind in the payments.

Mrs. Thaw obtained an order for $100 weekly support at a hearing in Municipal Court in November, 1927, when she declared that her husband had failed to pay her $200 a week after promising to do so. Thaw pleaded physical incapacity.

The Thaws were married in 1910. The case first came before the courts in October, 1927, when Mrs. Thaw filed a $150,000 alienation of affections suit against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Adelaide Thaw Beach of New York City.

Von Porat Is Defeated on Points by Paulino at Garden

PAULINO IS WINNER IN GARDEN FEATURE

Outpoints Von Porat in Easy Fashion in Ten Rounds—Floors Rival Twice.

DE KUH STOPS ROEBUCK

Referee Halts Semi-Final in First Round—O'Kelly Gets Verdict Over Friedman.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Otto Von Porat's ring schooling has not progressed to that stage where he is qualified for work against the better grade of heavyweights. That was the impression imprinted on the minds of those who last night in Madison Square Garden saw the tall Norwegian conquered by the rugged Paulino in the ten-round feature of a heavyweight carnival which inaugurated the general quest for a successor to Gene Tunney's vacated championship title.

In the throng of 15,000 who witnessed the struggle was Jack Dempsey, all-time popular hero of the ring, who acknowledged a vociferous ovation from an enthusiastic gathering.

Paulino won by seven rounds to three, a comfortable margin. He floored Von Porat for a count of seven in the first round and for a count of eight in the fifth chapter. But the Basque could not finish his rival, which was proof enough that he is the same old Paulino, strong, rugged, remarkably equipped as to resistance to punishment, but, nevertheless, a clumsy, crude, awkward, wild human fighting machine.

The first round was hardly two minutes old before the trim Norwegian was reclining on the ring floor under a sharp right which Paulino pushed home to the jaw. Von Porat regained his feet wearily at the count of seven and luckily managed to evade any of the wild lunges Paulino made in his general direction.

Paulino could not connect with a solid smash in the second or third rounds, although he chased the timid Norwegian all over the ring. Meanwhile the crowd begged, beseeched and implored Von Porat, "Let it go, Otto, let 'er go," meaning a right-hand punch, which Otto kept carefully poised and as carefully refused to unlimber.

In the third round Otto's nose began to bleed and he didn't look so good at all.

Von Porat Starts Action.

The fourth witnessed a recovery by Von Porat, who discarded some of his timidity and let fly with a succession of rights to the jaw, uppercuts delivered as Paulino dashed in, with the effect of startling the Spaniard and arousing the cheers of the crowd.

But the fifth was another discouraging round for Von Porat, for Paulino caught up with his retreating rival and, staggering Otto with a long left hook to the jaw, spilled the Norwegian with a solid left-hand smash to the temple. Von Porat sank gracefully, not with the punch, but within a split-second, and remained down for a count of eight.

Regaining his feet, the Norwegian again evaded Paulino's savage attempts at finishing the job. Through the seventh, eighth and ninth rounds Paulino pressed the attack steadily, while Von Porat only summoned the determination to unlimber a left jab or a short right at infrequent moments.

Paulino Is Staggered.

It was the same in the ninth, until just before the bell, when Von Porat staggered his rival with a right to the jaw, and the crowd howled its glee.

In the tenth round Paulino ripped and tore, as usual, against Von Porat, who seemed finally to be alive to the fact that he was fighting. When Paulino rushed and Otto was in position, Paulino stopped a solid right with his chin, and the crowd was yelling hoarse encouragement.

One right to the jaw shook Paulino from head to heel, but he continued to come in, though he was continuing to rush against desperate right-handers to the head and jaw. Von Porat won the round, but the session could not change the complexion of the fight. Paulino weighed 198 pounds, Von Porat 191½.

Tiny Roebuck, huge Choctaw Indian from Kansas City, was knocked out by Arthur De Kuh, Italian heavyweight, in the first round of a ten-round semi-final. The bout ended exactly 2 minutes 45 seconds after it had started, when Referee Mike Hylas grasped the tottering form of Roebuck and motioned De Kuh to his corner.

Roebuck had been floored twice, each time with short rights which De Kuh curled over to the jaw in action at close quarters. The first time he went down, the Kansan regained his feet at the count of eight, and when De Kuh, working his rival to the opposite side of the ring, floored him again, Roebuck clambered up on unsteady feet at the count of nine.

He was helpless to defend himself, however, and Referee Hylas intervened before De Kuh could strike what might have been a disastrous blow which certainly would have been a finisher. De Kuh weighed 210 pounds, Roebuck 248.

O'Kelly Defeats Friedman.

Con O'Kelly, Celtic boxer, made an auspicious debut when he won the decision from Al Friedman, Boston heavyweight, in the first of the ten round bouts and established himself as a satisfactory approach to the popular conception of a fighting Irishman.

O'Kelly had too much fighting ability for Friedman. The consequence was that the decision for O'Kelly was anticipated by the throng even before it was announced. Unexplainable were the jeers of a minority when the verdict was announced.

O'Kelly carried the fight consistently, out-hit and out-fought Friedman and out-boxed him as well, winning every round. O'Kelly weighed 194 pounds, Friedman 180¾ pounds.

Jack Saunders, Long Island City heavyweight, made short work of Joe Jeannette of Hot Springs in the opening bouts scheduled for four rounds. Saunders knocked out the Arkansas lad in 2 minutes 7 seconds of the second round after flooring Jeannette seven times, four times in the first round and three times in the second.

An emergency bout of four rounds was placed in the ring, and in this Marvin Shector, Boston light heavyweight, boxed a draw with Bill Bruns, west side light heavyweight.

Woman Breaks Ankle Playing In Football Game With Sons

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5 (AP).—A 31-year-old mother entered the ranks of football casualties when Mrs. Lillian Neighbors yielded to the pleas of her young sons that she join in their football game. She broke her ankle when she slipped while running with the ball.

DE LUCA TRIUMPHS OVER SCALFARNI

OLIN VICTOR BY KNOCKOUT

Gaito and Farber Battle to a Draw—Crowd of 3,000 Sees Card of 11 Matches.

Artie de Luca of Brooklyn defeated Tony Scalfarni, east side lightweight, in the feature bout of four rounds in the new-talent boxing show at the New Broadway Arena, Brooklyn, last night. A crowd of 3,000 witnessed the card, which called for eleven bouts, each of four rounds. De Luca's superior cleverness and generalship gained him the victory over his rugged opponent. The winner scored a knockdown in the third session. The weights were 135 for de Luca and 135¾ for his opponent.

Only one of the bouts on the card ended in a knockout. In the semi-final Bob Olin, 171 pounds, knocked out Jack Marsalis, 172, in 1 minute 30 seconds of the opening round. Solly Ritz of the east side, 128, made an auspicious entry into the professional ranks with a victory over Charlie Raymond, 124. Tony de Polo, 128, boxed a draw with Frankie Martin, 132½, in another contest.

In one of the main matches Johnny Gaito, a recent graduate of the amateur ranks and who hails from Yonkers, battled to an interesting draw with Lew Farber, east side bantamweight. Gaito weighed 121¼ pounds to his opponent's 117¼.

Benny Altman of the east side received the decision over Stanley Michalik of Williamsburg after a torrid encounter. Altman weighed 165 and his rival 167¼.

Lew Fields of Brownsville and Freddie Raymond of Corona staged an interesting battle, with Fields beating off a last-round rally to win the decision. The weights were 121½ for Raymond and 126¾ for Fields.

Benny Moseley, Detroit lightweight, had little difficulty with Irish Patsy Lyons of Brooklyn, winning the decision easily. Moseley weighed 138½, two pounds less than his rival.

Pete Herman, 128¾ pounds, outpointed Richard Gardino, 129¾, and Chris Schuman of Ridgewood, 149, beat Izzy Miliander, East New York, 152½. The opening bout went to Matty Brody, of Williamsburg, who defeated Al Palmer of Ridgewood. Brody weighed 132 pounds and Palmer 131½.

ALONZO SMITH WINS BOUTS.

Stops Chipperson and Outpoints Fenn in Newark Ring.

Alonzo Smith of the Montclair Y. M. C. A. thrilled a large crowd at the amateur boxing tournament held by the National Turners in Newark last night when he won on a knockout over Al Chipperson, National Turner boy, in the first round. In the final bout of the 140-pound class Smith won a close decision over Al Fenn of the Shawnee Red A. C. of Newark.

The summaries of the finals follow:

112-Pound Class—Lou Lombardi, Village Boys' A. C., knocked out Johnny Logan, Newark, in first round.

117-Pound Class—Al Santora, Village Boys' A. C., won decision over Clarence Compton, National Turners, three rounds.

134-Pound Class—Tony Pelcari, Union City, N. J., won decision over Wilbert Marsh, Montclair Y. M. C. A.

140-Pound Class—Alonzo Smith, Montclair Y. M. C. A., won decision over Al Fenn, Shawnee Red A. C., three rounds.

145-Pound Class—H. Huber, Paterson Y. M. C. A., won decision over Johnnie Battle, Montclair Y. M. C. A., three rounds.

Special Bout (160 Pounds)—Edgar Dietrich, Newark, knocked out Edwin Coeller, Newark, in first round.

COLLAPSES IN CHICAGO RING

Showers Suffers Brain Concussion After Being Stopped by Callahan.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 (AP).—Billy Showers, middleweight boxer of St. Paul, collapsed and fell unconscious after being stopped in the sixth round of a savagely-fought battle with Shuffle Callahan of Chicago Heights in the White City Arena tonight.

Showers slumped off the chair in his corner and three physicians worked frantically for forty-five minutes in an effort to revive him while he lay on the floor of the ring. Their efforts were unsuccessful and a pulmotor squad from a neighboring Fire Department also failed to effect restoration.

Officials of the Illinois State Athletic Commission ordered Showers rushed to a hospital in an effort to save his life. Showers regained consciousness in the hospital, but the physicians were unable to determine the exact extent of his injuries. A cursory examination indicated he was suffering from concussion of the brain.

KID ROY RETAINS TITLE.

Montreal Feather Rallies to Beat Foley and Keep Dominion Crown.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 6 (AP).—Leo (Kid) Roy of Montreal retained his title as feather-weight champion of the dominion when he won a twelve-round decision over Vic Foley, local challenger, here tonight.

Foley set the pace in the first half of the bout but Roy rallied and outpointed the Vancouver aspirant thereafter.

Slattery Defeats McLaughlin.

LAURI WINS 2 BLOCKS AND LEADS BY 209-73

Beats Greenleaf 105-43 and 104-30 as Handicap Pocket Billiard Match Opens.

Ralph Greenleaf, world's pocket billiard champion, was subjected to two one-sided defeats by Orfino Lauri yesterday at the Strand Academy in the opening two blocks of their handicap pocket billiard match. The champion was able to garner only 43 points in the afternoon block to 105 for Lauri and only 30 in the evening to 104 for his opponent. According to the handicap agreement, Greenleaf's quota was 125 in each block. The total score was 209 for Lauri and 73 for Greenleaf.

Three weeks ago Lauri defeated Greenleaf in a handicap match on the same basis of 1,500 points for Greenleaf to 1,250 for Lauri, 1,250 to 1,277. Since that time Greenleaf has not played and the lack of practice told considerably against him. He frequently missed easy shots and was never able to get started on a run. His best effort was nine in the afternoon and twelve at night.

Lauri had an unfinished run of thirty in the afternoon block and a run of fifty-three in his first inning in the afternoon for a total run of eighty-three. He also tallied twenty-three and twenty-eight unfinished. The afternoon session lasted twenty-one innings and the evening encounter sixteen.

Last season the Yale Club and the City Athletic Club finished in a tie for first place in the metropolitan Class C squash tennis championship and in the play-off City won by the score of 4 to 3, thereby capturing the title. Last night the two clubs came together again and Yale, with a new line-up except for Fergus Reid Jr. at No. 6, defeated a largely veteran City outfit by the decisive margin of six matches to one.

This was the third successive triumph for Frank Lafforgue's team and it continues in a tie for first place with the Columbia University Club, the Princeton Club and the Park Avenue Squash Club, all of which also won their matches last night. The Harvard Club suffered its first setback of the season, losing at the Heights Casino in Brooklyn, 4 to 3, when Bernhard Knollenberg defaulted to R. L. Carter of the home team in the No. 1 match.

Columbia narrowly escaped defeat at the hands of the New York A. C. on the Blue and White courts. It was not until the final match that the series was decided, A. K. Thomson defeating P. J. Colahan at 15—10, 14—17, 18—15. Rowland Dufton's protégés won the three matches at the top of the line-up, but Ernest Clark's pupils were the stronger at the other end.

Princeton defeated the Crescent A. C. on the Brooklyn team's courts by 6 to 1, although almost every match was hard-fought, and Frank Di Salvo's Park Avenue Squash Club won at the Short Hills Club, 5 to 2. In the other matches last night the Elizabeth Town and Country Club came through by a narrow margin in the final match with the Fraternity Club on the latter's courts, and the Apawamis Club won at the Shelton Club, 5 to 2.

QUEENSBORO PLAN DELAYED

Erection of New Sport Stadium Abandoned for Year.

The Queensboro Stadium in Long Island City will be operating at the old stand as an outdoor boxing arena next Summer, instead of submitting to construction work, it was made known yesterday with an announcement from Promoter Si Flaherty. Plans for erecting a huge indoor sport arena on the plot have been abandoned, at least for a year, Flaherty stated.

An authority close to Flaherty pointed out that the desirability of ascertaining definitely whether franchises would be available for hockey and cycling, along with reasonable assurance of successful arrangements for various other sports, prompted the decision to delay arena work at least for another year. The plan was to erect an arena with a seating capacity of 16,000 at boxing bouts and accommodations for 12,000 at hockey, on the site of the present outdoor arena.

NATIONAL LEAGUE TO MEET ON DEC. 11

THEN LEAVE FOR CHICAGO

There They Will Attend Joint Meeting With American League Heads on Dec. 13.

Owners of the National League baseball clubs will play a one-night stand at their annual meeting this year, The Associated Press reports. The Presidents and other officials will meet in New York on Tuesday, Dec. 11, and hop off the next day at noon for Chicago to attend the joint meeting of the National and American Leagues on Thursday, Dec. 13.

At both the National and American League meetings relations with the minor leagues will be discussed fully. The major leaguers expect to have a proposal from the minors for action on the question of the draft.

The minor leagues meet at Toronto the week before the majors assemble and they will find an emphatic request from the majors that some plan be presented for discussion.

SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION DROPS SPLIT SEASON

Directors Decide to Start Play at Same Time as Majors—Martin Re-Elected Head.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 5 (AP).—John D. Martin, Memphis attorney and for ten years President of the Southern Association, was unanimously re-elected by the league Directors today for a term of five years at a salary of $10,000 a year.

Rick Woodward of Birmingham was elected Vice President for life.

The split season in the association was discarded and the opening of the 1929 season was set to conform with the major leagues' opening, probably April 16.

The joint player limit and class rule in effect during the past season was continued. Under this provision each club can have not more than eighteen players, at least five of whom must be in a lower classification than "A."

Jan. 29 was fixed as the date for the schedule meeting to be held at Birmingham.

Because of a conflict in the club standings for the 1928 season as to third place, the directors decided that New Orleans would retain third place but that full third place money from the Dixie series would be awarded as well to Mobile. Each club's share will be $3,509.50, to be divided among the players.

The 1928 pennant was formally awarded to Birmingham.

As a result of the directors' action abandoning the split season, the 1929 season will be played on a straight 154-game basis.

Delgada Outpoints Accetta.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Nov. 5 (AP).—Al Delgada, New York, welterweight, won the decision over Joe Accetta of Providence in eight rounds here tonight. Johnny Wilson, New Bedford, outpointed Battling Brousseau of Fall River in the six-round semi-final.

Macomber's Jumper Takes Master of Fox Hounds Event by Two Lengths.

REPELS BID OF KLARINSKI

Street Draws Away With Mount After Final Fence—Caskey Silks in Front in Two Races.

By BRYAN FIELD.

Special to The New York Times.

PIMLICO, Md., Nov. 5.—John R. Macomber's Bridge had rather an easy time in winning the first running of the Master of Foxhounds Association Steeplechase for hunters, contested before a crowd of 10,000 persons here today.

Although pressed in the last furlong by a challenge from James Simpson Jr.'s Klarinski, Bridge went on to win the long three-mile grind by two lengths. Six lengths behind Klarinski finished James Piper's Court Jester III.

Gentlemen riders were in the saddle, and W. B. Street gave Bridge a well-judged ride to more than offset the best efforts of A. C. Bostwick, who was up on Klarinski. Street's tactics, like those of Nurmi in a foot race, were to get in front and stay there. A furlong after the start he was in the lead, and that's where he stayed until the end.

Grayson Presents Cup.

A cup of the value of $500 went with the purse of $1,500, and Admiral Cary T. Grayson made the presentation in the steward's stand.

A son of Wrack and Cue, Bridge carried 162 pounds, top weight, through heavy going, to be clocked in 6:17 4-5, considered good time under the circumstances.

At the start Court Jester III took the lead, with Black Pepper second. But Bridge quickly went to the front, with Black Pepper following close on his heels. This order prevailed for the first turn of the field, and then Lunatic, coupled in the betting with Klarinski, made a bid.

With no particular excitement, the race continued until Klarinski moved up menacingly at the second mile. From this point on it was reasonably clear that these two would fight it out for the victory. The hard drive came in the last furlong, when both had taken the final fence in good style. But Street shook up his mount and Bridge drew away to win decisively. Bridge was the favorite in the betting and paid $3.80 for $2.

The Pikesville purse for three-year-olds saw a surprise when Essare, owned by the Jacques Stable, came home winner by a head in a driving finish to pay $29 for $2. The Sage Stable's Bravery ran second and Walter J. Salmon's Annapolis third. Dinah Did Upset, the hot favorite which had won her two previous outs, was unplaced.

Essare and Bravery in Duel.

Essare and Bravery put on a duel at the top of the stretch, which lasted to the wire, the pair distancing all else in the race. Annapolis came from far back to get the show and might have been closer with a harder rider.

Owner W. E. Caskey Jr. and Jockey Al Coleman, who are well known locally, scored doubles in the course of the afternoon. Coleman had the leg up on Caskey's Red Leather in the second race and on the same owner's Viscose in the fourth event.

The first victory saw the expiration of Coleman's apprentice allowance, obliging Viscose to carry five pounds more than originally planned. This he did gamely enough, having a length advantage at the end on J. J. Conner's Billy Warren, which got the place by a scant head over the fast-coming Tillie.

Coleman brought Viscose to the front at the half-way mark, at which time Tillie was the main contention. For part of a furlong as they came off the stretch turn Sam Slick moved into a contending position, but soon faded in the face of the determined rush of Billy Warren and Tillie.

A first-time starter ran an impressive race in the opening event for maiden two-year-olds. This was the Arden Farm's Sun Shadow, by Sun Briar out of Edwina. He is a full brother to Sun Edwin and ran today as if he would add laurels to those gained by his more famous brother.

He started in a six-furlong dash, and after being taken along a bit carefully by Pony McAtee he strode boldly out and won easily by part of a length from Domineer, which took the place by four lengths from Transit.

FAIRMOUNT TO RACE JOLLY ROGER TODAY

Crack Jumpers to Clash in the $10,000 Gwathmey Memorial 'Chase at Belmont Park.

BOSTWICK UP ON LORENZO

Banner Crowd Expected at Closing Meeting of United Hunts— Six Races on the Card.

Those two famous jumpers, Fairmount and Jolly Roger, will be pitted against each other once again this afternoon when they meet in the $10,000 Temple Gwathmey Memorial Steeplechase Handicap, the feature of the six races which comprise the closing day's program of the Autumn meeting of the United Hunts Association at Belmont Park.

Trainer J. Howard Lewis has shipped the J. E. Widener entry here from Pimlico especially for the event, and Fairmount is in excellent condition. In Maryland recently he surprised those who believed that he was through for the season by galloping home first for the easiest kind of victory. Dolly Byers, who has ridden Fairmount in all of his big races, will have the leg up on him again this afternoon.

Widener is particularly anxious to win this fifth annual running of the classic, for in the last three renewals his colors have been carried past the judges' stand in front of the field and the last two times it has been Fairmount which has done the winning.

Jolly Roger Top Weight.

Both of Fairmount's victories were gained over his rival, Jolly Roger, last year's triumph being by a four-length margin. Mrs. Payne Whitney's entry, however, twice winner of the American Grand National, is running in his best form and showed Saturday that he is ready to match strides with the Widener hope, despite the fact that he will be conceding Fairmount four pounds, Jolly Roger will be carrying 169 pounds.

Other probable starters in the race are Stephen Sanford's Rudolf and Thracian, the Raritan Stables' Rip, H. W. Maxwell's Flittula, C. V. B. Cushman's Ragweed, Frank Crossman's Volunteer, the Sunnyland Stables' Phidias and J. E. Widener's Lorenzo. The last named will be ridden by the gentleman rider, George Bostwick.

In addition to the Gwathmey are listed the following: The Locustwood, a one-mile dash for three-year-olds; the second part of the United Hunts Double Event for hunters, a test of three miles over a brush course; the Blemton Stakes, at seven furlongs; the Queens Steeplechase, for three-year-olds and upward, and the Richard Peters Challenge Cup, a race of a mile and a half on the flat.

Record Crowd Expected.

The largest crowd in the history of the event is expected today and special trains will leave Pennsylvania Station at 12:30 and 1:20 P. M., connecting at Jamaica with trains leaving Flatbush Avenue station, Brooklyn. These trains will leave immediately after, and forty minutes after, the last race.

The track can be reached by motor from New York City by crossing the Queensboro Bridge, following Queens Boulevard to Hillside Avenue, thence on 188th Street or Flushing Avenue to Hollis Avenue and along Springfield Avenue to Hempstead Boulevard, which carries to the track. This route avoids all Long Island railroad crossings.

SALMON WILL SEND MARES TO AUCTION

Flirtation and Billet Doux in His Consignment for Sale at Lexington.

Walter J. Salmon has decided to dispose of some of the best mares in his breeding stud through the medium of the annual breeders' sale to be held at Lexington, Ky., next week, by the Kentucky Sales Company.

The mares to be offered at auction possess the best of English and American blood, and the only reason for their disposal, Salmon says, is to make room for younger mares that have been in his racing stable and which are ready to be retired to the stud.

Some of the mares in the consignment have raced with distinction in England and Ireland, and several have given noted performers to the turf, such as St. Louis, winner of the English Two Thousand Guineas, whose dam was Princess Sterling, bred at the famous Maher's Stud in Ireland. She was by Florizel II, Triple Crown winner. This mare also produced Step Lightly, Barney Shannon and Charlemagne.

Some of the other prominent mares that trace through famous blood lines are Flirtation, half sister to Over There, which was a good stake winner in America. She is out of a Sundridge mare. Billet Doux, by Charles O'Malley out of a Tetrarch mare, is a young mare that carries the famed Roi Herode blood which has proved very successful in England and France.

The American mares to be sold are by such good brood mare sires as Superman, Star Shoot, Celt and Uncle. Superwoman, by Superman, is the dam of the winners Ursa Major, Maid of Orleans and others. She traces back to the family of Mad Play and Mad Hatter. Post Mark, by Star Shoot, is the dam of the winner Stampdale and Postage, and her granddam was the dam of the unbeaten Colin.

Diversion, half sister to Dominant and dam of Northland, is by Sweep out of Dominoes, and traces to the family of Melton. Retrieve, by Celt, is also the dam of winners. These mares have been bred to the Merewerth Stud stallions.

PIMLICO, Md., Nov. 5.—Before racing began the masters of hounds at several hunts in the State and others from further away gathered at luncheon. The luncheon extended until the feature race, the Masters of Fox Hounds Association Steeple Chase.

A ruling of the Racing Commission, posted today, sustains the stewards in the placing of fractious horses on the outside of any field. Entries of bad actors now will only be accepted with the understanding that they will go on the outside.

With the earlier ruling, restricting to twelve any field, except in a stake or steeplechase, it is expected that post conditions will be much better than in the past. Horsemen are pleased with the care being exercised by the authorities.

The new regulations governing horses are not all. The lowly dog is in for his share of restrictions, but it is the City of Baltimore which rules in this case. It seems that the Pimlico course is now within the city limits and trainers, stable boys and others must have licenses for the stray mutts which are to be fund about every stable.

LATONIA, Ky., Nov. 5 (AP).—The Ironton Purse brought an easy victory to the favorite, J. W. Parrish's Percentage, here today. At the end of the mile race Percentage was twelve lengths ahead of the Parkview Stable's Jem. Cartago, owned by R. E. Lechleiter, was third. The winner paid $3.66 for a $2 mutuel ticket.

Victories by outsiders added interest to the day's card. Little Scout won the third race, paying $49.90 straight in the mutuels, while Helen Dean, held at $30.38, won the fourth event.

30,000 Expected to See Fordham Eleven Play West Virginia Today

FORDHAM-WEST VA. AWAIT CLASH TODAY

Both Elevens at Peak of Form for Fray at Yankee Stadium, Their First Meeting.

30,000 EXPECTED AT GAME

Aerial Attack Likely to Be Chief Offensive Factor—Squads Hold Final Workouts.

The football teams of Fordham University and West Virginia, both now well in their stride, will meet this afternoon at the Yankee Stadium. The game will start at 2 o'clock.

It will be the first meeting on any athletic field between the two universities. What the game lacks in tradition, however, is expected to be compensated for by the power of the two elevens, both of which are composed in the main of sophomore players. A crowd of 30,000 is expected to witness it.

The rival squads held their final workouts yesterday afternoon, the Maroon at Fordham Field and the Morgantown team at the Yankee Stadium.

Air Attack Will be Stressed.

Both teams are expected to stake their chances to a great extent on forward passing. With Larry Dallaire on the throwing end the Maroon probably will unleash the aerial game which has been mainly responsible for all of Fordham's victories this season. Coach Cavanaugh has been attempting to balance the team's accurate aerials with a strong running attack.

Ryan and Keefer are expected to do the passing for West Virginia while Glenn will do its kicking in an attempt to outdo Walter Tracey, the Fordham guard who will handle the punting unless Frank Bartos starts the game in the Maroon backfield. In that event John Cannella will play guard in place of Tracey.

Along with Ryan, Glenn and Keefer, the Mountaineer backfield contains Eddie Bartrug, who has made spectacular runs in most of the games. It is Bartrug whom the Fordham defense will have to watch, according to the Maroon scouts.

Fordham Line-up in Doubt.

Cavanaugh still is undecided on his starting line-up. Dallaire and Charlie Pieculewicz are definitely slated to play in the backfield but Bartos, Bill McMahon, Joe Fontana and Stan Shableski will supply the material from which the halfbacks will be drawn.

The probable line-up:

Fordham.		West Virginia.
Wisniewski	L.E.	Vacheresse
Miskinis	L.T.	Lewis
Tracey	L.G.	Gordon
Siano	C.	Hagberg
Beloin	R.G.	Meisel

N. Y. U. DRILLS TODAY FOR ALFRED CONTEST

Meehan Gives Squad a Holiday—All in Good Shape After Georgetown Game.

For the second time this year the varsity football team at New York University received a holiday yesterday when Coach Meehan called off the usual Monday afternoon workout.

Today the squad will drill at Ohio Field for the meeting on Saturday with Alfred University. Following the practice the squad will be the guests of the Fordham University Athletic Association at the West Virginia-Fordham game at the Yankee Stadium.

The meeting with the Alfred team is being heralded as the homecoming game for the Violet students and alumni. The game will be played at Ohio Field and it will be the final varsity football contest on the campus field for the season. The N. Y. U. eleven came out of the Georgetown University struggle without injuries.

MICHIGAN PREPARES FOR NAVY STRUGGLE

Squad Will Have Intensive Drill Today and Tomorrow—Leaves for Baltimore Thursday.

Special to The New York Times.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 5.—A joyful Michigan team reported for practice today as a result of its triumph over an Illinois eleven of supposedly unbeatable qualities.

With renewed confidence the Wolverines prepared to continue their success. Navy is the next foe which the Wolverines must meet, next Saturday.

The Michigan team had a light workout. Owing to the fact that it will entrain for Baultimore Thursday afternoon, the only intensive preparation possible before lining up against the Navy team will take place tomorrow and Wednesday.

There is at present no probability that there will be any changes in the Michigan line from that of last Saturday. Boden, however, will come in for plenty of attention in case Michigan's right side should weaken. Squier and Williams are possibilities if there is a hurry call at right tackle.

PLAYER IN PLASTER CAST.

Groat of Conn. Aggies, Who Injured Back, Out for Season.

Special to The New York Times.

STORRS, Conn., Nov. 4.—Bob Groat, regarded as one of the fastest and shiftiest ball carriers on the Connecticut Aggies' squad, who fractured the lumbar vertebrae of his back in the Coast Guard game on Saturday and will be unable to play for the remainder of the season, is now in the college infirmary with his back in a plaster cast.

The loss of Groat is a severe blow to the Aggies, who are still undefeated and unscored upon.

Coaches of New York Colleges Set Precedent—Answer Questions

Crowley, Meehan and Cavanaugh Never Turn Inquirers Away When They Seek Information Concerning Their Teams—Field Goal Becoming Extinct—Army's Six-Man Defense Effective.

By RICHARDS VIDMER.

There's one thing about the local football coaches—they'll answer questions. No one seeking the truth concerning the football fortunes of Columbia, N. Y. U. or Fordham ever has been led around in conversational circles by Coaches Crowley, Meehan and Cavanaugh, respectively and respectfully. The three have ever been known to go out of their way to enlighten observers.

Questions concerning systems, plays, judgment, theories, conditions and conditioning, defensive and offensive moves and such always have received an answer from the New York coach to whom they were directed. Other teams have barred the gates from time to time. Other coaches have refused to answer questions concerning their teams. Not so Crowley, Meehan and Cavanaugh.

Even when an inquisitive observer approached Coach Crowley during practice at Baker Field and asked him intimate questions concerning the Columbia team Crowley gave him an answer, such as it was. Anyway, it was enough.

Some of the Questions.

"Just what are the weaknesses in the Columbia team? What plays are you going to use next Saturday? Will you predict the scores of your next three contests? Who is hurt and where? If so, how did he get that way? What do you think of the officials who have been appointed to work Columbia's games? What do you think of any officials? What games do you expect to lose? Isn't there anything you can do about it? Why were those games booked if you expected to lose them?" were a few of the questions fired at Crowley in rapid succession.

The Columbia coach scratched his head, looked the interrogator straight in the eye, and said, "Well, yes and no."

The field goal in football is becoming almost as extinct as the nose guard. Out of a list of 240 players who have scored for Eastern teams this season, only eight have kicked goals from the field. And out of approximately 4,500 points scored by these players, only 27 have been made that way.

Fumbles that lose football games generally are remembered longest by the men that made them, but Jinx O'Herin of N. Y. U. needn't fret or fume about the one he made on Georgetown's 3-yard line. Ken Strong twice lost his grip on the ball and it was recovered by a Georgetown player each time. Beryl Follet let it slip from his hands and into those of an opponent once. It just happened that O'Herin's fumble was gathered up by Provincial and carried 87 yards for the winning touchdown.

Forward Pass Combinations.

Oberlander-to-Lane and Friedman-to-Oosterbaan have been a couple of forward pass combinations that have lived longer than the span of a college education. There are at least three combinations this season which have worked well on Eastern fields. They are the Army's Cagle-to-Carlmark, N. Y. U.'s Strong-to-Nemecek and Dartmouth's Wolff-to-Swarthout. Then there was a 56-yard pass from Scull to Schober that won a game for Penn last week. Maybe it's the Lindbergh influence.

After losing four straight games, Michigan beat Illinois, which had won four straight. After losing three out of four contests, Navy beat Penn, which not only had won four in a row, but hadn't been scored on. In view of these events the Army is no cinch to beat Notre Dame next Saturday just because Notre Dame happened to drop a couple of games to Wisconsin and Georgia Tech, while the Army has been beating everybody in commuting distance.

In the last minute of the Yale-Army game the Blue was storming at the Cadets' 1-yard line.

"Holy smoke!" exclaimed a guest on the sidelines to Coach Biff Jones. "Look at the Army using a six-man defense down there!"

"Well, six men have been stopping them all season," Coach Jones mused. "If they can't stop them on the 1-yard line, let 'em score."

P. S.—Six men stopped them.

Mooney Brothers at Georgetown.

Jim Mooney, Georgetown tackle, who held off N. Y. U. on Saturday by a few little things like tackling, intercepting passes, recovering fumbles and punting 65 yards with a muddy ball, caused a lot of scouts to take back bad news to future Georgetown opponents. But even worse, Georgetown has two more Mooneys in reserve. They are Bill and Phil, brothers of Jim.

Now it can be told. Coach Lou Little of Georgetown didn't expect to win from N. Y. U. He was all confidence to the public and his players, but to his intimates he confessed that he "hoped to make a good showing."

Four teams have absolutely clean records which aren't being mentioned very often between games. They are George Washington, Albright, Trinity and Bates. Not a score among the four.

NAVY STARTS DRILL FOR MICHIGAN GAME

Squad Practices Passes Which Team Is Expected to Use in Baltimore Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 5.—The Naval Academy football squad began this afternoon its preparations for the game with the University of Michigan in Baltimore on Saturday with a short practice, in which a formation drill was the chief feature.

The players are in good physical condition and in fine spirits over their showing in the last two games.

The formation drill was designed to polish up the passing game. The running attack was effective in the game against West Virginia Wesleyan last Saturday, but the naval team has not employed the pass as a regular part of its attack. Though the Navy scored against Penn by this play, the middies used it only three times in that game, two attempts being failures.

The naval team now has several good passers, among them Spring, Gannon and Lloyd, and it is expected to use new varieties of passing plays Saturday.

Assistant Coaches Johnny Wilson and Johnny Beckett saw Michigan in action against Illinois Saturday and were much impressed by the work of the Wolverines.

SHIFTS IN LINE-UP IMMINENT AT YALE

Stevens Warns Squad That Play Against Dartmouth Was Below Desired Standard.

HEAVY WORKOUTS ORDERED

Plan for Light Week Is Put Off as Eleven Starts Its Drill for Maryland Game.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 5.—Mal Stevens, Yale football head coach, told his squad today that he was displeased with Yale's showing against Dartmouth, that line-up changes were possible and that the present week must disclose marked improvement in general play. He expects that Maryland, despite its three defeats this season, will give Yale trouble.

Stevens pointed out in a blackboard talk that Yale plays were run off against Dartmouth inaccurately, that the forward passing and punting were below standard and that the power of the team was not well applied.

One detail which he feels should be improved is scoring the odd point after touchdowns. Yale has not made the additional point following a touchdown in three games.

Heavy Workouts Are Ahead.

Instead of a light week, as the coaches partially agreed yesterday, three days of heavy scrimmaging has been decided upon. Tomorrow the varsity will oppose the freshmen for the third time this season in a practice game. On Wednesday and Thursday more actual football will be played.

Today Stevens closed a long afternoon of drill in the fundamentals and in kicking and forward passing with a signal rehearsal in which the varsity was composed exactly as against Dartmouth. Possible line-up changes will be deferred until later in the week.

Veterans in Light Practice.

The veterans Norman Hall, Johnny Garvey, Johnny Hoben, Frank Oldt, Chauncey Hubbard and Elmer Kell took light practice, but did not return to the first string line-up.

The Yale coaches were delighted with the improved physical condition shown by the squad today. The line-up was as follows:

Babe Ruth Is Unrecognized As He Gets License to Hunt

A big fellow whose name was on every sport fan's lips three short weeks ago lined up unrecognized yesterday at the license window of the City Clerk. When it came to his turn to receive a resident hunting and fishing license, he gave his name as George Herman Ruth, The Associated Press reports. He said he was six feet two inches tall and weighed 226 pounds, and hurried away without saying where he plans to hunt and fish on his own initiative. City Clerk Michael J. Cruse added "ball player" to the description.

MARYLAND IS HOPEFUL CRIPPLES WILL BE FIT

Expects Good Showing Against Yale if Its 4 Injured Regulars Are in Trim.

Special to The New York Times.

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 5.—University of Maryland is hopeful of having its four crippled regulars in trim when it faces Yale at New Haven Saturday.

The four are Heagy, right end, who did not play at all against Virginia Poly; Kessler, quarter, who got into the fray only in the last two minutes; Radice, right halfback, who played part of the time, and Dodson, left end, who was in most of the contest. While Coach Curley Byrd doubtless will have to keep Heagy, Kessler and Radice out of the practice sessions most of the week, he may be able to start all of them against the Elis.

If Maryland is able to field its full strength against Yale, it feels that it will make a good showing. When the old liners have their entire first string team in the game they present a well-balanced combination, but they haven't the reserve power to stand changes.

COLUMBIA POINTS FOR PENN CONTEST

Light Drill for Regulars and Long Session for Reserves Open Drive for Game.

CROWLEY PRAISES ELEVEN

Pleased With Play in Cornell Clash, Predicts Further Improvement—Johns Hopkins Next Foe.

Columbia entered the final stages of its football season yesterday when it started preparation for its game with Pennsylvania, which will be played at Philadelphia a week from Saturday. Johns Hopkins comes to Baker Field this week, but it is at the contest with the Quakers that Coach Charles Crowley is aiming.

The game with Cornell last Saturday was evenly fought all the way, in the opinion of the Lion coaching staff, and Crowley believes that his young team gained considerable experience from the 0–0 encounter with the Ithacans.

Coach Predicts Improvement.

"I predicted that the Dartmouth game had done my team a lot of good," said Crowley yesterday, "and the results bore me out. This was a much better team than that which played at Hanover, and now, with the Cornell game under its belt, I think the Columbia men will be even better against Pennsylvania, which appears to have recovered from its recent slump against the Navy and is coming back strongly."

Crowley was well pleased that there were no serious injuries as a result of the Cornell game. That Columbia was able to tie the Ithacans without the services of Joe Stancsyk, its best line plunger, was another source of pleasure for the Lion mentor.

Stancsyk was kept out of the Cornell contest as the coaches did not wish to take any chance of having him injured. The Hudson Falls boy has just recovered from a shoulder injury and it is quite likely that Crowley will keep him on the bench this Saturday so that he will be in top form for the Pennsylvania game.

Regulars in Light Drill.

The men who participated in the game with Cornell took part in a light workout yesterday at Baker Field. The most strenuous work they performed consisted of passing, kicking and a calisthenic drill. The other members of the squad were sent through a long drill in signals and a dummy scrimmage.

Crowley is spending a great deal of time with his reserves in an attempt to build up capable substitute material for the Pennsylvania and Syracuse games. Before the teams took to the field yesterday, Crowley gave his usual Monday blackboard talk.

RUTGERS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 5.—With two victories in successive games behind it, the Rutgers eleven began preparations today for the Lafayette encounter which takes place on Saturday. All of the regulars who saw action against Catholic University were on the field in good condition and ran through a light dummy scrimmage. Whitey Stager, brilliant halfback, however, is ill with pleurisy and may be unable to play during the rest of the season.

COLGATE.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 5.—A brief forty-minute practice session today marked the Colgate preparation for Hobart on Saturday. Every man of the Maroon squad is in perfect physical condition. Ed Herb, sophomore fullback, was in Macaluso's position today, while Vaughn and Hart occupied the halfback berths, with Yablok deciding on the plays.

CORNELL.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 5.—The Cornell regulars had an easy practice this afternoon, a light signal drill comprising the session. St. Bonaventure will be played at Ithaca Saturday. The forward pass will be stressed in the workouts this week.

HOLY CROSS.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 5.—The Holy Cross team came out of the Brown game in good physical condition and today started its drive for Boston University, which will be played here Saturday. The offense has not been pleasing to the Purple coaches and some changes are expected in the next few days. Captain Phelan will be ready this week and will bolster the centre of the line.

WILLIAMS.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Nov. 5.—Coach Caldwell gave the Williams varsity a rest today, but he plans to start work tomorrow preparing for the Wesleyan game which will be played Saturday. Present indications are that Williams will have its full strength ready for its first little three game. Langmaid, sophomore star, will be used at fullback in the remaining games.

AMHERST.

Special to The New York Times.

AMHERST, Mass., Nov. 5.—Coach White experimented with reserve line material in the Amherst practice today. Mackey and Parker, who replaced the veterans, Lott and Hoffman, in the Massachusetts Aggie fray, were with the first team this afternoon and will start the Trinity and Williams games.

WESLEYAN.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 5.—Wesleyan came through the Trinity contest in good shape and began its drive for the Williams game on Saturday. Coach Wood concentrated on fundamentals today and there will be no scrimmage until Wednesday.

LAFAYETTE.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 5.—No practice was held by the Lafayette squad today and none will be held tomorrow. The first workout will take place Wednesday in preparation for the game with Rutgers at New Brunswick on Saturday.

LEHIGH.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 5.—The Lehigh squad started work this afternoon for the Bucknell game, which will be played Saturday. Bennett, a halfback, was injured last Saturday, but is expected to be ready for the Bucknell contest.

NORWICH.

Special to The New York Times.

NORTHFIELD, Vt., Nov. 5.—Characterizing Norwich's two remaining football games, with C. C. N. Y. and Boston University respectively, as the hardest on the Norwich schedule, Coach Graham today sent his squad through a vigorous practice. The eleven came out of Saturday's contest in good condition and Norwich will present its full strength against C. C. N. Y. Jerry Hourin, Hogan and Poach, linemen who have been out with injuries, all will be ready for the fray.

PENN STATE.

Special to The New York Times.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 5.—The first rest day of the season was enjoyed by the Penn State squad here this afternoon. The squad will resume tomorrow, when it begins preparations for the final home game of the season, that with George Washington University. The team came through the game with Notre Dame in good condition.

WASHINGTON-JEFFERSON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 5.—Hope revived by the tie with Lafayette and the possibility that Captain Carl Aschman, Jap Douds, Morty Robinson and Richard Schumacher, who did not participate in that struggle, soon would be ready to return to the line-up, the Washington and Jefferson squad started preparations here this afternoon for the annual clash with Pittsburgh, which will be played Saturday.

MIDDLEBURY.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., Nov. 5.—The Middlebury football squad had a light workout this afternoon. Willis and Schmidt were injured last Saturday. The former is expected back in a week but Schmidt, with a badly wrenched leg, will be out for the rest of the season. Gil Smith, a backfield player, also is out for the rest of the year with torn shoulder ligaments, while Whitman, Bedell and MacNary will return to the field this week.

BUCKNELL.

Special to The New York Times.

LEWISBURG, Pa., Nov. 5.—The Bucknell squad was excused from practice today. The Bisons are beginning to show the strains of the campaign and Coach Snavely plans to rest his men as much as possible in view of the approaching games with Lehigh, Washington and Jefferson, Dickinson and Temple.

VILLANOVA.

Special to The New York Times.

VILLANOVA, Pa., Nov. 5.—All of the Villanova regulars who saw action against Bucknell last Saturday received a day of rest today, Coach Harry Stuhldreher sending only the third and fourth stringers through a light drill consisting of calisthenics and signal practice. Villanova, triumphant in five straight games, will begin pointing tomorrow for the duel with Temple, to be waged on Franklin Field Saturday.

Light Workout Opens Army's Final Drive for Notre Dame

Coach Jones Conducts Light Kicking and Passing Drill for Entire Squad.

EVERY MAN IN CONDITION

Team Due to Be at Top Strength for Contest—Reserves Praised for Play Against De Pauw.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 5.—With every man on the squad reporting in good shape for the workout, Captain Biff Jones, head coach, today launched the Army's final drive for the annual encounter with Notre Dame, which will be met in New York at the Yankee Stadium Saturday.

Only a light workout opened the last week of preparation for the battle with the South Bend eleven, the actual work being confined to kicking and passing. Before the session on the gridiron, however, Coach Jones delivered a blackboard talk in which he paid particular attention to plans for the coming clash and also referred to the faults which cropped out in last Saturday's game with De Pauw.

Coaches Praise Reserves.

The De Pauw contest, which the Army won by a score of 38—12, furnished the Cadet reserves with an opportunity to display their football wares, and the coaches were well satisfied with their showing. John Murrel, fullback, was the only Army regular to get into the fray, and even he did not see action for the entire engagement with the Western eleven.

The excellent physical condition of his players is a source of particular satisfaction to Jones. None of the Cadets was injured in the De Pauw game and the head coach hopes to have his squad at full strength for the Notre Dame contest and for the engagements with Nebraska and Stanford, which will wind up the campaign.

Carleton College of Minnesota will send its eleven here for a game on the Saturday after the affair with Notre Dame, giving the Cadets something of a lay-off before their meeting with Nebraska.

Jones Respects Notre Dame.

Army, according to Jones and his assistants, has the greatest respect for Notre Dame, despite the poor start made this season by Knute Rockne's men. The Hoosiers barely defeated Loyola of Louisiana to start their campaign and have been beaten by Wisconsin and Georgia Tech.

The Notre Dame team, a comparatively inexperienced one, has been improving rapidly, however, having conquered the Navy and Penn State, and before a capacity crowd in the Yankee Stadium on Saturday will be out to avenge the 18—0 defeat administered by the Army a year ago.

CARROLL LEADING SCORER.

Washington Star, With 104, Displaces Strong in National Standing.

Charlie Carroll of the University of Washington has displaced Ken Strong of New York University as the country's leading individual college football scorer, according to The Associated Press.

Carroll scored six touchdowns against Puget Sound on Saturday to bring his total for the season to 104 in eight games. Strong, held scoreless by Georgetown, has tallied 91 points in six games.

HOLDS SECRET WORKOUT.

Boston College Begins Preparations for Game With Fordham.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWTON, Mass., Nov. 5.—Boston College held secret football practice today for the first time this year, as Coach McKenney started grooming his charges for the game with Major Frank Cavanaugh's Fordham eleven, which will be played Nov. 12 in Boston. While most of the first-string line-up is definitely settled, this week should see a spirited battle for the left guard and right halfback berths. The veteran Zeus Wliczewski is battling with Ed Donahue and Bud Gorman for the guard position, while Johnny Marr, regular left halfback until last week, seems to have been displaced by Joe Mirley, with Jack Kennedy also crowding for the place.

DARTMOUTH HAS HOLIDAY.

Hawley Lets Eleven Have Day Off, Even Omitting Chalk Talk.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 5.—Jess Hawley gave the Dartmouth players a day off today, omitting even the usual chalk talk. Tomorrow, however, preparations for the game with Brown this Saturday will be started in earnest. Mike Sherman was the only real casualty of the Yale game and his leg injury may keep him on the sidelines for about two weeks.

Early indications point to the biggest football crowd Hanover has ever entertained for the Brown game. Additional stands have been constructed on Memorial Field, making more seats available. It is estimated that the crowd will number about 17,000.

Pitt Has Light Drill.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 5 (AP).—The Pittsburgh squad took things easy today, Coach Jock Sutherland sending the eleven through a light signal drill. Tomorrow the team will start its preparations for the Washington and Jefferson game, which will be played Saturday.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

APROPOS of the Fordham-West Virginia game at the Yankee Stadium today, the following modest little letter from Morgantown, W. Va., may be of interest:

"Sir—The mighty, the unconquerable Mountaineer invades your land of powder puffs and pink teas on Nov. 6. Beware! The Bobcat, hungry for blood and bone, was forced to eat dirt at the hands of this same Mountaineer. The Panther, shrieking and clawing, was slaughtered ignominiously in his own lair of Steel and Smoke, in his den where the Mountaineer went to beard him. The Indians from Haskell, eager to scalp, were scalped themselves by this samo Mountaineer. The Generals, the astute, the brave, the experienced, the tried, the trusted Generals from Washington and Lee suffered humiliating rout at the hands of this powerful Mountaineer. The Maroon Leopard of Lafayette—the proud, the undefeated and unscored on Lafayette!—what happened to that zoological prodigy? The hungry Leopard was made to gnaw in anger and futility on his own whiskers while the Mountaineers knocked the spots off him.

"But once this season was the mighty Mountaineer untrue to himself; but once has he bowed his head in defeat—and that hour of anguish is, today, just a fading memory of the past, just a sombre reminder of the age-old saying that accidents will happen. But there will not be another such tragedy. Fordham, we are coming! This is fair wa.ning.

"A SON OF THE MOUNTAINEER."

This startling information was relayed to Jack Coffey, graduate manager of athletics at Fordham. It was the only fair thing to do. The Fordham lads are at least scholastic residents of this city, and they deserve some sort of protection against this Paul Bunyan of Football, the Mountaineer who slew the Panther, scalped the Haskell Indians and knocked the spots off the Lafayette Leopard.

Protective Measures.

It was suggested that Mr. Coffey, on behalf of the prospective Maroon victims, might take steps. District Attorney McGeehan of the Bronx is a Fordham alumnus and could be called upon to halt the massacre. Inspector John O'Brien, who commands the gendarmes north and east of the Harlem River could mass his men on the Fordham side of the line of scrimmage. For that matter, Fordham could call off the game or refuse to show up. It would be easy to send word that an uncle of one of the players was sick in Kansas City. Any pretext would do to save the lads from appalling slaughter.

"No! A thousand times, no!" said the Maroon graduate manager. "The boys will stick it out. That Mountaineer has been choking panthers and slaying leopards and such. Easy! But has he ever been hit by a pounding Pieculewicz? Has he ever tackled a fast-flying Wisniewski? Has he ever dilly-dallied with a dazzling Dallaire? So our boys are going to be slaughtered, are they? That's too bad. Well, if they have to die, here's a scheme I intend to propose. Let them go out there, meet this Mountaineer, start their forward passing attack, and then we'll all die—laughing."

Well, if that's the way they feel about it: one vote for Fordham.

Speaking of Coaches.

"Speaking of coaches," said Lou Little, coach of Georgetown's unbeaten team, "the fellows who deserve the real credit are men like Crum at George Washington University. Where you have a couple of hundred candidates and a reasonable war chest, anybody ought to be able to turn out a football team. But Crum—you remember him; 'Maud' Crum he was called when he played halfback for Princeton five or six years ago—he has hardly enough men to fill up the positions, and he hasn't even a field to practice on. He has to take his men down to the tidal flats along the Potomac and work them out there. It's a public playground. If he wants to scrimmage, he has to play one half of the line against the other. Yet he had a fine team last year. This year it isn't doing well. But I still think he deserves plenty of credit, and there are plenty more like him."

Among those who are like him in respect to turning out fair teams under a heavy handicap are Dr. Ray Van Ormand, former Cornell end, now coaching at Johns Hopkins, and Coach Parker of C. C. N. Y. It was Reynolds Benson, graduate manager of athletics at Columbia, who said just recently:

"I think that Parker has done wonders at City College. Everybody knows how strict the scholastic requirements are up there. The place is crowded, and the instructors are more than ready to throw lagging students out the window. There are no boarders at City College. The boys go there in the daytime and go home at night. Any coach will tell you that's a big handicap right there. But by steady and persistent building, Parker has turned out a real good team. More credit to him."

Oratory Between the Halves.

Quite a few coaches have the reputation of dealing out fiery orations between the halves when the game is close or their own teams are trailing. Of some it is said that by the flaming force of their words they can convert weary and beaten youngsters into riproaring terrors for the second half. How much of this is true, and how much fable?

It would be interesting to hear the steaming syllables pouring out in neighboring dressing rooms where rival gridiron spellbinders were overheatedly lashing their respective teams with the score 0-0 at the end of the first half. With some sort of machine for registering the force of the oratory and the amount of light, heat and electricity in each adjective and noun, the result of the game could be forecast immediately, and there would be no need of playing the second half.

It's an old story. It might even be considered a tradition in football. But this is a skeptical age. Between the halves of a recent football game a famous coach tore into the dressing room, apparently wild with rage at the "disgraceful" showing of his team. He was followed by a huge and equally infuriated chap, a former star player of that varsity team.

The coach glared at the players for a moment and then turned to the chap who came in with him.

"Bill, you pour it to 'em," he said. "I can't trust myself."

And as "Bill" squared off to deal out the fire and brimstone, one player who was patching a deep gash on his face said to another weary lad who was clutching his ankle:

"Here comes the old applesauce!"

HARVARD WARNED OF PENN'S ATTACK

Horween, Who Witnessed Fray at Chicago, Lectures on Prospective Offensive.

NEW PLAYS REHEARSED

Crimson Drills on Long Aerials for Saturday's Game — Huguley Continues at Fullback.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 5.—The first thing Harvard's head coach did this afternoon on his arrival from Chicago, where he witnessed the Penn-Chicago game Saturday, was to outline to his players the attack which they must expect to meet when the Pennsylvanians play in the Stadium on Saturday.

Last Fall Harvard was beaten by Penn's hidden ball stuff and Horween went West to see just what new wrinkles and what sort of passing have been developed from behind the line by Harvard's week-end opponent.

Following Horween's lecture Duke Dunne, who ran the team here while Horween was away, went over the mistakes in the Lehigh game. After that there was a blackboard talk, several new running and passing plays being given to the players, who then rushed out to the field.

Much of the afternoon was devoted to an offensive drill on passes. Many were short, but the backs and ends did more work on the longer variety of aerials.

Harvard has used practically nothing in the way of passing except so-called "flats" for the forwards and a few laterals. The drill between the first and second varsities found the regular team intact except that Huguley continued at fullback in place of Harper.

The varsity lined up with Pickard and O'Connell, ends; Barrett and Clark, tackles; Trainer and W. Ticknor, guards; Ben Ticknor, centre; Putnam, quarter, and French, Guarnaccia and Huguley, backs.

Gilligan showed up on the field, but will not do any work for a day or two. The other crippies are coming along nicely and there is none who will not be ready to play for Penn.

Several thousand tickets of the Penn allotment were returned to Cambridge today and for the first time in years there will be a public sale of tickets to a major varsity football match at Cambridge.

C.C.N.Y. SQUAD HAS DAY OFF

Scrimmaging Will Be Resumed Tomorrow for Norwich Game.

City College got its customary Monday off yesterday, and Coach Parker's lecture to his football men on their work against R. P. I. last Saturday was delayed until the practice this afternoon. There will be no scrimmaging today, for the men were badly bruised in the game with Rensselaer. Scrimmage is scheduled for tomorrow and Thursday, with a dummy scrimmage winding up the work on Friday for Saturday's contest against Norwich University.

Parker contemplates making several changes in his line-up for Saturday. Eddie Dubinsky's injured right shoulder having healed, he will be tried at fullback in tomorrow's scrimmage. Grossman may get a halfback berth.

PRINCETON REGULARS REST FROM PRACTICE

Varsity Will Begin Week's Drill Today for Washington and Lee Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 5.—All of the regular Princeton football varsity players were given a rest today as the scrub squad worked out on University Field under the direction of Coaches Poe and Foster.

With the Washington and Lee game scheduled for Saturday, a light signal drill is set for tomorrow to start the week's preparation, in which the entire squad will take part.

Trix Bennett reported for a short punting practice which lasted half an hour but with this exception none of the Tiger varsity drilled.

No casualties have been reported among the men who played against Ohio State on Saturday.

WESTGATE RETURNS TO PENN'S ELEVEN

KUEN REPLACES MONK

Fills Right Guard Post During Practice—Olexy May Supplant Schaaf at End Berth.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—Pennsylvania coaches welcomed the return of Leon Westgate, varsity centre, today and it was announced that he will be able to start against Harvard on Saturday.

Westy has been on the side lines since the Navy game with a broken finger. He made the trip to Chicago but did not get in uniform, Granville Carrel taking his place. Carrel showed up fairly well, being especially strong on defense. The return of Westgate bolsters the Penn line.

When the varsity ran through signals late this afternoon Gene Kuen was in Monk's place at right guard. Monk is definitely out of the Harvard game with torn muscles in his chest and may not be able to play until the Cornell contest. Kuen has been the utility tackle and guard all season and Monk's absence will not weaken the position any although he is about twenty pounds heavier than Kuen.

Although Penn returned with winning football on its trip to Chicago, the coaches were not altogether pleased with the work of the men, especially the ends, who seemed to slump. Joey Schaaf and Sydney Gervin started against the Maroons, but Schaaf failed to function on defense. There is a chance that Joe Olexy, the early season regular, may supplant Schaaf in the Harvard game, with Joey being held back in case Penn decides to call on its aerial attack. Schaaf is a marvelous receiver.

Captain Paul Scull, hero of the Chicago game; Johnny Shober, Paul Murphy and Carroll Rosenbloom, the first string back field members, were permitted to take things easy. There may be one or two light scrimmages before the team starts for Boston. John Smith, star left tackle, is back in shape again and eager to face the Crimson. The rest given the Salt Lake City veteran has pepped him considerably.

Staten Island Game Today.

The football teams of St. Peter's High and Augustinian Academy will play for the Catholic school championship of Staten Island at Thompson Stadium, Staten Island, at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

M. I. T. Forfeits Its Victory At Soccer; 2 Men Ineligible

BOSTON, Nov. 5 (AP).—The Massachusetts Institute of Technology Advisory Committee on Athletics today forfeited to Northeastern University its 1 to 0 soccer victory on Oct. 10 because two of the M. I. T. players were ineligible, unknown to the coach when the game was played. The forfeit gave Northeastern an undefeated record for the season, although the Huskies were tied 1 to 1 by Clark in the final game last Saturday. In accepting the forfeit, Northeastern athletic officials paid high tribute to Technology's sportsmanship for disclosing an unintentional violation of its athletic code.

ALL BIG TEN ELEVENS SUFFERED CASUALTIES

Timm of Illinois and Lubratovich of Wisconsin Out for Season.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 (AP).—Today was Casualty Day in most of the Big Ten football training camps. Every eleven was confronted with injuries, but Wisconsin, Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana and Ohio State were hardest hit.

At Illinois, Judd Timm, one of Coach Zuppke's ball carriers, was lost definitely for the season as the result of a bad shoulder injury received in the Michigan game. Doug Mills, another regular backfield ace, also was bruised badly, but was expected back in the line-up soon.

Wisconsin lost its star sophomore tackle, Milo Lubratovich, who fractured his leg on the first kick-off in the Alabama game. Hayes and Lusby, backfield men, also were bruised.

Captain George Gibson of Minnesota seemed out for Saturday's game with Indiana, suffering a torn shoulder ligament. Fullback Bronko Magurski, Duke Johnson, guard; Tim and Burdick, backs, and Tanner, an end, were hurt.

Indiana had two men on the casualty list—Paul Harpel, kicking halfback, who injured his leg, and Clare Randolph, who is in an Indianapolis hospital with an injured spine.

At Ohio State the injured list was high, but all the casualties—Young, guard; Barratt, centre, and Fouch and Corry, backs—probably will see action in Saturday's Big Ten headliner against Iowa.

Drill at the different camps was light today, most of the elevens warming up and listening to mistakes made last week. Michigan appeared to have decided on a string line-up and the Wolverines showed greater snap and confidence than ever before this season.

Activities of High School Elevens

COMMERCE.

Anticipating a strong aerial attack play by Morris in their game today, Coach Weber sent his Commerce charges through a long scrimmage against the reserves, who used many forward passes. It is probable that Captain Weidenfeld and B. Grennan will not be able to start due to injuries.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Coach Howard drilled the Theodore Roosevelt football aggregation in fundamentals yesterday at Fordham Field. Punting and getting under the kicks, riding out and tackling, comprised the practice session.

STUYVESANT.

A mid-term holiday yesterday gave Stuyvesant a complete day of rest before its encounter with De Witt Clinton at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. No practice was held, as drills over the latter part of last week were sufficiently rigorous to keep the eleven in condition.

ALL HALLOWS.

Coach Zev Graham of the All Hallows eleven spent yesterday afternoon in correcting faults which cropped up during the game with Iona Prep on Saturday. The team came out of the contest without any major injuries.

EVANDER CHILDS.

With the exception of Larry Hammer, whose ankle was broken two weeks ago, Evander Childs will be at full strength for its game with George Washington at Ohio Field today. Chick Kennedy, who left school recently, has returned and will be able to play today. The team practiced signals for two hours yesterday.

MORRIS.

Coach Dolan drove his Morris charges through a fast workout yesterday at Rice Stadium. The aerial attack was stressed with Cooper doing most of the throwing.

TEXTILE.

Textile did not even have a blackboard drill yesterday, the tie with Madison on Saturday meriting the Textile squad a day of rest. Coach Rorty was pleased with the showing of Jacobs who scored both of Textile's touchdowns.

NEW UTRECHT.

New Utrecht came through its game with Curtis on Saturday without a major injury. Basile, who was hurt two weeks ago, may be out for the rest of the season. The team had a light workout yesterday.

MANUAL TRAINING.

Coach Dan Hogan put his Manual Training squad through a brisk signal practice yesterday in preparation for the major encounter of the season with its traditional rival, Erasmus. Every passing play was reviewed in the two-hour drill. Except for Burwinkle and Captain Winnikka, the team is in fine condition.

ERASMUS HALL.

The Erasmus Hall team went through a strenuous practice yesterday afternoon at Ebbets Field in preparation for its annual clash with Manual Training this afternoon. Ralph Crosswell, who was injured prior to the opening game, probably will play today.

JAMES MONROE.

Coach Joe Weldman sent the James Monroe football team through a hard workout yesterday at Monroe Field. Speed was stressed in the drill.

NUTLEY.

A light workout was held by the Nutley eleven at Nutley yesterday. A scrimmage will be held today in preparation for the Asbury Park game which will be played on Saturday.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Pre-Election Advance in Stocks —Call Money 6%, Sterling Little Changed.

No great significance has ever been attached to the stock market on the day before a Presidential election. Usually, though not always, the movement of prices is hesitant; it was so even on the Monday before Election Day of 1924 and 1920. If, as has happened on the corresponding day of other Presidential years, there is something like commotion of prices, it has merely reflected the belief of the professional fraternity that an existing upward or downward movement will be resumed after the holiday, regardless of which candidate is chosen. Apparently, this was the idea which governed yesterday's stock market, in which the trend was uniformly upward, although the day's advances were distributed with great irregularity.

Something of a concerted effort was evidently made to stage spectacular advances in a few stocks in which professional "pools" were active. It was not in the important shares that this demonstration occurred; but the airplane stocks, which led the wild movement of last Spring, were bid up 10 and 12 points apiece, another highly erratic stock scored a rise of 24 points and there were other similar advances of 4 to 8 points. Shares like United States Steel and General Motors, however, moved within comparatively narrow limits and there were a few declines.

On the whole, the day's market would be best described by saying that it indicated the mood of the speculative community, rather than that it reflected political expectations. Since there has been no evidence whatever that the political campaign itself has dampened speculative ardor, the day's advances could not safely be classified as the breaking loose from restraint on the near approach of the electoral decision. But it remains to be determined how the purely psychological influences which have dominated the market of 1928 will come into play on the actual election news, and no doubt there was some idea in the Wall Street mind yesterday that the news of the vote would be construed into further incitement for speculative enthusiasm.

Call-money rates on the Stock Exchange were lower, touching 6 per cent. for the first time in nearly two weeks. Sterling was a trifle firmer, and no more gold engagements were announced. Nearly $4,000,000 Transvaal gold will arrive in London today, however, and with sterling at its present rate it is possible that New York may obtain a part of it. Yesterday's cabled announcement that the British currency amalgamation plan would go into effect in the last week of November attracted interest, chiefly as indicating that the Bank of England and the London market are still not greatly perturbed over the loss of gold. As a matter of fact the statute, as adopted by Parliament last Spring, made no stipulation as to the ratio of gold reserve which must be kept against the amalgamated note issues, but merely limited the amount of "fiduciary notes" which should not be covered wholly with gold. London money market continued irresponsive to the outward gold movement; if anything, it was easier yesterday.

There was little in the general news to divert Wall Street's attention from political discussions, but the cotton trade began to discuss a higher estimate on the yield in Thursday's Government report, and the price declined. It is now a full cent in the pound below the spot price of a fortnight ago.

INSURANCE CHANGE OPPOSED

Underwriters Reply to Department on Amendments to Law.

The New York State Life Underwriters' Association has framed a reply to the Insurance Department regarding the proposed amendments to Section 97 of the New York Insurance Law, in which it reiterates the conclusion reached on April 12 that the principles laid down by the Armstrong Committee have served the insuring public well and enabled the institution of life insurance to take its place in the economic development of the country.

"The companies, as a whole," says the reply, "are wisely and economically managed and the agency branch of the business is rendering its full share in the production of the necessary amount of new business to keep the institution alive and active. The conditions of co-operation and understanding which exist among the field forces, not only in this State, but throughout the country, are improving year by year and this has been brought about largely by an understanding of the law and the rules and regulations which have been laid down concerning them.

"There appears to us to be no necessity for a fundamental change in the law and we do not believe that the change which has been proposed will work out as anticipated. We see no reason for changing a law that has stood the test of time, has worked out satisfactorily for twenty-two years, for another law that would have to receive the judicial interpretations of the courts, the written construction of the Attorney General and the administrative attention of the Insurance Department. It would tend to cause endless confusion and would serve no good purpose when there is nothing, fundamentally, to be corrected."

Insurance Charter Filed.

The charter of the Italian American Fire and Marine Insurance Company has been approved by the Attorney General and filed with the State Insurance Department, thus completing the incorporation of the company. The capital stock is fixed at $1,000,000, divided into 100,000 shares of $10 par. It is understood that it will be issued at $32 a share, providing a paid-in surplus and reserve of $2,300,000. R. H. McKelvey & Co., Inc., underwriting managers, will establish an office of the company in Italy.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

All financial and commodity markets will be closed today for the national election. The banks also will be closed. Business will be entirely suspended in the financial centres, here and elsewhere in the country.

Many Stocks Advance.

With the oil shares setting a swift pace, the general list on the Stock Exchange advanced vigorously yesterday, many issues showing net gains of from 2 to 7 points. Wall Street sought to attach political significance to the lively upswing on the eve of election, the supporters of Mr. Hoover insisting that the market was discounting his victory, while others contended that the financial community was merely recording its confidence in the market and ignoring the political uncertainties. The stocks which rose sharply included Montgomery Ward, Kennecott Copper, Pan-American B, Radio, Woolworth, Santa Fe, Victor Talking Machine, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Barnsdall and Wright Aero. Market operations were stimulated by the decline in the call money rate to 6 per cent., with funds offered in the outside market at 5½.

Election Eve Calm.

The equanimity with which the financial world views today's election was demonstrated yesterday, not only in the display of strength in the stock market, but also by the steadiness of bonds and by the comment generally heard in investment houses. Several executives of large underwriting houses expressed the view that in the final analysis it would not make any real difference in the nation's financial structure who won the election. This calmness was apparent throughout most lines of financial activity and furnished a contrast with the nervousness that has appeared just before election in many previous campaign years.

Politics and the Market.

From Wall Street's viewpoint, this Presidential campaign will go down in history as one in which less money has been wagered than in any campaign of the last century. Ordinarily, the so-called "betting odds" as established by the wagers made in the financial district are accepted as a safe indication of the trend of political sentiment. The wagering has been so light on the present election, however, that the quoted odds are not by any means so generally taken as a forecast of what is to happen at the polls today. It has been estimated that the total bets made in the financial district with professional bookmakers have aggregated less than $1,000,000. This compares with something like ten times that total laid during the Wilson-Hughes campaign. Furthermore, the contest has had surprisingly small effect on the market, and it is much doubted that any of the fluctuations of the last few days could be traced directly to political influences.

A "Play in the Oils."

Even the most optimistic holders and sponsors of oil shares, who have been predicting for several weeks that a "big market" was in prospect, were surprised at the vigor displayed by this group yesterday. Barnsdall A was the special feature, opening up 4½ points on a transaction of 50,000 shares. Trading in all of the oils was enormous, the greatest interest centring in Barnsdall, Pan-American B, Standard of New Jersey, Standard of New York, Superior, Shell Union, Atlantic Refining, Tide Water Associated and Sinclair. Impetus for the rise of the petroleum group was furnished by predictions of an early increase in the price of Mid-continent crude. One report from Tulsa had it that the advance would be 25 cents a barrel.

A Surprise Offering.

Announcement that the Santa Fe would offer $30,000,000 of convertible debentures to shareholders came as a surprise generally in financial circles yesterday. W. B. Storey, President of the road, had previously said an offering of bonds or stock would be made and an offering of stock had been expected. Convertible issues have been used frequently in the past to provide funds and benefit stockholders, but the Santa Fe has not had recourse to this means since 1910. In view of the powerful credit position of the road, there was some speculation as to why this means of financing was chosen and to what use its proceeds would be put.

Railroad Earnings and Last Year's.

Returns for the 185 Class 1 railroads for September showing that net earnings for the year are practically sure to exceed those of 1927 caused some pleasure in railroad circles yesterday. Returns by the individual roads had, however, already indicated such a result. The complete figures show that net of all the roads for the nine months was $819,000,000, against $809,000,000 last year. Should earnings for the final quarter of 1928 only equal those of the same quarter last year, the total net for 1928 would be $1,127,000,000, against $1,085,000,000 last year. The indicated 1928 total, however, would be below the total of $1,231,000,000 earned in 1926.

25.8% OCTOBER GAIN FOR 8 STORE CHAINS

Sales Aggregate $44,360,943 Against $35,261,916 Year Ago —19.8% Increase in 10 Months.

October sales of eight large chain-store systems gained 25.8 per cent. over sales of the same chains in October of last year, while total sales for the first ten months of the year gained 19.8 per cent. over the corresponding period in 1927.

The reporting chain systems showed an aggregate of $44,360,943 for October, as compared with $35,261,916 for the same month a year ago, a gain of $9,099,027. For the ten months the chain organizations reported sales of $375,322,665, compared with $313,754,556 for the same period last year, or an increase of $62,068,109.

The accelerated rate of increase shown in October follows the trend established in September, when chain-store sales indicated a resumption of buying on an even more vigorous scale than is customary after the Summer dullness. There is some indication, however, that the increase also was aided to some extent by the extensive opening of new units and by the consolidation of small systems with the larger ones making monthly reports.

The largest system reporting yesterday was the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, with October sales of $16,159,194, as against $12,410,644 in October of last year, a gain of 46.3 per cent. For the ten months of this year sales were $164,292,001, as against $132,639,727 for the same period last year, a gain of 23.8 per cent.

The reports issued yesterday were as follows:

SIMMONS OUTLINES VIEWS.

Letter Gives Reasons for Urging Exchange Seat Increase.

E. H. H. Simmons, President of the New York Stock Exchange, has sent a letter to the members summarizing the reasons, as set forth by him in an address to them recently, why the number of seats should be increased from the present maximum of 1,100. The views of the members on the question have been invited and will be considered by a special committee studying plans for bringing about the desired increase.

Mr. Simmons also said in his letter that the Exchange had bought the building of Blair & Co., Inc., at 24 Broad Street and that negotiations for the purchase of the Postal Telegraph Building at 20 Broad Street were nearing completion.

BOND MARKET FIRM, OFFERINGS SMALL

OIL GROUP MOST ACTIVE

Securities Respond to Movements of Stocks—Mexican Issues Make Advances.

Quiet trading characterized the bond market yesterday, transactions on the Stock Exchange aggregating only $8,322,000, but prices were firm throughout. The increasing ease in money, while it did not result in any aggressive demand, confirmed holders in their favorable view of the market, and offerings were light. Mainly because of individual declines based on special causes, THE NEW YORK TIMES's average of forty domestic bonds showed a net loss of .01, but the foreign average was .01 higher.

Activity in oil shares on the stock market was reflected in rising prices for many of the oil issues in the bond market. Barnsdall Oil 6s, with warrants, were the leaders in this group, advancing more than 5 points as a result of the stock-purchase rights. Higher prices also were paid for Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s, Standard Oil of New York 4½s, Pan American 6s, Humble Oil 5s, Sinclair Oil 6½s, Sinclair Crude 5½s and several other oils. One of the features among the convertibles was a decline of 1½ points in Andes Copper 7s, but Anaconda Copper 7s closed with a net gain of 1⅝ points.

The principal railroad and public utility issues were firm but quiet.

Gains of from ¼ to ⅝ points were made throughout the list of Mexican bonds traded in here, the result of an announcement of progress in the plan for a new agreement on Mexico's external debt. Other features in the foreign group were an advance of ⅞ point in Deutsche Bank 6s, underactive trading, and a large turnover in Rio Grande do Sul 6s at a level fractionally above 94.

United States Government bonds were slightly lower.

German Utility to Get Loan Here.

Financing for the Ruhr Gas Corporation for construction of what it is said will be the largest underground pipe line system in the world for transportation of coke-oven gas will be undertaken shortly in this market. The corporation, which was organized in 1926, has acquired about 185 miles of pipe lines from the Rhine-Westphalia Electric Power Corporation as a nucleus for a 500-mile system to distribute gas from coal and steel producers to other industries and municipalities.

ANDES COPPER CALLS BONDS

Mining Company to Retire Convertible Issue on Jan. 1 at $110.

The directors of the Andes Copper Mining Company have called for redemption on Jan. 1, at $110, all of the company's convertible 7 per cent. debentures now outstanding. On Sept. 30 the amount in the hands of the public was $30,890,000.

At any time before they are redeemed the bonds may be converted into common stock at the rate of forty-four shares for each $1,000 bond. Based on the current market price of approximately $86.50 a share for the stock, each debenture has a value of $1,606, against the call price of $1,100. Holders converting their bonds by Nov. 14 will become stockholders of record of Nov. 15 and will receive the special cash dividend of 75 cents a share payable on Dec. 17, in lieu of accrued interest. Stock issued after Nov. 15 in exchange for debentures will receive interest to the date of conversion.

The common stock pays dividends at the annual rate of $2 cents, or $32 for forty-four shares, against a corresponding interest charge of $70 a year on each debenture bond. The saving to the company will be $37 for each bond, or approximately $1,450,000 a year. The Andes Copper Mining Company is controlled by the Anaconda Copper Mining Company.

Hungarians Borrowing Here.

Private offering of a new issue of $5,000,000 National Hungarian Industrial Mortgage Institute, Ltd., first mortgage 7 per cent. sinking fund bonds, due on Nov. 1, 1948, is being made by the Guaranty Company at 94¾ and interest, to yield more than 7¼ per cent. The Hungarian Government owns 80 per cent. of the capital stock of the bank, and the remaining 20 per cent. is owned by the National Union of Manufacturers of Budapest and its industrial member unions.

SANTA FE TO OFFER $30,204,000 BONDS

PURPOSE NOT MADE KNOWN

Use of Proceeds of Loan for Recently Acquired Line Believed Likely —Stock Up Nearly 4 Points.

W. B. Storey, President of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railway, caused some interest in railroad and financial circles yesterday by announcing that the railroad would offer $30,204,000 of convertible debenture bonds to stockholders, the first convertible issue made by the road since 1910. In recent years the issuance of convertible securities by railroads has not been extensive. In point of size at least, this is the first issue of its kind since the war. No intimation of the reason for the choice of this form of financing was given in Mr. Storey's announcement.

In the absence of official statements, it was surmised that proceeds of the issue might be used to improve the Santa Fé's recently acquired Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway. The acquired line, long in receivership, would hardly be expected to undertake financing in its own name at this time. It is said that eventually nearly 300 miles will be added to the Orient's 1,155 miles of line. The bonds to be offered are not secured by any specific property but are issued on the general credit of the Atchison.

Rights Valued at About $1.70.

Under the indenture authorized by the Santa Fé's directors, there will be issued $30,204,000 of 4½ per cent. convertible debenture gold bonds, dated Dec. 1, 1928, and maturing Dec. 1, 1948. Stockholders of record of Nov. 23 may subscribe at par and accrued interest from Dec. 1 for $100 of bonds for each eight shares of common stock held. The rights are valued at about $1.70 at current prices for the stock.

The bonds will be issued as coupon bonds in denominations of $1,000 and $500 and as registered bonds in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 and multiples thereof. They will be convertible, beginning Dec. 1, 1930, and before Dec. 1, 1933, at the option of holders, into common stock at the rate of six shares of stock for each $1,000 bond or three shares for each $500 bond. The bonds, while unsecured, will be the direct and unconditional obligation of the Santa Fé, and will be redeemable on any interest date after Dec. 1, 1938, at 102 and accrued interest.

As soon as practicable, warrants will be mailed to eligible stockholders specifying the amount of bonds to which they are entitled to subscribe. The date of these warrants and their time of mailing will depend on the time required by the Interstate Commerce Commission to approve the issue.

To Get Common Stock at $166.66.

The effect of the conversion privilege is to give holders of the bonds the right to purchase in the eight-year period to begin Dec. 1, 1930, common stock at $166.66⅔ a share to an aggregate cost not exceeding the amount of bonds held, to pay for the stock with the bonds and to receive 4½ per cent. until the conversion privilege is exercised. Santa Fé stock closed yesterday at 193⅞ for a net gain of nearly 4 points.

To the company the issue affords the advantage of obtaining funds at a reasonable rate of interest. Mr. Storey had previously disclosed that the company would make a stock or bond issue. The guess in Wall Street had been that, in view of the company's good credit position, an offering of stock would be made. The actual cost of the Orient acquisition has already been met by the proceeds of a $14,691,000 additional California-Arizona Lines bond issue.

$68,197,130 of Bonds Called For Redemption This Month

Corporation bonds and notes called to date for payment this month in advance of maturity aggregated $68,197,130. This is the smallest total since February, 1927, and compares with $109,-321,830 last month, and with $96,927,950 in November, 1927. Of this total, $64,108,530 represents bond issues called in their entirety, and $4,088,600 represents issues called in part, generally to satisfy sinking fund requirements.

The total of calls in the last three months is less than the sum for the corresponding months of last year, but bond redemptions in the first eight months of 1928 so far exceeded those of the same part of 1927 that in the eleven months of 1928 the record sum of $1,793,705,650 has been reached, against the previous mark of $1,-341,549,800, made last year, and the third highest figure, $766,192,-300, reached in the corresponding period of 1926.

1928 SHOWS DECREASE IN MUNICIPAL LOANS

Total for Ten Months Is Less Than in Preceding Year by $150,000,000.

State and municipal bond sales aggregating $1,096,086,653 for the ten months of the current year are $150,-000,000 behind last year's record and smaller in volume than in any corresponding period since 1923. New issues sold last month exceeded those brought out in July, August or September, but were less than those in October, 1927. To equal the final figure for the entire year 1927 new issues during the last two months of this year would have to aggregate approximately $380,000,000. Data now in hand indicate that actual sales during the remainder of the year will not exceed half that amount.

New State and municipal bond issues reported approved in October totaled $12,096,600, compared with $12,017,500 in the same month in 1927 and $11,760,770 in October, 1926. The total for last month embraces projected financing of eighty-seven municipalities in twenty-five States. During the same period bonding propositions involving $5,507,500 were defeated by voters of twenty-eight communities. Bond issues defeated in October, 1927, aggregated $17,061,000, and in October, 1926, the figure was $6,893,000.

	October.	10 mos. ending October 31.

SPAIN FAILS TO CHECK FALLING EXCHANGE

Creation of Monopolies and Trust Held to React Unfavorably Against Peseta.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Nov. 3.—The rise of the foreign exchange to the detriment of the peseta is engaging the attention of the Spanish Government and confirms the prediction made upon the creation of the Exchange Committee that it would be unable to avert the depreciation of the pesets.

The Government maintains its action was proper and it will continue to interfere with the exchange, selling quantities of dollars and pounds in an effort to decrease their value.

But the cause of the situation lies deeper and is chiefly due to the critical industrial conditions resulting from Government intervention in industry, agriculture, cattle raising, mining and other productive activities.

The combination and monopolies existing in many branches of business, such as oil, resin, cement, and custom house brokerages, are endeavoring to form a trust of all steamship lines and another of all railroad companies. These trusts increase prices generally and the value of the peseta drops automatically. The customs difficulties caused by the decrease of exports owing to the creation of the amalgamation of fruit and other companies have contributed to the fall of Spanish money.

It is certain that a surplus in the national finances will result, but nobody knows the details of the accounts or of the Treasury transactions.

The truth of the matter is that the exchange rate which was maintained during 1927 and the first part of 1928 with the dollar at 5.90 began to increase in proportion to the Government interference and has now reached the rate of 6.20.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

LONDON MONEY IS EASIER

Paris Weak, With Selling General—Bull Movements in Berlin Specialties.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The stock markets began the week quietly but the tendency was not unsatisfactory. The gilt-edged group was again inclined to harden with fractional rises in 5 per cent. War Loan and Victory Bonds. Oil shares were firmer until the afternoon, when there was a slight reaction. Rubber shares were quiet, with evidence of buying, but little stock was on offer.

While the shares of numerous recent flotations were again weak on the miscellaneous market there was support for a number of shares of the older established industrial companies. Imperial Chemicals advanced and there were rises in Mond Nickel, Imperial Tobacco, Canadian Imperial Tobacco, British American Tobacco, Eastern Telegraph, Marconi and Gramophone. The South African market was firmer. De Beers dropped 1-16 and Rand Mines rose 1-16.

Money in Lombard Street generally commanded 3½ per cent. Discount quotations were slightly easier. Tomorrow £790,000 of South African bar gold will be available in the bullion market and it is expected the bulk of the amount will be taken for the United States or Germany. The New York Exchange remained unaltered at 4.84 13-16.

French Rentes Decline.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—After the unexpected recovery of Friday, political agitation again affected the Bourse today, and the week opened with a weakening market. Selling developed in almost every department, and even international shares, which opened firm, became irregular before the closing hour. Some shares, however, showed a disposition to rally in the late afternoon.

The possibility of political difficulties arising with the opening of the Chamber next week, which has resulted from the events at the Radical Socialist Congress at Angers, was the chief cause of the weakness, which particularly affected rentes; all categories falling. Threes closed at 64.25; 1917 4s, 78.60; 1918 4s, 78.50; 1915 5s, 91.65; 1920 amortizable 5s, 108.10; 1928 5s, 90.50, and 6s, 103.80.

Berlin Trading Strong.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—The Boerse opened with a fluctuating tendency today, although the confidence noted on Saturday was at least partially maintained. During the first hour a number of stocks dropped a few points, but bull movements in specialties soon brought a general improvement.

The chief stimulant was the sensational rise in Siemens Halske stocks, which gained 20 points within one and a half hours and reached the highest level in their history. Artificial silks, glazed textiles and potash shares also jumped 20 to 25 points.

Trading at the closing hour was active at the highest prices. The money market was decidedly tighter. Call money was heavily demanded at 7 to 8.

MORE ARGENTINE GOLD EXPECTED HERE TODAY

At Least $1,000,000 on Southern Cross—$7,500,000 Due From London Later in Week.

The third shipment of gold to be received in New York from Argentina on the current movement will arrive here this afternoon on the Munson Line steamship Southern Cross, which sailed from Buenos Aires Oct. 18. The exact amount of the shipment was not disclosed here yesterday, but it is at least $1,000,-000.

Two gold shipments of $1,000,000 each have been received from Argentina recently, the latest having arrived last week on the steamship Vestris. It is understood that additional amounts are on the way, but further engagements from Buenos Aires are considered unlikely as a result of a rally in Argentine exchange. The peso was quoted here yesterday at 42.20 cents, against about 42.06 cents when most of the gold shipments were arranged. The gold due here today, a holiday, will be sent to the vaults of the Federal Reserve Bank tomorrow.

The steamship Homeric is due Thursday with $2,500,000 of gold from London, consigned to the banking firm of Speyer & Co., and on Friday the Aquitania is due to bring $5,000,000 of gold purchased in London last week by the American Exchange Irving Trust Company. No American purchases of gold in London were reported yesterday, although sterling exchange remained at a level at which such transactions are profitable.

QUARTER'S EXPORTS WERE $1,181,000,000

Show 3 Per Cent. Gain Over Last Year's Figures—Double the Total of 1913.

IMPORTS $197,000,000 LESS

So the "Favorable Balance" Is the Largest for This Period Since 1924.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Exports from the United States reached $1,181,000,000 in the third quarter of 1928, according to the statistical division of the Department of Commerce. Sales abroad were notable for an expansion in demands for finished manufactured goods, especially automobiles and machinery. Compared with the third quarter of 1913, the exports of finished articles have trebled in value.

The total exports of the third quarter were 3.4 per cent. more than in the same period of 1927 and more than double the value in the corresponding quarter of 1913. The third quarter of 1926 showed higher exports than the third quarter this year.

The price level for all exports combined was about the same as a year earlier; such leading commodities as cotton, gasoline, kerosene and copper showed increases in price, while the average values of iron and steel, automobiles, wheat and coal were reduced. The increase in the quantity of exports corresponded very closely to the increases in their value, it was stated.

The excess of merchandise exports over imports reached $197,000,000, in consequence of the growth in exports and reduction in import values; this was the largest favorable merchandise balance for any third quarter since 1924. Outward movements of gold, which amounted to $80,000,000, were not so heavy as during the first half of the year. Combined exports of merchandise, gold and silver exceeded imports by $262,000,000.

The expansion in the value of exports in the third quarter of 1928 was especially notable in finished manufactures, which increased 17 per cent. as compared with the third quarter of 1927 and totaled $570,000,000. As compared with the immediately preceding quarter, there was a small decline in value, but this reduction, which was due to seasonal fluctuation, was much less pronounced than in other recent years.

Foreign sales of American automobiles and parts showed an exceptionally large growth in the third quarter of 1928 as compared with a year earlier. Machinery exports totaled $125,600,000, which represented the highest value for any quarter of 1928 and exceeded the third quarter of 1927 by 9 per cent.

Exports of crude materials increased 9.6 per cent. and amounted to $232,600,000. The higher price of cotton and the larger shipments of tobacco, coal, petroleum and cotton were responsible for this gain.

Crude foodstuffs composed the only export group in which there was an important decline in value.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE RATES

Pre-Holiday Market Finds Business and Rate Changes Small—Sterling Gains Fraction.

Foreign exchanges were steady yesterday, the influence of today's holiday being evident in small business and narrow price movement.

Sterling started unchanged on the basis of early London cables, but later bank accumulation lifted the rate a fraction to $4.84 9-16 for checks. French and Italian remittances held firmly, but there was a dip in the mark right at the close to 23.80¾ cents, after it had run up a full point over Saturday in the early trading. Scandinavians, Spanish and Holland descriptions were only slightly changed.

Far Easterns were irregular in a quiet market. South Americans were unchanged.

BROOKLYN UNION GAS ARGUES RATE PLEA

Files Brief for New Schedule of 95-Cent Minimum and 9 Cents a 100 Feet.

CITES CASE IN ROCHESTER

Tells Public Service Commission Average Customer Will Benefit at Once From Change.

The brief of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company in its application for authority to change its rate has been filed with the Public Service Commission. The company seeks authority to substitute for its present rate of $1.15 for 1,000 cubic feet of gas a minimum charge of 95 cents for the first 200 feet or less and 9 cents for each additional 100 feet.

At hearings before the commission representatives of the city and of civic organizations charged that the new schedules were unfair and would be unjust to the small consumer. The company has about 700,000 customers, and its spokesmen alleged that only 35 per cent. of this number paid the cost of service which they received, while of the remaining 65 per cent. part produced no profit and the rest was a total loss to the company. It was asserted that the average increase each month to the small consumer would be from 2 to 72 cents, that the average increase in the bills of about one-third of the 65 per cent. of small users would be 24 cents a month, and of the other two-thirds between 26 and 72 cents.

In its brief the company asserts that the proof submitted shows that it costs more than 95 cents a month to serve each customer before a foot of gas is delivered to him, that the "convenience" customer does not bear his proportion of the cost and that the average customer will benefit by the new rate at once and that all will benefit ultimately.

Answering objectors who charged that the consumer was threatened with deprivation of his property, the company says: "On the contrary, only a continuation of the flat rate could possibly threaten the consumer with a deprivation of his property, and a further restriction upon his enjoyment of a property right, because of the present inequalities recognized in other rate cases."

This was a reference to a decision in 1920 in the case of the Rochester Gas and Electric Corporation, in which the Court of Appeals said that "the law imposes the duty to establish connections for the householder who demands them, but it does not impose the duty either to install or maintain them gratuitously."

The brief contradicts statements that $8 would cover the cost of a meter and says the cost is in excess of $12, with no allowance for those kept in reserve. The company is represented by the law firm of Cullen & Dykman.

$470,000 for Seat on Exchange.

Arrangements were made yesterday for the sale of a membership in the New York Stock Exchange for $470,000. This represents an increase of $10,000 over the previous transaction. The names of the buyer and seller were not announced.

BRITISH COAL MINE MERGER.

Union of Six of Largest Lancashire Collieries Is Completed.

LONDON, Nov. 5 (Canadian Press).—It is officially confirmed that the colliery combination, the Manchester Collieries, Ltd., is acquiring the Atalley and Tyldesley Collieries, Ltd., thus completing the merger of six of the largest collieries in Lancashire, with a combined capital of between £4,000,000 and £5,000,000 (about $20,000,000 and $25,000,000.)

According to official statistics, fourteen amalgamation schemes have been carried out under the terms of the Mining Industry act, 1926, covering nearly 200 pits employing 140,000 miners.

The most notable of these amalgamations, the South Wales anthracite amalgamation, completely unified the ownership and control of 75 per cent. of the production of anthracite.

Dominion Rubber Plans Stock Split.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—The common stock of Dominion Rubber Company, Ltd., formerly the Canadian Consolidated Rubber Company, will be asked to approve a split-up at a special meeting on Nov. 14. The company has an authorized capital of 30,000 shares of common stock, which will be converted into 120,000 shares of no-par value. The preferred stock will continue as at present. While the shares of this company are listed on the Montreal Stock Exchange, there is very little trading in them, as control is held by the United States Rubber Company, leaving little stock available for trading.

Libbey-Owens to Offer Stock.

Stockholders of the Libbey-Owens Sheet Glass Company have approved an increase in the authorized common stock from 400,000 shares of $25 par to 1,000,000 shares. The company soon will offer stockholders rights to subscribe for one new share at $115 for each five held. It is said the shares will be split two for one after the new stock is issued and that this action probably will be authorized at the annual meeting in December.

HIGHER RAIL INCOME FORECAST FOR YEAR

Report for Nine Months Shows Class I Roads Earned Total of $819,854,000.

$10,000,000 AHEAD OF 1927

Increased Net Shown Despite Drop in Gross—September Return Equals 5.04% on Property.

Net earnings in 1928 of the 185 Class I railroads controlling 240,262 miles of line will surpass those of 1927 and possibly be second only to the record earnings of 1926, it was indicated in a report issued by the Bureau of Railway Economics yesterday. The report shows that net earnings of the roads in the first nine months of 1928 totaled $819,854,000, against $809,958,000 in the same period last year.

If net earnings in the final quarter equal those in the last quarter of 1927, the total for 1928 will be $1,126,323,000, against $1,085,485,000 in 1927. At the rate they are running, they will probably surpass the total of $1,138,632,000 for 1925. The record net of $1,231,790,000 was set in 1926, when abnormal conditions resulting from foreign coal strikes prevailed.

The increase in the nine-month net was obtained despite a decrease in gross. September net also increased despite a decrease in gross.

September net income of the roads was $134,512,000 or at the annual rate of return of 5.04 per cent. on property investment, according to the bureau. This compared with $133,094,000, or 5.11 per cent., in September, 1927. Their gross decreased 1.7 per cent. and their expenses 2.8 per cent. in September. Taxes decreased five-tenths of 1 per cent. in comparison with September, 1927. For the nine months taxes decreased seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

Twelve railroads operated at a loss in September, seven in the Eastern, two in the Southern and three in the Western district.

Eastern railroads had a total net operating income of $415,030,745 in the first nine months of 1928, against $428,018,674 in the same period of last year. Gross decreased 4.7 per cent. to $2,223,784,764 and expenses decreased 5.6 per cent. to $1,642,333,545. Net operating income in September was $61,916,553, against $58,589,238 in September, 1927.

Southern railroads had a net operating income of $92,245,070 in the first nine months, against $104,718,409 in the same period last year. Gross decreased 6.9 per cent. to $573,327,473 and expenses decreased 6 per cent. to $439,106,352. September net income was $10,999,983, against $14,243,562 in September, 1927.

Western railroads had a net railway operating income of $312,579,066 in the first nine months, against $277,221,881 in the same period last year. Gross increased 1.7 per cent. to $1,727,057,730 and expenses decreased seven-tenths of 1 per cent. to $1,250,602,289. September net was $61,596,391, against $59,261,500.

OIL ISSUES ADVANCE ON THE CURB MARKET

Provide Only Feature of Day's Trading—Some Industrials and Utilities Active.

Oil shares held the spotlight in yesterday's trading on the New York Curb Exchange. The market was devoid of features except for the vigorous advance in the petroleum group, a number of which made new highs for the year. Humble Oil and Refining, Imperial Oil, International Petroleum, Prairie Pipe Line, Standard of Indiana, Standard of Kentucky, Continental Oil, Darby Petroleum and Vacuum Oil were prominent in the rise.

In other parts of the market sharp gains were made by Niles-Bement-Pond, St. Regis Paper, Stutz Motor and Zenith Radio.

The utility stocks gave a fairly good account of themselves, United Gas Improvement, Electric Investors, American Gas and American and Foreign Power warrants and Penn Ohio Edison showing special strength.

New Securities on the Curb.

Among the securities admitted to unlisted trading privileges on the New York Curb Market yesterday were: Rich Tool Company, 100,000 shares of no-par preferred and 175,000 shares of Class B no-par common stock; Miller & Hart, Inc., 55,000 shares of convertible preference stock of no-par value; Eaton Axle and Spring Company, rights to subscribe for no-par common shares; Charles Freshman Company, Inc., rights to subscribe for no-par shares.

Associated Gas Extends Rights.

The Associated Gas and Electric Company yesterday announced the extension to Nov. 17 of the period in which rights to subscribe to its 5½ per cent. convertible investment certificates may be exercised. The price is 99. Rights were sent to all stockholders.

POSTAL RECEIPTS INCREASE.

October Figures in 50 Cities Show a Total of $34,196,153.99.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Postal receipts in October for fifty selected cities totaled $34,196,153.99, as compared with $32,449,638.58 in October, 1927, an increase of 5.38 per cent., Postmaster New said today.

Akron made the largest percentage of gain, increasing 20.58 per cent. Providence was second with 15.14 per cent.; Minneapolis third with 14.69 per cent.; Columbus, Ohio, fourth with 13.78 per cent., and Los Angeles fifth with 12.81 per cent.

New York City's receipts were $7,229,505.45 last month, as compared with $6,512,978.10, an increase of 11 per cent. Chicago's receipts last month were $5,520,853.73, compared with $5,419,985.60, an increase of 1.86 per cent.

Acquires Interest in Argo Oil.

The Midwest Refining Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, has acquired an interest in the Argo Oil Company, according to reports received in Wall Street from Denver yesterday. Max W. Ball has resigned as President and director of Argo and will be succeeded by Arthur E. Johnson, who is head of the Mountain and Gulf Oil Company and Vice President of Argo. Ralph O. Deitler, Assistant to the President of Midwest Refining, has been elected to the Argo board.

TOBACCO PRODUCTS' PLANS.

Stockholders to Vote on Proposal to Change Par Value of Shares.

Stockholders of Tobacco Products Corporation will meet Dec. 19 to vote on a proposal to change the par value of the Class A and common stocks from $100 to $50, and to exchange five shares of new stock for each present share outstanding.

The corporation, of which George J. Whelan is President, has outstanding $110,742,200 in capital stock, of which approximately 50 per cent. is in common and 40 per cent. in 7 per cent. non-cumulative Class A shares. The bulk of its income is derived from United Cigar Stores dividends and an annual income of $2,500,000 in cash from the American Tobacco Company as rental from lease of brands formerly exploited by Tobacco Products.

Mr. Whelan announced last February that a proposal was under consideration to dissolve the corporation and distribute its assets. However, he added, the corporation's holdings of United Cigar common would be kept intact.

NERVOUSNESS EVIDENT IN UNLISTED MARKET

Irregularity in Various Groups Attributed to Approach of Election Day.

The over-the-counter market yesterday showed pre-election nervousness in a majority of the groups. Utilities, industrials and chain stores furnished most of the activity. Insurance shares were irregular, as were banks. Communication and sugar shares were sluggish.

Hercules Powder common was a feature of the industrial group, making a good gain. Others showing advances included Singer, Columbia Baking first preferred, Wheeling Steel common, Syracuse Washing Machine and Montgomery Ward new stock. Declines were scored against Chestnut-Smith preferred, Ruberoid, Zieley Processes, Newport and National Casket common.

Among the bank and trust company shares, Chelsea Exchange moved higher, as did Municipal, New York Title and Mortgage, Fidelity Trust and Bank of United States. On the down side were Prisco State, Manhattan Company, Farmers Loan and Trust and Globe Exchange.

In the chain store group, J. C. Penney common led the list. Gains also were registered by Metropolitan 5-10-Cent Stores preferred, I. Miller common, Neisner common, Schiff common, Isaac Silver preferred and Metropolitan Chain, new.

There was a much better tone to Phoenix Insurance, North River and Agriculture, new. Home declined, as did American Alliance, Providence-Washington, Fidelity and Deposit of Maryland, United States Casualty and National Liberty.

Cities Service Spreads in Canada.

The Sterling Gas Company, Ltd., of Port Colborne, Ontario, has been acquired by the Cities Service Company, and its operation soon will be taken over by the Cities Service system, which includes other subsidiaries in adjacent districts.

BUCCANEERS ARE INSOLVENT

Club's Governors Ask Court to Name Receiver and Dissolve It.

The Buccaneers' Club, of which Vincent Richards, tennis star, was President and one of the organizers, is now insolvent, with assets of about $5,000 and debts of more than $30,000. This was alleged yesterday in a petition filed in the Supreme Court by the majority of the Board of Governors asking for the dissolution of the organization and for the appointment of a receiver.

The chief asset is a five-masted brigantine, the Buccaneer, moored at Seventy-seventh Street and the North River, which has been libeled for $10,000 in a suit by an employe of the former owners of the vessel.

The petition said the club was formed to advance marine sports and athletics and to promote sailing and shipbuilding and interest in the revival of the American merchant marine, but these purposes are not being carried out and the club is losing money. The chief creditor is Viola Orr Merritt of 38 East Thirty-fifth Street, to whom $36,945 is due.

The membership list attached to the petition includes the names of John McE. Bowman, William H. Vanderbilt, Albert Boni, Benjamin Winter and A. P. Malgalve, director of the French Line.

Pig Iron Dearer at Buffalo.

An advance of 50 cents a ton in the price of No. 2 foundry pig iron was made yesterday by Buffalo furnace interests, the price being $18 a ton, base. Sales of iron through New York agents last week totaled about 15,000 tons. Inquiries for 750 tons by the New York Air Brake Company and 200 tons by American Locomotive Company are reported.

Bought by General Electric.

The General Electric Company has acquired the assets of the Mountain Electric Company of Denver, Col., and has organized a subsidiary, the General Electric Supply Corporation, to operate the company. Mountain Electric has been a distributer of products of General Electric.

LAUDS INSTALMENT SELLING

H. J. Francis Tells of Growth of General Contract Purchase Corporation.

H. J. Francis, Assistant Vice President of the General Contract Purchase Corporation, speaking of the recently published financial report of the General Electric Company, said yesterday an interesting phase of the tremendous growth of the General Electric Company was the part that instalment selling had played in the merchandising of many of the company's products.

"That this practice has not been haphazard," Mr. Francis said, "is evidenced by the growth of the General Contract Purchase Corporation, a company which General Electric organized in 1921 to promote the sale of household products manufactured by it and its subsidiaries. This company will do an instalment business of at least $30,000,000 for one department of General Electric alone in the next twelve months." The corporation and its subsidiaries were sold last Spring to the Industrial Acceptance Corporation.

LABOR PAPER STRIKE ENDS.

Cash Settlement Made With Ousted Employe of Il Nuovo Mondo.

The three days strike of linotype operators employed by Il Nuovo Mondo, Italian labor daily newspaper at 81 East Tenth Street, was settled yesterday. The men returned to work and the publisher made a cash settlement with Alessandro Nicale, the discharged employe, in lieu of a release of his seniority rights. Nicale will seek employment elsewhere.

Nicale was discharged by the newspaper, which is supported in main by unions opposed to the Fascist régime in Italy. It was alleged that he was sympathetic to the Fascist régime and that the violent arguments in which he had engaged disrupted the work of getting out the paper. The editors and reporters got out the paper without printers during the strike.

W. B. Brittain, general organizer of the International Typographical Union, and Oreste Nicale, head of the Italian Typographical Union, arranged the compromise which resulted in the resumption of work on the paper.

SELLING PRESSURE HITS COTTON PRICES

Futures Lose 14 to 20 Points on Day Despite Late Rally of $1 a Bale.

CROP ESTIMATE INCREASED

Forecast of Memphis Agency Has Effect on Market—Evening-Up Prepares for Holiday.

The cotton market came under the heaviest selling pressure in some time yesterday and all deliveries on the Cotton Exchange here broke below a basis of 19 cents, ending the day with a net loss of 14 to 20 points. A Memphis agency which has estimated the crop within a few thousand bales of the Government's report each month so far this season raised its figures more than 400,000 bales to 14,421,000, whereas the trade had been looking for only a slight increase in Thursday's report. Several private estimates were less than 14,000,000 bales, but combined speculative and Southern selling weakened prices until the decline was arrested when January and March deliveries approached 18¾ cents. Evening-up operations before the election was a feature of afternoon trading. Port receipts for two days fell 50,000 bales behind those of last week.

That several agencies had raised their crop estimates was known in Liverpool before the opening of the markets here, and, with over-Sunday hedging business from the South, both New York and New Orleans operators found a larger supply of contracts available. For the first time since the upward movement culminated last month around 19¾ cents, January and March sold below 19 cents soon after the opening. This had an unsettling influence on speculative sentiment in several quarters. After a quantity of scale orders in December at 19 cents had been filled without lessening liquidation, that month broke to 18.87 before the pressure was lifted. Reports of an easy basis in the South helped the selling movement. Later increased buying orders entered the market as a result of the break of a cent a pound from the recent high levels, and a recovery of $1 a bale developed.

Private estimates of the crop issued so far range from slightly less than 13,900,000 bales to around 14,400,000, the higher figures put out last month being reduced and most of the smaller figures raised moderately.

CONVICTED ON STOCK SALE.

Cecil L. Snyder, Detroit Promoter, to Be Examined Mentally.

DETROIT, Nov. 5 (AP).—Cecil L. Snyder, who was accused of having sold $500,000 worth of stock in his automobile abstract and title company, was convicted of violating the Michigan blue sky law by a Recorder's Court jury this afternoon.

The State charged that Snyder promised stockholders they would benefit from suits he proposed to file against several States for alleged infringements on what he said was his patented system for automobile abstracts and titles. It was charged that Snyder, in circularizing the country, represented that he would realize millions from the suits.

The specific charge was the sale of stock without the approval of the Michigan Securities Commission. After Snyder's conviction he was sent to jail for examination by the psychopathic clinic. He is to appear for sentence Nov. 12.

Snyder contended he had a constitutional privilege to sell stock in the company, of which he was President, basing his contention on the right of private contract. He said the concern was a private corporation, a trust estate of which he is a trustee.

GERMANS LIKE LIQUID COAL.

Inventor of Process Arrives for Pittsburgh Conference.

Dr. Friedrich Bergius of Heidelberg, Germany, inventor of a process for the liquifaction of coal, arrived yesterday on the Hamburg-American liner Hamburg to attend the second International Conference on Bituminous Coal at Pittsburgh, Nov. 19 to 24. Dr. Bergius said that in Germany the use of this coal by-product has proved to be economical, and a number of the dye industries are employing it. It has been in practical use in Germany for the past eighteen years, the inventor said.

Another passenger was Mrs. William M. Collier, wife of a former American Ambassador to Chile. She was accompanied by Mrs. G. H. Mason and her daughter, Miss Hilda Mason, and was met at Quarantine by her husband. The Hamburg had to slow down for nine hours on Sunday off Nantucket through fog.

WHEAT TRADE LIGHT, CLOSE IS HIGHER

Operators Even Up for the Election Holiday and Prices Are Erratic.

DOMESTIC SUPPLY LARGER

Favorable Weather and Small Country Arrivals Were Factors in the Corn Market.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 5.—Outside interest in wheat was light, and the market fluctuated erratically within a range of ½ cent, the finish being about the top, due to evening up for the election holiday. The close was at net gains of ⅞ to 1 cent. Considering the news the market did not act very strong, breaking slightly in the early trading despite a relatively strong Liverpool cable. The latter was off only ⅛ to ¼ pence.

Private cables told of heavy rains in Northern Argentine, where they are not wanted, and there were reports of black rust having made its appearance. The domestic visible supply statement, showing an increase of only 1,020,000 bushels for the week, led to some buying, although the total is now 134,244,000 bushels, against 133,224,000 bushels the previous week and 88,684,000 bushels last year.

Export demand was decidedly slow, with sales of 250,000 bushels in all positions. Winnipeg closed ¼ to ½ cent higher. Buenos Aires was unchanged to 1⅛ cents higher, the latter on November. Rosario closed ⅛ cent lower.

Primary arrivals today, 2,071,000 bushels; week ago, 3,140,000 bushels; last year, 2,209,000 bushels. Shipments, 1,396,000 bushels; last week, 930,000 bushels; last year, 1,713,000 bushels.

Favorable weather conditions prevailed over the corn belt, and while country offerings to arrive were small, scattered selling of futures caused a lower range, with the finish unchanged to ¼ cent lower, the latter on December. Spot basis was steady to 1 cent lower on new, although arrivals fell below expectations at 290 cars. The visible supply increased 746,000 bushels for the week, and is now 38,030,000 bushels, against 1,284,000 bushels a week ago and 2,080,000 bushels last year. Exports sales at the seaboard were estimated at 100,000 bushels.

Primary arrivals today, 1,404,000 bushels; week ago, 1,547,000 bushels; last year, 845,000 bushels. Shipments, 530,000 bushels; week ago, 291,000 bushels; last year, 479,000 bushels.

Oats closed unchanged to ⅛ cent higher with a decidedly limited trade. Rye gained ¼ to ⅓ cent.

29 COLUMBIA ALUMNI CANDIDATES IN STATE

In Addition, Both Smith and Hoover Hold Honorary Degrees From University.

Both Governor Smith and Herbert Hoover are among the members of the Columbia University alumni family, which includes also twenty-nine graduates who are candidates for office in New York State today. Mr. Hoover received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at the Commencement in 1920 in a group, all of whom were honored for their war work. Governor Smith became an honorary Doctor of Laws in 1926 as one who, in the language of President Butler, is "constantly speaking the voice of the people."

Of the other degree holders, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for Governor, was graduated from the Law School in 1907. Peter Schmuck, Democrat; Martin C. Ansorge, Republican, and S. John Block, Socialist, the three candidates for the Supreme Court in the First District, New York and Bronx counties, are also Columbia graduates.

Two candidates are alumnae of Barnard College. They are Emily Marx, Republican, running for the Assembly in the Ninth District, and Jessie Wallace Hughan, Socialist candidate for Congress in the Fifteenth District. The latter's Republican opponent, Gabriel L. Kaplan, is also a Columbia man. Other Columbia candidates and the offices they seek, as listed by The Alumni News of Columbia, follow:

Thomas P. Peters, Republican, candidate for Supreme Court; Thomas F. Noonan, Democrat, and William Gilligan, Republican, for City Court Judge; Daniel Noble, Democrat and Independent, Surrogate, Queens County; Harry W. Laidler, Socialist, candidate for the Senate; Samuel H. Friedman, Socialist, Senate; Isidor Schiff, Republican, Assembly; Philip W. Lowry, Republican, Assembly.

ACTS ON PARTNERS IN POOL.

Tuttle Informs Boston Prosecutor of Operations of Otto and Kane.

United States Attorney Tuttle wrote to the Federal attorney in Boston yesterday advising him of the conviction of William J. Pringle, Secretary and Treasurer of the Albany baseball pool, and calling his attention to the fact that Pringle's partners in the pool were James Otto and Walter J. Kane. All three pleaded guilty in Boston last November of operating the pool in Massachusetts. Pringle was fined $1,000 and the two others were fined the same amount and received suspended sentences of one year and a day in the Atlanta Penitentiary.

Kane and Otto, with others are under indictment here on the same charge for which Pringle was recently convicted and sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment. Proceedings for their removal from Albany to this jurisdiction are pending.

The attention of the Boston Federal attorney is directed to the matter to let him decide whether he desires to take any action looking to the arrest of Otto and Kane and sending them to prison to serve their suspended sentences. The Department of Justice, it was declared, might consider that the two violated their probation by operating the pool here.

M. C. Migel, President of the American Foundation for the Blind, and Miss Mary V. Hun, Chairman of the State Commission for the Blind, will greet the Major. Miss Helen Keller, Governor Smith and Mayor Walker have been invited as guests of honor. Abraham Haitowitsch, noted blind violinist, will play.

Talk of Albanian Policy Shift.

BELGRADE, Nov. 5 (AP).—Standje Mihailovitch, the newly appointed Yugoslav Minister to Albania, will leave soon for Tirana, thus fully restoring normal relations between the two countries. The Zagreb Novosti published an article from its Tirana correspondent stating that great changes may be expected in Albanian foreign policy in the direction of replacing Italian influence by Franco-British influence. While this report is considered premature, political circles feel that it indicates a possible new tendency in Albanian foreign policy.

Byrd Ships Report Positions.

In a wireless message received last night by THE NEW YORK TIMES, the bark City of New York of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition reported her position at noon, Nov. 5, as latitude 18.11 south, longitude 153.13 west, 211 miles west of Tahiti. The steamer Eleanor Bolling reported her position at the same time as latitude 24.53 south, longitude 154.56 west, 531 miles southwest of Tahiti, with a day's run of 213 miles. Both ships are bound for New Zealand.

Wider Sports Link-Up Used.

Retail observers have followed with no small degree of interest the well-planned merchandising tie-up which local stores have sought in conjunction with the football games this season. This tie-up is credited with being the most effective ever achieved in adding to the fashion prestige of both department stores and specialty shops and in stimulating the sale of sports wear. New avenues of approach have been tried, some stores having gone to the extent of using valuable space to list the big games and their respective dates. The development is held a prime example of linking up merchandising with current happenings.

May Price Underwear Late.

From present indications 1929 lines of heavyweight ribbed underwear for men and boys will be priced much later than usual. Nothing definite has yet been done in selecting an opening date, but it is highly possible that the pace setters in the Southern branch of the industry will not price their new lines until after the turn of the year. One report had it yesterday that Jan. 10 had been selected tentatively as the opening date, but it was not confirmed. Lines for the current heavyweight season were opened on Dec. 1 last by these factors. If present signs do not fail, the 1929 lines will be the first ever to be priced in the same year the goods are offered for delivery.

Radio Jobbers Are Busy.

The pre-election demand for radio merchandise has been notably active and jobbers have been kept busy filling calls for quick delivery. Even with this heavy demand of the past five weeks the trade looks for new records to be set up for turnover between now and Dec. 31. While there is a good call for parts, the main attention by far is centred on sets, particularly A. C. console and table models and dynamic speakers. The market for the latter, according to trade opinion, has scarcely been scratched and affords excellent sales possibilities next year.

***

Form-Fitting Suits Wanted.

One of the noticeable things about the orders being placed for men's Spring clothing is the trend to semi-form or form fitting models, manufacturers' representatives here say. Favor for these types has cut into the business placed in the loose-fitting styles. The latter, however, continue to get a good play. The two-button coat strongly leads, with unfinished worsteds stressed in the fabrics. In colors, grays and tans are accorded preference, with somewhat of a swing to the darker shades.

Chinaware Trade Has Been Good.

Dealers in chinaware report satisfaction with the progress of business since the Spring, orders booked being substantially ahead of last year at this time. New and repeated items for next Spring and Fall will be shown next month, and unchanged price basis being figured on. Ivory two-tone effects worked out in ground or border and combined with colored floral designs, are expected to lead again. The tendency continues for stress on open stock patterns, reflecting the present buying methods of consumers. Smaller dinner sets are the rule.

Boxed Furnishings Featured.

Boxed accessories are being played up strongly for the holiday trade in men's wear. More manufacturers have adopted this method of packaging this season than ever before and there are more items included. This drive is largely aimed at women shoppers, who are credited with doing a very large proportion of the purchasing of men's accessories. Outstanding items in the merchandise comprise sets of belts and monogram buckles, suspenders and garters, garters and arm bands, &c. Despite the fancy boxing, some of the items carry low retail prices, affording a further indication of the attempt to secure volume.

Hosiery Mall Orders Good.

The proximity of election apparently had little effect on the jobbing demand for hosiery in this market. While out-of-town buyers were missing here yesterday, business received in the mails was said to total surprisingly large. Individually the orders received were not large, but their aggregate volume was. The principal feature was the way the business was spread over the lower-end and medium-grade lines. Substantial orders were received for goods ranging all the way from cotton hose to retail at 25 and 50 cents a pair to full-fashioned silks to sell over the counter at $2.

Paint Trade in Seasonal Lull.

The seasonal lull in paints and varnishes that is common in many parts of the country at this time of the year has become noticeably apparent in the business received of late by manufacturers. Not only is the falling off apparent in sale of paints and varnishes for household use but less business is also being done in special paints and finishes used for automobiles and other vehicles. One of the features of the household business is the way sales are holding up in the metropolitan district. While not so active as they were, they were said yesterday to continue ahead of last year. More than the usual volume of apartment decorating is held responsible.

***

Furnace Season Brings Orders.

Orders for fire clay, asbestos coverings, roof cement, patching plaster, crack filler, &c., are being placed in a larger way at present than has been the case at this time of the year since the boom period following the war. The fire clay and asbestos covering business is attributed to the need of dealer replenishment following the consumer demand resulting from the resumption of heating, while the activity in patching plaster is attributed to the amount of home and apartment decoration that has been carried on this Fall, especially in the East.

Second Hands Sell Gray Goods.

Second hands entered the local gray goods market yesterday as sellers in a larger way than for some time, particularly in printcloths. First hands did some business in spot 38½-inch 64-60s and 60-48s at 7¾ and 6¾ cents respectively, and second hands shaded those figures an eighth. For delivery in late December and early January first hands sold 39-inch 68-72s at 8⅜ cents. Sheeting sales of the day included 40-inch 2.85s at 11¼ cents, 40-inch 5-yards at 7 cents, and 40-inch 4.25s at 7⅝ cents. Buyers of 37-inch 48-square, four-yard sheetings paid 9½ cents for them. Business in sateens was put through on the basis of 10½ cents for 37½-inch 4.70s and 11½ cents for 37½-inch 4.87s. In the fine-yarn cloths a fair business was done in lawns, broadcloths, fancy rayons, &c., at recent prices.

HOUNDS TRAIL CONVICTS.

Seven of 31 Recaptured in Texas Prison Break—Inquiry Begins.

FREEPORT, Texas, Nov. 5 (AP).—While more than a score of farm officials with bloodhounds searched the wilds of the Brazoria County bottoms for twenty-four of the thirty-one men who sawed their way to freedom from the State prison farm near here last night, State prison authorities began an investigation designed to put a stop to such wholesale breaks as have occurred at frequent intervals in recent years.

Seven of the escaped convicts were captured last night. Of those who remained at liberty, three were serving terms of seventeen years or longer.

While their companions allayed suspicion by twanging guitars and singing, a few of the men within the walls cut a hole in a window sill and pried up an iron bar. The prisoners then squeezed themselves through the opening while their companions kept up the music until the last man was free.

The getaway occurred only half an hour after W. H. Mead of Houston, General Manager of the State Prison System, had concluded an inspection of the county farm.

"It wouldn't have surprised me at that time to hear that all the convicts had left here on short notice," Mead remarked after observing that the farm lacked adequate safety in its housing of convicts. He intimated that the State Legislature would be asked to act.

OPERATE ON PIRACY VICTIM.

Doctors at Hankow Remove Bullet From American's Thigh.

HANKOW, China, Nov. 5.—Henry Henvie, an American, former manager of a Hankow firm, who was shot in the thigh when Chinese pirates looted the steamer Shasi of the China Navigation Company, was operated on today and the bullet removed. His condition was pronounced satisfactory.

The Defense Commissioner has ordered the Hankow military authorities to institute a search of the waterways and creeks in the neighborhood of Hankow for the pirate launch carrying the loot taken from the steamer. It is thought that the pirates were former soldiers turned bandits, with which the locality is infested.

This is considered the first serious piracy in the lower Yangtse and fear is expressed in shipping circles for the future safety of river boats unless adequate action is taken immediately.

The Shasi proceeded toward Shanghai with an armed guard after the attack.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Mixed Trend in Cash Markets—Grains, Butter, Lard Up—Cotton Lower.

Cash markets were irregular yesterday. In the grains, wheat and rye improved while corn declined. Butter was a feature, moving up 1 cent. Lard also advanced. Tin and cotton were lower. Other articles were unchanged.

Yesterday's closing wholesale cash prices for commodities, in the New York market unless otherwise noted, were:

SUGAR, COFFEE, COCOA.

Sugar.

Business in raw sugar futures on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange was very light yesterday. Initial quotations were unchanged. Opening sales were heavy, due to covering by Cuban interests with contracts supplied by local longs and a local operator. Producing interests sold May. European interests sold July. The market closed unchanged to 1 point higher.

There was little in the news to cause the market to move either way. In the spot market Rio 7s were quoted at 18 cents, while Santos 4s ranged from 23 to 23¼ cents. The A contracts closed from 7 points lower to 1 point higher, while the D contracts were unchanged to 5 points higher.

Cocoa.

With foreign cables lower, cocoa futures on the local Cocoa Exchange were higher yesterday. The gain was due to an increase in warehouse stocks. The main support came from the shorts. There was renewed selling by foreign interests. The market closed from 1 to 6 points lower, with a turnover of 133 lots.

RUBBER QUIET AND STEADY.

Business Slower on Approach of Holiday—London Market Turns Dull

The approach of the holiday limited business and fluctuations in crude rubber futures yesterday, and at the close prices were 10 points down to as much higher. Sales amounted to 222 contracts.

The early steadiness of the London cables and an unexpected decrease in the stock position abroad attracted some buying, which lifted prices 10 to 20 points at midday. Later offerings were fairly well absorbed by speculative and dealer demand in the more distance deliveries. There were considerable offers to buy December and sell March as a switch even. January moved up 10 points to 18.60 cents, while August also gained 10 points 19.10 cents. July changed hands at 19.10 cents, unchanged, but closed off 10 points on final bids. Seven transfer notices were issued.

London showed early strength but turned dull and dropped gains in the distant positions, while spot and November finished 1-16 penny higher at 8⅞ pence. December was unchanged at 8⅞ pence, January-March unchanged at 9 pence, April-June unchanged at 9¼ pence, July-September unchanged at 9⅜ pence. Singapore was steady, with prices unchanged to 1-16 penny lower. London stocks showed a decrease of 1,321 tons.

Butter.

Receipts Nov. 2, 4,371 packages. Market lightly supplied with choice and fancy grades of fresh creamery butter, prices advanced another ½c with quite a firm feeling. Nearly all the arrivals were spoken for by regular trade and it was difficult for outside buyers to secure any consideration. The firmness was most marked on top qualities but the intermediate and lower qualities shared somewhat in the firmness.

THE CUSTOMS COURT.

Hear Protest Over Pocket Lighters Need Mark on Tapestry Cushions.

Whether cigarette lighters are articles worn on apparel or carried about the person, within the meaning of Paragraph 1428, or are smokers' articles and dutiable under Paragraph 1454, is a question which was placed before the United States Customs Court yesterday for decision. The Glensder Textile Company of New York pressed a protest before the First Division of the court, complaining that an importation of lighters had been assessed at 80 per cent. duty under Paragraph 1428 and are properly dutiable at 60 per cent. as smokers' articles.

In a decision made public yesterday the Third Division of the Customs Court rules that tapestry cushions woven in the piece are capable of being marked with the country of origin without injury and therefore subject to the 10 per cent. penalty provided under Section 304 of the Tariff act for articles not legally marked. Zarou Brothers of New York, the importers, protested against the Collector's ruling that the cloth should have been marked.

The Ruberoid Company and others are sustained by Justice Sullivan, sitting in reappraisement, on their protest against increased valuations on imported asbestos cement shingles. The shingles, brought here from Holland, had been appraised at the United States value, while the plaintiffs claimed the invoice prices should hold. The court finds the company justified in its protest.

SUED ON FLORIDA DEAL.

Paris E. Singer Named in $1,250,000 Action at Palm Beach.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Nov. .—Paris E. Singer of New York and London, who entered upon a real estate deal near Palm Beach during the boom, was named in a suit for $1,250,000 filed here today by Edward E. Jenkins of Pittsburgh. The Palm Beach Ocean Realty Company, of which Paris Singer was President and George Singer Secretary, is defendant in the suit.

Mr. Jenkins, it is asserted in the action, sold a tract of land to the company for $1,560,000, received $290,000 down, $100,000 within two months and has received no more. Balance on the tract was to have been paid in one, two and three years with interest at 6 per cent.

Part of the land in question was washed away in the recent hurricane. It lies north of the Port of Palm Beach and was called Singer's Island. The Blue Heron Hotel, part of the development, was to have cost about $3,000,000, but construction on it was stopped after the walls were up and the interior only partly completely.

REVIEW OF THE DAY IN REALTY MARKET

BLOCK FRONT IS LEASED

Several Deals in the Yorkville Area —Site Purchased for Fifteen-Story Apartment House.

The feature of the few transactions reported in the real estate market yesterday was provided by two deals in Eighth Avenue in the Fifties, where there has been an unusual amount of trading during the past few weeks.

The largest transaction involved the block front on the west side of Eighth Avenue between Fifty-first and Fifty-second Streets. It was reported that this property, owned for a number of years by the Walton Estate, was leased to a leading operator for a term of sixty-three years at an annual rental of about $150,000.

Several other deals in the immediate vicinity are pending, and there was a report that one of the largest transactions of the year in this section had been closed, but the location and buyers would not be announced until after election day.

Herdart Buys Building.

The second transaction involved the property at 822 Eighth Avenue, a four-story building on a plot 24.9 by 70 feet, located 25 feet north of Fiftieth Street and directly south of the building recently erected by the Knights of Columbus.

It was sold by Ada H. Arnold to Frank Herdart, Vice President of the Horn & Hardart Company, who acquired the property as a personal investment, and upon the expiration of the existing lease extensive alterations and improvements are contemplated. Tankoos, Smith & Co. and Dwight, Voorhis & Parry, associated with E. H. Ludlow & Co., negotiated the transaction.

Recently the old Tivoli Theatre property on the northwest corner of Eighth Avenue and Fiftieth Street, a plot 125 by 137 feet, was sold by Harris & Maurice Mandelbaum, who are the most active operators in the section, to the present tenant.

Further north, on the west side, Daniel E. Freedman, operator, sold to Mary J. Lyons the two six-story elevator apartment houses at the northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Ninety-fifth Street, known as the Woodbury and Elmscourt.

The property has frontage of 100 feet on the avenue and 100 feet on the street. The deal was negotiated by Slawson & Hobbs.

Trading on the East Side.

The old Yorkville section continues to figure prominently in Manhattan's realty activity, with a well sustained trend in the Carl Schurz locality. Reports are current of two or three large pending deals, which will mean construction next year of high-class apartment houses.

A site for a fifteen-story house at 350-358 East Seventy-ninth Street, between First and York Avenues, has been purchased by a building syndicate headed by Henry Mark of the Prudence Company from William S. Baker and William J. Henderson. The plot has a frontage of 85 by 102.2 feet. Plans for the new house are being prepared by Rouse & Goldstone. Alfred Roelker represented the buyer as broker.

In the same block the four-story house at 410 East Seventy-ninth Street, 25 by 102.2 feet, has been sold by Douglas L. Elliman & Co. as brokers, for Dr. Leo L. Michel to James Brown.

The five-story tenement at 1,530 York Avenue, southeast corner of Eighty-first Street, plot 25 by 81 feet, has been sold through Howard LeC. Roome, as broker, for the East Side Estates to Olga J. Boorman, who was represented in the sale by Pauline Simon as broker.

In the lower east side area the four-story business building at 140 East Fourteenth Street, 20 by 110 feet, opposite the old Tammany Hall, was purchased by the Rosbro Shoe Company from the Sarnoff-Irving Hat Stores Company through Tankoos, Smith & Co. as brokers. The latter immediately resold the parcel to the Schulte Real Estate Company. It has been leased through the same brokers for twenty-one years to the Miles Shoe Company.

Frank Schwartz sold for Mrs. Sophia Fuchs to Mrs. Amalia Kraus 508 East Eighty-first Street, between York and East End Avenues, a five-story tenement on a lot 25 by 100 feet.

The Irvbroff Construction Corporation, represented by Hortsmann & Kozinn, attorneys, purchased from the Italian Savings Bank 85-87 Cross-by Street, two six-story tenements and stores and two six-story rear tenements, on plot 50 by 100 feet.

DECLINE IN REALTY PREDICTED BY BABSON

Weekly Letter Says Supply of New Buildings Is Ahead of Demand.

Further gradual weakening in the real estate situation is looked for, according to Babson's weekly letter on the real estate outlook issued yesterday. The bulletin says in part:

"The trouble is that new building supply has been running a few jumps ahead of demand. This has come about through low money rates, which stimulated activity, especially in the residential group.

"The trend of activity, as reported by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, has been generally downward for the past three years, the September figure being approximately 8 per cent. below the same month of 1927. Moreover, rents for the country as a whole show a drop of 7 per cent. from the same period of 1927, and are 16 per cent. below December, 1924. Since the last of 1924 the trend has been steadily downward.

"Those interested in real estate should examine their mortgages from the standpoint of making their positions more secure. This is a matter of self-protection in view of present trends. Had local real estate boards been consulted, many sections might have avoided an overbuilt situation.

"The result is that owners are being pinched by 'to-let' space. Where business is healthy, building is usually good.

"Where houses are renting slowly, stimulation may come from remodeling. Apartments and homes must include all modern conveniences to attract occupants.

"The trend toward less favorable real estate conditions means that you must know your community and its particular needs. The readjustment in real estate values is not yet over in many sections."

HELD FOR LIBELING FULLER.

Leader of Sacco-Vanzetti Parade in Boston Is Arraigned.

BOSTON, Nov. 5 (AP).—Harry J. Canter of Boston, candidate for Secretary of State on the Workers' Party ticket, was held in $1,000 bail in Municipal Court today on a charge of criminal libel as a result of a parade of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers in front of the State House on Saturday.

Canter pleaded not guilty. Police said he led the parade and carried a placard libelling Governor Fuller.

Twenty-three others, who were arrested for obstructing and loitering, were fined $20 each, and all appealed their sentences. They were arrested when police broke up the parade in which several persons carried placards. The one which Canter is alleged to have carried contained the following: "Fuller—Murderer of Sacco and Vanzetti."

At the start of the hearing today counsel for Canter and the others endeavored to have a plea of nolo accepted, but police refused to consider it on the grounds that they wanted to break up parades of that sort and wanted to use the present case as an example. The case will be heard Friday.

The disturbance that was central over Alberta Sunday night is advancing rapidly eastward over the northern Lake region, and pressure remains relatively low over Alaska southeastward to Northern Manitoba. The northeastern disturbance has moved eastward with a further increase in intensity. Another disturbance is developing over the plateau region, and pressure remains relatively lower over Mexico and Southern Texas. Relatively high pressure prevails from the Ohio and lower Mississippi Valleys eastward to Bermuda. The temperature will be higher Tuesday throughout the Washington forecast district except in the Florida Peninsula, and it will be slightly lower on Wednesday in the Ohio Valley and the lower Mississippi and the interior of the Middle Atlantic States.

SEVEN YARDS OFFER TO BUILD FOUR SHIPS

ALL EXCEED EARLY FIGURE

Estimates on the Furnishings Rise From $67,000 to $97,643 for Each Combination Vessel.

Bids that were submitted by seven shipbuilding companies for the contract to build four combination passenger and cargo vessels for the American Export Line were opened yesterday at the office of the line, 25 Broadway. They ranged from $7,963,000, or $1,990,750 per ship, submitted by the Spear Engineering Company of Norfolk, Va., to $13,704,020, or $3,426,005 per ship, by the Maryland Drydock Company of Baltimore.

Although no statement was made by Henry Herberman, president of the line, it was pointed out by shipping men that the figures were at least $2,000,000 higher than was expected, this being based on the statement when the plans of the line were first announced that it was proposed to borrow about $6,500,000 or seventy-five per cent. of the total cost under the terms of the Merchant Marine act of 1928. Apparently it was expected that the cost of building the ships would be about $6,000,000.

Two Fail to File Bids.

Two of the companies to which specifications were submitted, the Bath Iron Works of Bath, Me., and the New London Ship and Engineering Company of New London, Conn., failed to file bids. The Sun Shipbuilding Company of Chester, Pa., submitted as its estimate $8,584,000 for the four vessels described by specifications, completing the first ship in fifteen months and the others at intervals of four months, and submitted the alternative proposal to build Diesel twin-screw passenger and cargo vessels for $9,440,000. The other bidders confined their figures to ships as described in the specifications, though varying in the date of delivery.

When specifications were mailed, bids were also asked on furnishings for the ships. The Spear Company, whose bid for the building of the ships was lowest, bid $348,280 for furnishings for the four ships. The Maryland Drydock Company, which was the highest bidder on the ships, was also highest bidder on furnishings, its figure being $97,643 per ship. The bid of the Sun Shipbuilding Company was $67,000 per ship, the lowest figure submitted.

Bids of the other companies for the construction of the individual ships and providing their furnishings are as follows:

Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company of Bethlehem, Pa., $2,158,000 and $39,500;

New York Shipbuilding Company of Camden, N. J., $2,250,000 and $87,500;

Federal Shipbuilding Company of Kearny, N. J., $2,250,000 and $75,000;

Newport News Ship and Dry Dock Company of Newport News, Va., $2,537,000 and $96,000.

In the bids of the Bethlehem, Federal, Maryland and Spear companies it was specified that the ships would be delivered every six months except the first ship, which would be delivered in eighteen months. The New York Shipbuilding Company offered to deliver the first in eighteen months and the others every four months. The Newport News Ship and Dry Dock Company offered to deliver the first in eighteen months and the others every four months.

Will Carry 100 Passengers

The ships will be 480 feet long, 61 feet 6 inches beam and 40 feet 3 inches deep. They will be shelter deck type, with accommodations for about 100 passengers, and will be about 8,200 gross tons and 9,500 tons dead weight. The propulsion machinery will consist of a set of triple expansion turbines consisting of high, intermediate and low pressure, with single reduction gearing operating a single propeller. Steam pressure of 325 pounds will be generated by four oil-burning water-tube boilers with 150 degrees of superheat.

The bids were taken under consideration by the directors of the American Export Line and will be studied for several weeks before a decision as to the granting of a contract is announced. Shipping men were deeply interested in the bid of the Spear Engineering Company, which was lowest, as this company has not attempted a contract of this size before.

CUNARD LINE TO MOVE OFFICES TO LONDON

Headquarters to Be Taken From Liverpool to Building to Be Erected in Heart of Capital.

After consideration for nearly a year the Cunard Line directors have decided to remove the headquarters of the company from the big building on the pierhead at Liverpool to a site in the centre of London which will cost several million dollars. A plot of land measuring 24,000 square feet has been purchased which fronts on Leadenhall Street near Aldgate, and runs back toward Fenchurch Street in the centre of the shipping district. It is in one of the oldest sections of London, called the "Crutched Friars," after an order of mendicant friars who settled there in 1249.

During the past Summer the quaint overhanging houses, under which there were tunnels in some places for persons and vehicles to pass from one street to another, were all pulled down. The building is to be an eight-story one, as the municipal authorities will not allow skyscrapers to be constructed. It is to be completed for occupation in 1930.

The removal of the Cunard headquarters from Liverpool will leave only one big Atlantic steamship line with headquarters there, the White Star Line, which may also move to London, shipping men said yesterday, as Lord Kylsant, the Chairman, has his chief offices there.

Baltic Here With New Commander.

The White Star liner Baltic arrived yesterday from Liverpool via Queenstown with a new commander, G. H. Warner, who has been transferred from the Calgaric in the Canadian trade. He was formerly in command of the Royal Mail liner Orduna operating from New York to Cherbourg and Southampton. He said the ship encountered rough weather for three days and was delayed two hours by fog.

ONE DEAD, ONE DYING AFTER ROWBOAT BLAST

Three Youths and a Girl in a Mysterious Accident on Lake Champlain.

Special to The New York Times.

GLEN FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Albert Peterson, 21, of Dresden, N. Y., is dead, and Jack Faccio, 16, of Tompkins Cove, is dying in the Moses Ludington Hospital at Ticonderoga as a result of a mysterious explosion of dynamite in a rowboat in which they and two other young persons were riding this forenoon on Lake Champlain, half a mile off Dresden. Peterson's body was found in the lake near the spot where the explosion occurred after hundreds of persons had dragged the lake for more than two hours.

Peterson's brother, George, 16, and a young girl, whose named could not be learned, were the other occupants of the boat. They escaped with no more serious results than exposure in the cold water. It is believed that the girl is a resident of Tompkins Cove. Both she and Faccio are strangers in Dresden.

Complete details of the accident are lacking here. The first that was known on shore of the accident was when residents of Dresden rushed to the lake front in response to the screams of those struggling in the water. The wreckage of the boat and the heads of the occupants could be seen.

Faccio, George Peterson and the girl were rescued. Faccio was badly injured by the dynamite and was rushed to the hospital. Albert Peterson's body showed many wounds from the explosion.

WILL REFIT DOLLAR LINERS.

Newport News Company Gets Contracts for About $2,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—Contracts aggregating more than $2,000,000 for increasing the passenger accommodations on three of the Dollar Steamship Company's round-the-world liners and for completely remodeling the passenger accommodations on the President Johnson, formerly the Panama-Pacific liner Manchuria, have been awarded to the Newport News Shipbuilding Company.

Captain Robert Dollar, head of the Dollar company, said that work would start on the President Harrison upon her arrival in New York in January.

Charles L. Wheeler, Vice President and General Manager of the McCormick Steamship Company, returned to his San Francisco office today after a visit of several weeks to the Atlantic seaboard.

The strong southeaster which has been blowing off the North Pacific for the past several days has delayed shipping to a considerable extent and steamers have been many hours late in arriving here from northern ports.

URGES CUT IN LAKE SEASON.

The Canadian Marine Department Stresses Shipping Perils.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Nov. 5 (AP).—The Department of Marine and Fisheries has suggested to steamship companies operating on the Great Lakes that navigation be closed on Dec. 1, or 7, "in the interest of safety."

Explaining that in recent years there has been considerable loss of life at the end of the season due to severe gales, Alex Johnston, Deputy Minister, said today it was hoped the suggestion would be adopted, although the department has no authority to make an arbitrary ruling.

Near the end of navigation last year several freighters foundered, with heavy casualties, on Lake Superior.
